Army Pressure Ends Strike At Wright Field

Officials Discuss Like Measures To Break Tie-up At Allis-Chalmers

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

Encouraged by sudden ending of the 17-day-old strike at Wright Field, Ohio, after threats by the Army to take over the work, defense officials last night were discussing use of similar tactics to end the protracted Allis-Chalmers tie-up.

The big Milwaukee plant, with 7,000 C. I. O. auto workers union members out, has $45,000,000 worth of defense contracts. The month-old stoppage has held up delivery of badly-needed equipment for the Navy's destroyer program and has hampered operation of the new powder plant at Radford, Va.

While there was active discussion of taking over the plant under provisions of the Selective Service Act, it was conceded that the Wright Field and Allis-Chalmers cases offered very different problems. Officials pointed out that while it would be a comparatively simple matter to perform the construction work on which the A. F. of L. struck at the flying field, by taking labor from the Civil Service lists, it would be vastly more difficult to obtain and direct the highly skilled labor required for the exacting work at the Allis-Chalmers establishment. Nonetheless, there was every indication of determination to take any steps necessary to end the impasse.

Back on Job Monday

Work on the $3,800,000 expansion program at the Army Air Corps' Wright Field testing area, paralyzed since 400 A. F. of L. craftsmen walked out in protest at the employment by an electrical contractor of four C. I. O. workmen, will be resumed Monday, according to Joseph Keenen, A. F. of L. representative on the OPM labor staff.

Keenen said that "patriotism" was the sole factor inducing the men to return to their jobs and to work in the future alongside the members of the rival organization. He admitted the situation would be unique in A. F. of L. annals.

The strike was ended after Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson wired John Breidenbach, president of the Dayton Central Union, that "further delay will seriously cripple the defense program." The War Department had characterized the construction of a wind tunnel, torque stand and radio and dynamometer laboratories at Wright Field as "essential" to "one of the most important military aircraft centers in the United States."

In Interest of Defense

Breidenbach replied that because "a serious threat to the democracy of America comes from a foreign shore," and "since the C. I. O., with a meager minority of four members, refuses to act in the interests of the Nation . . . and since the United States Army finds itself unable to do so, it remains for the 400 mem-

NLRB Cites Ford as Strike Fear Is Eased

Unfairness Charged; Move to Avert Tie-up Progresses

By the Associated Press

Detroit, March 21.—On the heels of a Federal mediator's report of progress in efforts to make peace between the Ford Motor Co. and the C. I. O.'s United Auto Workers, the regional office of the National Labor Relations Board late today issued a complaint of unfair labor practices against the company.

The formal complaint, embodying charges of the C. I. O.'s Auto Union, covers alleged company anti-union actions from 1935 to the present time and accuses the company of having operated "an extensive espionage system" among employes and maintained "gangs of strong-arm men" to intimidate workers.

Frank H. Bowen, board regional director in Detroit, announced a hearing on the complaint before a board trial examiner would be conducted April 14. The complaint, Bowen said, was served on the company this afternoon. It was the ninth labor board complaint issued against the company for alleged antiunion activities in its plants throughout the country.

Progress Reported

Earlier today James F. Dewey, Federal labor conciliator, said definite progress had been made in connection with union demands on Ford which recently were followed by a threat of strike.

Dewey said that three weeks of mediation conferences, together with steps taken by the Ford Co. and the National Labor Relations Board, had eased tension between the company and the union which existed when the U. A. W.-C. I. O. filed its notice of "intent to strike" with State authorities on February 27.

The strike notice affected the Rouge, Lincoln and Highland Park Ford plants, which together employ nearly 100,000 men in the Detroit area. The company has $154,000,000 worth of defense contracts.

Dewey said the union's most pressing grievance was removed when the company reinstated

House Passes $4,000,000,000 Defense Bill

327-0 Roll-Call Vote Speeds It to Senate; One Billion Allowed For 3,600 Bombers

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

The House swiftly passed a $4,073,810,074 supplemental defense appropriation yesterday, bearing funds for new arms plants to supply a 4,000,000-man Army "on a combat status."

A roll-call vote of 327 to 0 sped the huge measure to the Senate where barely 24 hours earlier another $3,446,000,000 defense bill received unanimous approval. Yesterday there was but one objector to the supplemental arms outlay, Representative Marcantonio (American-Labor), of New York, who was paired against it.

Biggest single item was a $1,000,000,000 appropriation for 2,600 long-range bombers, the parts of which will be built in automobile factories and assembled in four plants now under way.

2,000 "Could Fix Things Up"

A fleet of such craft would secure the defense of the United States, OPM Director General William S. Knudsen holds. He made the statement during testimony in support of the appropriation which was made public yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee.

"I really feel that we can secure defense if we have these large bombers," Knudsen declared. "If we had 2,000 of that type now we could fix things up over there."

The defense production chief did not elaborate on the remark.

Yesterday's supplemental defense bill—fifth of the session—ran the total voted for arms since last spring's European blitzkrieg to $25,182,674,015. Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, who was in charge of the bill, said that this huge sum did not include the $7,000,000,000 British-aid bill.

Convoy Ban Defeated

Just before passing the measure, the House rejected an amendment offered by Representative Case (Republican), of South Dakota, to bar the Navy from convoying supply ships to England.

Representative Bradley (Republican), of Michigan, challenged a $348,925,000 item in the bill for building munitions plants to provide arms for a 4,000,000-man Army.

He said he understood that an enemy would have to have an army four times as large as ours to hope successfully to attack the United States, and that as no nation could put a 16,000,000-man force into action, he assumed the preparations were for an "expeditionary force."

Testimony by Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, which was made public with the bill, indicated that the War Department does not contemplate raising the strength of the Army beyond the 1,418,000-man force expected by July, but wants to provide facilities for a larger force if it becomes necessary.

The committee said that the sum of $971,769,114 carried in the bill, together with a smaller amount in the regular 1942 budget, will "substantially" equip the Army with the "critical" equipment for a 2,000,000-man force. "Critical" munitions are those which take a long time to produce.

New Data On Blitzkrieg

The $348,925,000 fund for new plants would provide the production facilities for "critical" items for a second 2,000,000-man force, it was explained.

Marshall was revealed to have told the committee that the War Department recently obtained new

2 Boys Find Missing Girl In Park Here

Ruth Egoscue, 22-year-old War Department clerk who had been missing since Wednesday morning, was found unconscious on the ground in Lincoln Park, Thirteenth and East Capitol Streets, shortly before midnight last night.

At Casualty Hospital, where she was taken by a passing motorist, she was treated for exposure and nervousness. A preliminary examination failed to disclose any marks of assault, physicians said. She was in such a nervous state that doctors did not permit police to do any questioning.

When found, Miss Egoscue was fully attired. Her dress was wrinkled, and her hair was described as very unkempt.

She was discovered by Joseph Rollman, 15, of 1123 Park Place Northeast, and Donald E. Kersteens, 16, of 31 Eighth Street Northeast. They rushed to the nearby residence of Dr. Christopher Murphy, deputy coroner, for aid. In the absence of her husband, Mrs. Murphy followed the young men to the side of the prostrate girl and made efforts to administer first aid.

The girl could not speak for sobs, Mrs. Murphy reported. An ambulance was summoned, but Grafton Harper, 28, 2912 Seventeenth Street

Senate Group Votes Aid Fund Unanimously

Nye Joins in Show Of Hands in Favor Of $7,000,000,000 Sum

(Public favors transfer of 40 more destroyers to Britain, Gallup Poll shows—Page 7.)

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Maintaining the breathless pace set by the House, a Senate Appropriations subcommittee yesterday approved without change the Administration's $7,000,000,000 "estimate" for capacity arms aid to Britain.

Action was unanimous and followed only two days of hearings. Today the full Senate Appropriations Committee will echo its approval and report the bill to the Senate. Final Senate action is slated Monday.

Last of a brief line of Government witnesses, William S. Knudsen, defense production manager, told the subcommittee the entire amount for munitions and food supplies could be committed in the next fiscal year.

Opponents of the Lend-Lease Act on the subcommittee joined the chorus of votes for the bill. Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, called for a show of hands so the unanimous outcome could not be in doubt.

Previously, Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, led a hopeless effort to halve the appropriations to $3,500,000,000.

This was defeated by a voice vote. Subcommittee members said Nye was the only member who voted for it.

In the end Nye, Senator Brooks

Staggered Hours To Stand, U. S. Workers Told

It appeared yesterday that Federal employes who have expressed dissatisfaction with the new stagger-hour working schedule will have to accept them.

"There won't be any changes in the schedule effective March 31," a spokesman for the Budget Bureau said yesterday. "There may be minor adjustments, but the whole schedule will be placed in operation."

He pointed out that the system of staggering working hours in 21 departments and agencies had been based on scientific studies

"Any major changes," the Budget Bureau spokesman said, "would disrupt every effort we have made to relieve rush-hour traffic congestion."

The bureau spokesman declined to be named because "I don't want to be run out of town."

U. S. Interests Likely to Get 32 Nazi Ships

Deal for Interned Vessels Expected To Be Completed In a Fortnight

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

Private negotiations to sell 32 German ships interned in this hemisphere to American interests for eventual use by Great Britain may be completed in a fortnight, it was learned yesterday.

Outbreak of war trapped many German ships in North and South American ports and the German owners are negotiating to sell the 32 vessels still immobilized here. Some others managed to get through the blockade.

Only two of the vessels are in United States ports, it was said—a tanker in Boston and the freighter Arauca at Port Everglades, Fla. The 30 other vessels are scattered throughout Latin America.

The sum involved was not disclosed.

Between Private Principals

The negotiations were said to be between private principals, but with the active interest and supervision of the American Government and the German Embassy.

The plan as conceived here is that the ships will be turned over eventually to the British, or else used as replacements for ships now in service elsewhere that may be put on North Atlantic runs.

The Germans were said to feel that they might as well receive payment for the ships, which would be in American dollars, rather than leave them rotting at their moorings.

An informed source said the Germans appeared to be more anxious to get the dollars than to keep the ships out of British hands. One consideration influencing the Germans, it was said, was the prospect that the ships might be commandeered eventually without payment, a less attractive outcome than sale of the ships now for cash.

May Double Ship Program

It was reported meanwhile that the American effort to bolster Britain's "bridge of ships" may soon be reinforced by doubling of the present 200-ship construction program.

First contracts for construction of the "ugly-duckling" vessels were let this week and other contracts are quickly being negotiated. The emergency 200-ship program is supplementary to building of 60 other vessels, ordered here earlier by the British.

The lend-lease law permits transfer of ships to Britain but President Roosevelt said at a recent press conference that no Maritime Commission equipment figured in the first allotment sent abroad.

Maritime Commission officials have said they have no spare ships at present for transfer to Britain. Possibly sources of more tonnage lie in the Danish and Italian vessels in U. S. ports. Officials have for months been discussing ways and means of securing these vessels. Earlier this week Representative Oliver (Republican), of Maine, introduced a bill to permit the Maritime Commission to charter or purchase these foreign ships.

Boy, 5, in New Boots, Heeds Call of Spring

Spring, which sounded an all-out call to Washingtonians during its first full day here yesterday, was expected to maintain its general good behavior in the Capital today.

The Weather Bureau said there will be increasing cloudiness, but the temperature will rise to the fifties.

The balmy weather yesterday filled the parks, officials said. School children had a chance to take advantage of the fine day because of a half holiday. Their teachers spent it in a conference.

Five-year-old Joseph Marx, of 3123 Rittenhouse Street Northwest, heard the call of spring and marched off in his new birthday boots.

Joseph, who left home about 11:30 a. m., was feared lost in nearby Rock Creek Park. His father, Lieut. Col. Joseph N. Marx, Army Reserve officer employed in the General Accounting Office, solicited the aid of police of the Eighth Precinct Station, and of officers at the CCC Camp in the park. Just before nightfall 50 CCC boys were combing the woods, and a corps of Boy Scouts was being mobilized.

Meanwhile, the anxious father and a police officer found Joseph in the 6300 block of Thirty-second Street Northwest, proudly displaying his boots to other children.

Serb Unrest Delays Belgrade-Axis Pact; Plymouth Fired Again

City of 220,000 Suffers Second Assault, Exceeding That on Coventry

By the United Press

A Southwest Coast Town, England (Saturday), March 22. Apparently determined to wipe out completely this historic town (Plymouth) hundreds of German bombers blasted great sections of it to ruins last night in their second straight night of "blitz" attack.

The attack, which began shortly after dusk and lasted until midnight, exceeded in fury and destruction even the all-out bombing of Thursday night and early Friday which reduced buildings after building to smoking debris and took a great toll of dead and injured.

In a constant stream, hundreds of German bombers swept over, unloading thousands of incendiaries and big bombs with all the savagery of the "blitz" that laid Coventry in ruins.

Business buildings, homes, shops and churches which had escaped the previous night's assault, were ruined.

Spotters Pounce on Bombs

The raiders appeared while rescue workers dug in smoking ruins for dead and injured of Thursday night's bombing.

The thousands of incendiaries started fires, but thousands of "spotters"—men, women and even children—pounced upon the bombs while projectiles of all calibers fell all around them.

The staff of the newspaper where this correspondent was at the time of the attack was ordered to shelters where work went on. After about 2½ hours the "imminent danger" signal was given and police ordered evacuation of the newspaper building, which was hemmed in on all sides by buildings blasted or damaged by bombs. There was grave danger from crushing walls.

"Still Carrying On"

Amid the hell of death and destruction, the general feeling of the people of this town was:

"It's tough, but we're still carrying on."

It appears that there is hardly a street not affected in some way.

Before the raiders appeared last evening hundreds of people, many of them wearing blood-stained bandages with torn clothing, were wandering in the debris-littered street seeking shelter after the long and savage Thursday night attack that wiped out their homes.

Entire blocks of homes lay in ruins early today and neighbors and relatives are doing all they can to care for the refugees.

It was estimated that 10,000 incendiary bombs alone were dropped upon the town of 220,000 in Thursday night's hours-long attack, and even more fell last night, while explosives fell sometimes at the rate of 12 a minute—720 an hour—at the peak of the fury.

Several Killed in Hospital

When the raiders arrived last night authorities still were trying to estimate the death toll and damages of the previous assault and people wandered in the street, not knowing whether their families were dead or alive.

Injured and dead still were being pulled from ruins, including a hospital wing where several persons were killed.

Two Big Nazi Battleships In Atlantic

British Say Gneisenau And Scharnhorst Are Operating in West

By Robert P. Post
Copyright by New York Times

London, March 21.—Two German battleships which Prime Minister Churchill declared last Tuesday were operating as far west as the forty-second meridian, were said here today to be the heavily armed Scharnhorst and the Gneisenau, both of 26,000 tons.

Each carries nine 11-inch guns and is rated at 27 knots.

If this is true, the Germans have been able to repair a ship which has been frequently attacked. The Scharnhorst was in a running fight with the 32,000-ton Renown off Norway last April. The Renown reported she had hit the enemy and it was thought she had been severely damaged. The Scharnhorst was also torpedoed by the submarine Clyde a little later. It was also reported that she had been bombed at Kiel by a lone British raider. The pilot and the sergeant of the British plane were decorated for this feat.

The Gneisenau was reported to have been sunk by Norwegian shore batteries at Oslo in April. This report has never been confirmed, although the German wireless once referred to it as though it were true.

Of course, the fact that the Scharnhorst is still floating does not prove that the British were in any way exaggerating in their claims. They never said they had put her out of action but merely recorded damage, which the Germans have had plenty of time to repair. There is a British ship probably in service today which is made up of the bow of one vessel and the stern of another.

The British task of hunting down one of these raiders is tremendous. It requires many ships—it should be undertaken by big battlecruisers—and it probably also requires an aircraft carrier for scouting purposes.

In the meantime there is some speculation as to what happened to the liner Bremen. A reconnaissance photograph published today showed her moored beside her quay at Bremerhaven with the Europa nearby.

3 Cabinet Members And Envoy to Soviet Resign, Army Holds Defiant Parades

By the Associated Press

Belgrade, Yugoslavia (Saturday), March 22.—Mobilized Serb soldiers singing American and French World War songs paraded in the provinces last night while Yugoslav government heads vainly sought to solve a crisis arising from an attempt to put this Versailles Treaty-built nation in the Axis fold.

Regent Prince Paul and his premier, alive to the dangers of internal disorders, had not succeeded early today in their attempt to form quickly a completely pro-Axis cabinet that would approve the plan of modified alliance with the Axis. The Serb Peasant Party leaders bitterly oppose the plan.

Here in the capital anti-Axis students met near the royal palace and played "Tipperary," the famous British marching song of 25 years ago.

Delay Angers Germans

The uproar caused by grapevine leakage of the government's intention, which was opposed vigorously by three resigning cabinet ministers, forced Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic and Foreign Minister Aleksandar Cincar-Markovic to delay their scheduled departure today for Vienna, where they had planned to sign an agreement with the Axis Sunday.

This hitch caused great indignation in German circles.

[Germany was reported in political circles last night to have "plainly hinted" to Yugoslavia that she must arrange for adherence to an Axis pact within 48 hours, according to the United Press.

[Adolf Hitler, according to these reports, is withholding the launching of an Aegean offensive against Greece only until the question of Yugoslavia's signature to a pact with the Axis is cleared up.]

Croat Official Summoned

Government sources predicted it would be impossible for the premier and foreign minister to leave for Berlin before Monday or Tuesday.

Before going to bed early today the premier ordered Dr. Ivkovic, Vice Governor of Crotia, to hurry here from Zagreb. It was eported Dr. Ivkovic would be offered one of the three cabinet posts.

Under the Yugoslav constitution any agreement such as the proposal to join the Axis must have the unanimous approval of the cabinet ministers. Customarily the ministerial vacancies are filled with members of the predecessor's party—but observers considered it unlikely that any prominent member of the Serb Peasant Party would join a pro-Axis cabinet.

The likelihood of delay—or of more than mere delay—was raised by the angry objections of the three Serb cabinet ministers who resigned

Roosevelt Waits Near Nazi Vessel For Better Seas

Aboard U. S. S. Benson, Port Everglades, Fla., March 21 (AP).—President Roosevelt rode salt water tonight but he was not getting far on a fishing trip.

The White House yacht Potomac lay at anchor behind the harbor breakwaters here, still waiting favorable weather before nosing into the open Atlantic.

The yacht was anchored directly astern of the German freighter Arauca, flying a black and white swastika flag. The freighter escaped from a British warship and took refuge at Port Everglades in December, 1939.

Sailors with rifles patroled the docks nearest the Potomac and Benson, and one bluejacket was stationed at the Arauca gangway.

First Lady Jibes At Col. Lindbergh

New York, March 21 (INS).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's latest warning that America faces only "humiliation and defeat" if she takes part in the European war drew a sharp retort from the First Lady of the land today.

"Still wishful thinking, rather than realistic thinking," Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt commented.

A Routine Matter

Doctor Denies 'White List' Was Directed Against GHA

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

Despite Government claims to the contrary, the District Medical Society's "white list" was not directed against Group Health Association, the doctors' trial jury was told yesterday.

Testifying in defense of the 14 local society members accused of restraining the medical care cooperative and thereby violating the Sherman Act, Dr. H. C. Macatee emphatically denied that the "white list" was conceived as an anti-G. H. A. weapon.

Dr. Macatee, president of the Health Security Administration and for many years a Washington practitioner, is not one of the defendants.

He explained, under questioning by William E. Leahy, defense counsel, that preparation of the list, which did not include the name of Group Health Association, was authorized by the District Medical Society in March, 1937. It was distributed to member physicians the following July.

Although it was incorporated early in 1937, Group Health Association did not open its doors for patients until November of that year.

"The approved list came about as the result of a complaint made to the society against a certain industrial clinic" the witness said.

Army to Build $2,500,000 Storage Depot in Alexandria

The Army plans to build a $2,500,000 quartermaster depot in Alexandria, it was disclosed yesterday, as a storehouse for military posts in the Capital area.

Brig. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, Army construction chief, revealed the projected military establishment during testimony before the House Appropriations Committee made public yesterday.

He told the committee that the new 1,418,000-man Army will need 10 new depots for keeping reserve supplies ready for issue in case of need. The new depots will cost a total of $45,588,500, and are in addition to eight others now under construction.

The Alexandria depot will have 500,000 square feet of storage space, it was stated, and probably will be a sprawling one-story structure of either steel or concrete construction.

Funds for the project will be asked in a forthcoming supplemental appropriation bill, Gen. Somervell stated. A site for the building has not yet been selected, a War Department spokesman said.

One of the other ten depots required, it was stated, also will be built in Virginia. The fifth supplemental defense appropriation bill passed yesterday by the House carries $3,000,000 for a quartermaster depot to be located between Richmond and Charlottesville. The exact location has not been settled.

Gen. Somervell told the committee that depots with 38,000,000 square feet of space will be required

OUR CAMPAIGN against phony names for fiction characters has taken on new vigor. The night club singer in tomorrow's complete Sunday Post novel is named—don't laugh!—Stream Waters! But don't let that keep you from reading the story. It's a good one, and the setting is in Chevy Chase and Washington.

When Garrick Temple was found poisoned by strychnine the finger of suspicion pointed in turn to two women: Stream Waters, who had been blackmailing Temple and whose colored maid was also found dead from strychnine, and Temple's young wife, Nora, who was in love with a doctor from whom a lot of strychnine had been stolen.

Complicating factors were the hatred of Temple's sister-in-law for Nora, who was his second wife, and the fact that Temple's son had fallen in love with his stepmother.

Fascist Party Chief Reported Slain in Albania

By the Associated Press

Belgrade, March 21.—Roberto Farinacci, one of the 11 cabinet members and close associates Premier Mussolini sent to the front to set an example of Fascist valor for his soldiers, has been killed in hand-to-hand combat in Albania, it was reported at the border today.

Farinacci was said to have met death from a sniper as he led his Blackshirt battalion over the top at Tepeleni, Italy's Albanian "Verdun," in a bayonet and grenade battle.

The reports said his body was not recovered, despite the efforts of his men to do so.

Was a Firebrand

A former secretary of the Fascist Party and a member of the Fascist grand council, Farinacci was reputed to be one of Mussolini's four closest collaborators.

Farinacci long ago had established a reputation as a duelist and a firebrand. He was one of Mussolini's fighting politicians who went to Ethiopia. There he lost his right hand in a grenade explosion.

Anticlerical and anti-Semitic, Farinacci led all the Italian press in denunciation of the Jews in his extremist newspaper, Il Regime Fascista, at Cremona, in the days before the war.

Farinacci had been at the front since about January 25, when it was announced in Rome that he was taking up active military service.

Recent Greek reports, said to have been derived from talks with Italian prisoners, have told of the capture, death or injury of six high Fascist personalities in the major offensive which the Italians undertook on the Tepeleni front nearly two weeks ago reportedly under the eye of Premier Mussolini himself.

The Greeks named only two, however, and there was no way of knowing whether Farinacci might have been among them.

Eight Other Leaders in Battle

Eight other cabinet ministers and high officials have been sent to take an active part in the fighting by Mussolini, including his own son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, who finds time, however, to appear at an occasional formal function in connection with his duties as foreign minister.

The last to be sent to the front was Count Dino Grandi, minister of justice and former Ambassador to London. The others are Ettore Muti, Fascist Party secretary; Alessandro Pavolini, minister of popular culture; Giuseppe Gorla, minister of public works; Raffaello Riccardi, minister of foreign trade; Renato Ricci, minister of corporations, and Count Paolo Thaon di Revel, minister of finance.

yesterday rather than approve an anti-British accord with Germany and her allies.

Army Resentful

The army rank and file, too, was angry. There were sharp manifestations of discontent among the public. It was disclosed that four of the leading Yugoslavian generals had been pensioned and, while this was described officially as "a mere routine matter," it was no secret that objections to capitulating to Germany had risen high in some sections of the army.

In public places, photographs of President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill appeared, with wordless symbolism, alongside those of the Yugoslavian national heroes.

Prince Paul, head of the Yugoslav regency, ordered the ministers to rescind their resignations, but they firmly refused, and Paul tonight reluctantly accepted their withdrawal from the government.

A fourth Serb member of the cabinet was said to be preparing to resign. He and the three who quit were the only members of the 17-man cabinet who voted against the Axis alliance program.

This program was said reliably to call for full Axis membership except that troops to attack Greece would not cross Yugoslavia and that this country's territory would be respected by all Axis signers.

The news, trickling out into the country via grapevine, enhanced the growing discontent, particularly among the Serbs who constitute one-third of the population of 15,000,000.

The cabinet members who resigned were Dr. Budisavijevic, minister of social welfare; Dr. Branko Cubrilovic, minister of agriculture, and Mihailo Konstantinovic, minister of justice. Their fellow-dissenter was said to be Milan Protisch, minister of supplies.

Serbs Incensed

Cubrilovic, who heads the Serb peasant party, called a meeting of his party chiefs to discuss the situation.

Prince Paul met with leaders of the parties represented by the retiring cabinet members to see if they would agree on more complacent substitutes. What he learned was not disclosed, but it was after this session that Paul accepted the resignations.

Envoy to Soviet Resigns

Minister to Russia Gaverilovic was said to have sent his resignation to Prince Paul in protest against the Axis plan.

The press disclosed that Prince Paul asked the advice of the patriarch of the Serbian Church but that the patriarch, extending his hands in a helpless gesture, said his interest was to preserve peace.

Disclosure that four prominent generals were pensioned increased the national tension. The general staff was said to have advised an understanding with Germany, but lesser officers and the rank and file among the country's army of 1,000,000 were irate.

This capital was made nervous when streetcar, telephone and lighting services were cut off for a short time yesterday but the interruption was described as technical trouble only.

Italians Swept From Skies, Greeks Say

By Ben Ames.
United Press Staff Writer

Athens, March 21 (U.P.).—The Italian air force has been "swept from the skies" over Albania by British and Greek fighter planes, a government spokesman said tonight in reporting the shattering of a strong Fascist tank attack near Tepeleni.

In the last 24 hours, it was reported, the Italians' counter-attacks have slowed down, apparently owing to the heavy losses suffered by the Fascisti in a week of futile efforts to recover lost ground all along the front.

Fascists Repulsed "With Ease"

The Italians still attempted to make headway with counter-attacks during today in the central sector, with Greek artillery supported by antiaircraft guns pouring shells into long columns of Fascist reinforcements and supplies moving up to the front lines.

The enemy attack was shattered "with ease," the government spokesman said, two Italian tanks were put out of action by Greek artillery fire and others were damaged.

A strong Greek patrol, supported by heavy artillery fire, was said to have penetrated deep into Italian territory, taking many prisoners, including an officer.

Suffer "Terrific Losses"

Greek artillery has been "most effective" during the last 24 hours, the spokesman explained. After one barrage huge sheets of flame and great explosions were said to have occurred, indicating that an Italian munitions dump had been destroyed. Another battery destroyed an enemy oil dump.

Italian prisoners were quoted officially as saying that three Italian divisions totaling between 45,000 and 50,000 men suffered "terrific losses" in a three-day battle around the town of Trepeshina, northwest of Klisura on the central Albanian front.

Several prisoners were said to have reported that an entire Arditi company—known as the "Company of Death"—was wiped out in this battle. Only 800 men were left out of 10,000 of the Legniani division after the battle, the Italian prisoners were quoted as saying.

Rumania Calls Reserves

Bucharest, March 21 (U.P.).—The Rumanian general staff tonight ordered all army reservists thus far exempt from mobilization to report immediately to their units "for clarification of their situation." An official said the army is being kept at peacetime strength.

Freighter Believed Sunk Docks in N. Y.

New York, March 21 (INS).—The British freighter Empire Attendant returned from "Davey Jones' locker" today to steam into New York Harbor after being given up for lost following a reported torpedoing by a U-boat 1,000 miles off the Irish coast on March 7.

The ship bore unmistakable signs of battle but no descriptions of any kind were vouchsafed by her tight-lipped skipper or crew, who were instructed not to talk by British officials in New York.

British Capture Libyan Oasis, Ending Siege

By the Associated Press

Cairo, March 21.—Giarabub, holdout oasis in the desert of eastern Libya, has been captured from the Italians, British general headquarters announced tonight.

Cut off from help, the Giarabub garrison had held out valiantly for 15 weeks. Bardia, 150 miles to the north, fell on January 5 in the initial British surge into Libya.

The garrison commander and 800 soldiers were taken prisoner, it was announced.

Recently, the British said, "an opportunity arose finally to clear up the situation," so a detachment of British and Australians attacked Giarabub yesterday. Capitulation came this afternoon.

Giarabub was the last point of Italian resistance in eastern Libya.

Oasis a Moslem Shrine

For all these weeks, the only food supplies to reach the oasis, less than 30 miles west of the Egyptian border, have been dropped by plane from Tripoli. The wells of the oasis supplied the besieged garrison with water, however, and gave them that slight advantage over the besiegers.

The oasis has the standing of a minor mecca in the Mohammedan world. It was there that Sidi Ben Ali es Senussi established his order in 1855 and his tomb rests in an ornate mosque which dominates the oasis.

He preached a return to the primitive, barring luxuries, and drinking, smoking and dancing were prohibited under the law of Senussi, a Moroccan Arab descendant. The movement spread through other oases of the Sahara to central Africa.

Because of the religious nature of the place, the British said, they refrained from bombing it.

The repulse of another Italian counterattack at besieged Cheren, in Eritrea, has cost the Fascists "serious casualties and a number of prisoners," the British Middle East command announced tonight.

In British Somaliland, Hargeisa was reported retaken by the British.

The operations at Cheren, under a British pounding by land and air for weeks, "continue to develop slowly but satisfactorily," the bulletin added.

(Italy officially confirmed that the British were steadily pounding at Cheren, but said the defenders were holding firm and that Italian planes were bombing the British.)

Lady Astor Cheers Public

By the Associated Press

Plymouth, England, March 21.—Bucked up by tireless little Lady Astor, Plymouth piled high the sandbags and manned the stirrup pumps tonight, prepared for another test of flame and blast such as it endured last night at the hands of the luftwaffe.

The Virginia-born Nancy Astor, who has sat in Common for the Sutton Division of Plymouth since 1919, directed fire fighters at her Plymouth home through the raid, then took over the mayor's post in the absence of her husband, Lord Astor, with influenza.

Today Lady Astor toured every rest center in the city, among them Virginia House, which accommodates 300 homeless persons and which she and her husband established.

Eye-witnesses who have seen the condition of other English cities after such raids as that of Thursday night said Plymouth, a city of some 220,000, already had made an amazing return to near-normal.

Plymouth had taken a lesson from Portsmouth, Southampton and other coastal cities previously blitzed, and was well-prepared. Alert firewatchers prevented the spread of many fires. All the homeless were cared for in the rest centers.

British Get 1,875 U. S. Planes in '40

London, March 21 (AP).—A total of 1,875 American-made airplanes was shipped to Britain in 1940 compared with 300 in 1939, according to the current issue of the magazine Aeroplane.

Approximately 1,600 of the planes arrived between last July and December, the publication said, emphasizing the sudden acceleration in the rate of delivery.

Japanese Say Matsuoka May Visit London

By the Associated Press

Berlin, March 21.—German submarines struck in a new and menacing direction at Britain and sank 69,000 tons of merchant shipping from a strongly guarded convoy off the West African coast, the high command announced today.

At the same time Axis quarters connected the forthcoming visit of Japanese Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka with prospective moves in "blitz diplomacy."

Usually reliable Japanese sources here said Matsuoka might visit London. They were unable to say whether he would be likely to visit the United States, too, on his way home.

There was no discussion of the possibility in other quarters, however. (Authoritative quarters in London said they had no knowledge of an impending visit by Matsuoka.)

Ceremonial Report

The attack on the England-bound convoy in African waters was made the subject of a "sonder meldung"—a special report—which is the ceremonial form of transmitting information which the high command regards of great importance to the German people. The attack was taken by Germans as proof that the intensified submarine warfare which Hitler has proclaimed for March and April was well under way.

Military observers said U-boats and planes were sinking Britain's ships at such a rate that shipbuilders of the world could not keep pace with it. The high command announced the sinking of another freighter and the firing of a second in air attacks about England.

The number of ships sunk from the convoy was not given, however.

(Neither was there any indication whether the operation was by long-range submarines or by U-boats based at new stations in Africa or elsewhere along the South Atlantic.)

Festooning Berlin

The work of festooning the city for a rousing welcome for Matsuoka began, and the semiofficial magazine, Berlin-Rome-Tokyo, observed that "blitz diplomacy" goes hand-in-hand with blitzkrieg and hinted that other states may be joining the three-power pact soon.

But there was no comment in Berlin whether this latter hint might be directed at Yugoslavia. Nor was there any comment upon resignations from the Yugoslav cabinet because of disagreements over that country's foreign policy.

Pope Expected To Hold Quiet Easter Mass

By the Associated Press

Vatican City, March 21.—The Pope is expected to substitute a quiet Easter mass in his private chapel for the usual elaborate ceremony in St. Peter's.

Although His Holiness' definite plans have not been announced, it was said that because of war conditions he had canceled the usual mass and the blessing of the throngs from the balcony.

Although Vatican City residents are subject to most of the wartime restrictions applying to those outside the city, the Pope has tried to carry on his religious activities in as nearly a normal manner as possible.

The Italian government has forbidden the manufacture and sale of various Easter cakes normally consumed in large quantities. All stocks of panettone, one such cake, have been ordered turned over to the army.

Restrictions on Sunday travel—which forbid private motoring and curtail public transportation—were given as one of the principal reasons for cancellation of the Vatican's customary Easter service.

The Pope had been expected to deliver an Easter homily on war and peace, as he did a year ago, but prelates indicated this, too, would be omitted.

Fritz Thyssen In South America, Germans Insist

Berlin, March 21 (AP).—German authorities declared today that Fritz Thyssen, German industrial magnate, was neither in Germany nor France but in South America.

They emphatically denied a Vichy report that he had been confined in a German concentration camp.

Informed sources at Vichy asserted last Monday that Thyssen had been interned at Dachau concentration camp in Germany.

These informants said Thyssen, who fled Germany in November, 1939, after breaking with Hitler over the Soviet-German pact, had been arrested by French police at Cannes and turned over under the terms of the French-German armistice.

Thyssen had lived openly at Cannes, on the Riviera, before disappearing last December.

Portuguese Ape Forty-Niners In Wild Tungsten Ore Rush

By the Associated Press

Lisbon, Portugal, March 21.—A "wolframite rush" is sweeping Portugal. Thousands of peasants are deserting their cabbage gardens and little farms for the hills where they are engaging in a fury of mining like the forty-niners of California. In one instance the craze has led to bloodshed. A farmer near the village of Borralha who discovered a vein of wolframite—chief ore of tungsten used in high-speed tools and munitions making—and stood guard over it nights, shot his cousin whom he mistook for an intruder.

Despite a warning by the government, which fears crops will suffer, hundreds of North Portugal peasants have joined the rush in the last 24 hours from the villages of Borralha, Campo de Gales, Tarouca, Via Pouca de Aguiar Alva, Castro Daires and Codicoso.

Said the newspaper O Seculo:

"Families of peasants who had lived happily their bucolic life, working from sunrise to sundown to earn just enough to keep themselves alive have been seriously tempted to wolframite mining.

"Neighbors who long had been friends and shared poverty with resignation, hoping generation after generation that the land one day would produce more than what they needed to eat, have become enemies in a fury to extract in one day's digging what a whole month of tilling the land would produce."

Inquiry Started In Grounding Of Liner in Canal

Balboa, Canal Zone, March 21 (AP).—A board of inquiry began an investigation today into the grounding of the 9,135-ton Grace Liner Santa Elena in Miraflores Lake Channel while she was passing through the canal bound to South America.

She was pulled off after 3½ hours by Panama Canal tugs, her port side having been imbedded in soft mud. It was reported reliably that she had suddenly veered to port-side while steaming through the narrow channel.

Grace Line officials in New York said the grounding was a "normal accident."

Vichy Orders Conscription Of Farm Labor

By G. H. Archambault.

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, March 21.—The ministers met in conference this evening under the presidency of Admiral Francois Darlan, vice president of the council, to discuss problems in preparation for the next cabinet session over which Marshal Petain will preside.

It is understood that the main question related to food supplies and the cultivation of the next crop. It has been decided to conscript farm labor.

Next month may prove crucial in many sections of the unoccupied zone wherefore Ambassador Gaston Henry-Haye's reports from Washington came as a great relief, announcing as they did the probable early shipment of 14,000 tons of wheat and flour.

With American aid the immediate problem is possible of solution, but there must also be measures to increase production of foodstuffs generally at home. Scarcity of farm labor, of draft animals, of gasoline for tractors, all compel the recruiting of many hands if there are to be sufficient crops this summer and the next—most of the 2,000,000 war prisoners are tillers of the soil.

There is to be instituted what is styled "rural civic service" which enables the government to requisition the services during the present year of all youths between 17 and 21 years of age who are without employment or who are not skilled laborers, as well as all students on vacation for a minimum period of two weeks. All these may be called upon for seasonal work.

It is further ordained that all agricultural workers who have sought industrial employment may be brought back to the land compulsorily. In addition it will be forbidden to employ farm hands on public works or public utilities.

It is learned here that the German high command has decided to grant "captivity furloughs" to all French farm workers interned as prisoners of war in the occupied zone; "several thousand" farm workers captive in Germany will be able to obtain similar furloughs to "work in the fields and the implication is that at the end of such work they may be returned to captivity.

data on the operations of German panzer divisions in the Lowlands and France last spring. He said that the information was being studied to determine the adequacy of present War Department plans for a possible expansion to 8 armored divisons and 15 separate armored battalions.

Such an increase, however, will not be made unless the Army is enlarged to 2,800,000 men, the chief of staff made plant. There are two armored divisions now and two more being organized.

Undersecretary Robert P. Patterson told the committee that the Army's present aircraft production goal was an output of 21,000 planes a year. This does not include the needs of the Navy and the British, presumably.

Maximum in October

Maj. Gen. G. H. Brett, acting Air Corps chief, said that plane deliveries in some quantity will begin next month, and that maximum production will be reached in October. Deliveries of the 1,200 four-engined and 2,400 two-engined bombers from the four new assembly plants will begin in about 14 months, he said.

Brett also disclosed that the Army planned to ask funds soon for greatly expanding the pilot training program. The present expansion is jumping the annual production of pilots from 1,200 to 12,000, and the proposed program would step this up to 30,000 a year.

The bill carries $1,684,940,000 in cash and $2,093,453,254 in contract authority for the Army and $295,416,820 cash for the Navy. About half of the Army total are new items while the remainder were originally asked in the regular 1942 budget but put ahead under the speed-up program.

Under the Navy section of the bill, $133,118,820 is for ordnance, part of which would go for antiaircraft defense equipment for merchant ships. Sixty millions are allowed for acquiring and converting 12 additional merchant ships to naval use, two of them as airplane transports.

Besides the 3,600 new bombers, funds are provided for 1,425 planes to complete the 18,000-plane program launched last year. A total of $148,039,296 is carried for outlying Army air bases, including those on the British sites and two new secondary bases in Alaska.

Briton Doubts Japan Wants War

New York, March 20 (AP).—Japan will not wage war on the United States unless forced to do so by Adolf Hitler, Sir Victor Sassoon, British banker and industrialist, said today following a tour of the Far East.

"If there is to be a war between you and Japan," Sir Victor said at an Advertising Club luncheon, "it will be only because Hitler will have forced that war onto Japan and you, and, if Japan is forced to fight the United States, then it will be a case of 'God help Japan.'"

Mme. Tabouis Predicts Revolt In France

Germany will "bomb and bomb" the British Isles for several more months, then—timed with an attack Japan will launch against Singapore—will attempt a landing on British soil, it is believed by Mme. Genevieve Tabouis, French journalist who in France was credited with unusual facility at predicting Hitler's moves.

In "six weeks' time," she predicted, at the Hotel Washington yesterday, "Mussolini will witness the collapse of Ethiopia and the ensuing fall of his entire colonial empire. But 'a day will come,' " she asserted, "when France will rise against Germany and the revolt will spread to Italy, leaving that nation with a constitutional government and its King.

"That day will come when the defeat of Germany becomes apparent to the continental peoples," she said.

Whether the Germans, in light of their national characteristics, could live contentedly under a democracy after this war, said Mme. Tabouis, is "the great problem." But, in another breath, she considered they would have to. For she foresees a confederation of European nations, overseen by Great Britain and the United States.

Mme. Tabouis thinks the Hoover plan to feed peoples of invaded nations is feasible and should be made to work. Beyond its humanitarian aspects the enterprise would make the United States "powerful and popular" in Europe, she said.

Dykstra to Quit As Selective Service Chief

Clarence A. Dykstra, will resign as Director of Selective Service to devote full time to his new duties as chairman of the National Defense Mediation Board, the White House announced yesterday.

The tall, kindly-looking president of the University of Wisconsin has guided the Army induction machinery since October 16, registration day. President Roosevelt, away on a fishing trip, has not acted on his resignation.

Dykstra's salary as Director of Selective Service is $10,000 a year. As a member of the Mediation Board he will receive $25 a day compensation for each day he spends on board business, plus traveling and incidental. His $10,000-a-year salary works out to $27.67 a day for each day in the year.

An experienced public administrator, Dykstra had been called to public service three times by President Roosevelt before he took the Mediation Board chairmanship. Before becoming head of Selective Service he was a member of the National Resources Board and of the President's Committee on Fiscal Relations Between the Federal Government and the District of Columbia.

A native of Cleveland, the 38-year-old educator was for seven years the city manager of Cincinnati, Ohio, and won national attention for his work during the Ohio Valley floods of 1937.

Senate Group Approves Aid Fund

(Republican), of Illinois, and other opponents of the Administration's foreign policy joined the aid bloc in voting for the full amount.

Nye said he would renew his motion to slice the bill in half at the full committee meeting this morning but approval of the $7,000,000,000 is a foregone conclusion.

Leaders estimated only 12 to 15 Senate votes will be cast against the bill on final passage, less than half the 31 who voted "no" on the lend-lease bill.

Supporting the appropriation were an increasing number of Republicans and Democrats who opposed the "lend" principle but favor aid to England. These mainly base their shift on the fact that the lend act is now established policy.

Nye told reporters he had not yet determined how he will vote finally in the Senate, but he intends to make a short speech. Leaders said few speeches have been scheduled and there is no reason the measure cannot be disposed of in a day. Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, said he had no desire to delay the bill.

The subcommittee vote came shortly after Knudsen added his indorsement to earlier statements for the bill by Secretaries Stimson and Knox, Budget Director Harold D. Smith and Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff.

Assuring members that the full amount was needed, Knudsen later told reporters: "We may not be able to spend the entire amount in the year, but we will make commitments for it. We already have our plans for expansion well under way."

Witnesses generally, subcommitteemen said, stressed not only the material assistance provided by the fund toward assuring a British victory but the anti-Axis psychological impact of the measure.

Much of the testimony, as in the House, was omitted from the record because of its confidential character and will not appear in the published version of the hearings.

Presenting the report to the Senate Monday will be a man who opposed lend-lease enactment and has consistently fought lump-sum appropriations—Chairman Adams of the deficiencies subcommittee. Adams voted to report and is expected to handle the bill on the floor.

Four Nazi Envoys Meet in Santiago, Stir Speculation

Copyright by New York Times

Santiago, Chile, March 21.—A meeting here of four of Germany's ambassadors in South America was reported today by the pro-British Defensa.

Adolph von Thermann, ambassador in Buenos Aires, who arrived early this week, left again today for the southern provinces, where Chile's German colony is most important. Simultaneously with his stay here, according to the Union of Valparaiso, the German ambassadors to Peru and Bolivia arrived for short vacations.

Defensa declares that the presence of four outstanding German diplomats in the South American service, including the envoy here, in the same week creates an impression that conversations of importance were going on.

Communists Control C. I. O. Unit, Dies Says

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

Representative Dies (Democrat), of Texas, yesterday charged that the C. I. O. Federation of Architects, Engineers, Chemists and Technicians, whose members are employed in a number of Navy yards and defense plants, "is under the complete domination of the Communist Party."

The 8,000 members of the union have established themselves in one of the "strategic bottleneck positions in American industry," according to the chairman of the House committee investigating un-American activities.

Dies placed in the record material which he said established beyond doubt the Communist affiliations of Marcel Scherer, national organizational director of the federation, and 16 other prominent members.

Loyalty Essential

The importance of these affiliations "can hardly be overemphasized," Dies said, "when we remember that the absolute loyalty of technical men who are employed in our defense industries is essential to our national security."

Another Dies Committee member, Representative Voorhis (Democrat), of California, yesterday told the House that "you are doing it a favor when you point out to any labor group factual material proving Communist influence in that organization. You are doing great damage, however, when you make such charges if you are not sure of the facts."

Apparently in answer to recent criticism of Sidney Hillman, OPM codirector, Voohris quoted a Communist publication's attack on Hillman as a "careerist" and "enemy of the working class."

Other House comment on the defense labor situation yesterday focused on the possibility that successful operation of the new defense mediation board will head off the move for antistrike legislation.

Says Strikes Must Decline

Such legislation cannot be prevented if "we don't see a rapid reduction in the number of defense strikes," said Representative McLaughlin (Democrat), of Nebraska, a member of the House Judiciary Committee, which is now holding hearings on defense labor legislation.

Another Judiciary Committee member, Representative Bryson (Democrat), of South Carolina, said: "The success or failure of the mediation board is certain to crystallize the opinion of Congress one way or the other on the question of antistrike legislation.

"The American people are not going to stand either for strikes on the part of labor or profit haggling on the part of capital which cripple production in our defense industries. Where one attempts to take advantage of the other at the expense of national defense the Government must step in and protect the Nation's interest."

Under a policy jointly agreed to by the surgeons general of the Army, Navy and Public Health Service, the office of Health, Welfare and Related Activities will supervise law enforcement activities throughout the country to suppress prostitution in the vicinity of Army and Navy establishments, it was announced yesterday by Charles P. Taft, coordinator.

Taft said statistics demonstrated beyond doubt that the veneral disease rate dropped more following direct attacks on prostitution than after attempts to segregate it or otherwise regulate it.

As a result, he said, his office would seek to stimulate State, local and municipal authorities in enforcing laws against prostitution in areas near Army and Navy cantonments.

Heading the work, Taft announced, will be Maj. Bascom Johnson, employed as director of legal and social protection, who handled similar duties for the War Department during World War I.

Taft also revealed that on Monday he will testify in favor of the bill proposed by Representative May (Democrat), of Kentucky, chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, which would make prostitution in the vicinity of military establishments a Federal offense. Taft stated that he believed the exact determination of the distance within which prostitution would be outlawed by the Government should be left to the War Department. He added, however, that the limit of 10 miles provided in similar legislation during World War I was inadequate in the present era of extensive auto transportation.

Passage of the May bill, and its execution under this recommendation would make prostitution in the District a Federal offense, it was noted.

Taft added that he was not "fooling" himself that the evil could be entirely suppressed. He cited estimates, however, that, in groups of selectees, "15 per cent will get into trouble no matter what you do, and 15 per cent will not get in trouble no matter what opportunities there are." It is the remaining 70 per cent, Taft said, that can be protected by vigorous attempts to eradicate prostitution from nearby areas.

"The only satisfactory way, from the standpoint of morals, health and practical realism is to take every step to suppress prostitution," Taft said. "Segregated areas are out."

NLRB Cites Ford; Strike Fear Fades

"most" of 1,000 Rouge plant employes dismissed during the past seven months. The union contended the men were discharged for union activity, the company that the layoffs were seasonal.

Lay-Offs Unlikely

The company also voiced assurances, Dewey said, that production was now at a level which made it "unlikely that any further lay-off will occur."

He explained further that Harry H. Bennett, Ford personnel director, had consented "to work out any problem with me that warrants my attention, such as reinstatement of men whose work has been satisfactory."

Dewey said an NLRB hearing Monday on U. A. W.-C. I. O. petitions for employe elections would dispose of the union's demands for bargaining rights. The hearing has been ordered since the union's notice was filed.

Other demands listed in the formal notice of intent to strike included "immediate" negotiations with company representatives for a union contract, restriction of lay-offs by a system of strict seniority, and abolition of the company's service department.

President Sends Waterway Agreement to Congress

An agreement with Canada to build a water highway from the Great Lakes to the sea via the St. Lawrence River and to erect giant new power stations on the river's banks was transmitted to the Congress yesterday by President Roosevelt.

The vast project, debated for 15 years, would cost eventually about $500,000,000, of which the United States would pay the major share, perhaps two-thirds.

The agreement can be made effective by a majority vote of both houses of Congress and the Canadian Parliament, in contrast to an earlier proposal which failed of passage in 1934 because it was submitted as a treaty, requiring two-thirds approval of the United States Senate.

Passage Predicted

Opposition immediately developed on Capitol Hill, but Congressional approval was predicted because President Roosevelt has termed the waterway a "vital necessity" for Canadian and United States defense.

The President has said the project would supply power in the St. Lawrence Valley area that would permit expansion of aluminum production and also would allow needed tonnage of naval and merchant vessels to be built in the Great Lakes and floated to sea when the waterway is ready.

The agreement calls for an immediate start on the $286,170,000 job of developing the International Rapids section of the river for power and navigation. Engineers estimate this work could be completed by 1945.

The two governments agreed to complete the seaway development, a 27-foot channel for ocean-going vessels from Lake Superior to Montreal and the Atlantic, by no later than December 31, 1948.

The President merely transmitted the text of the agreement with Canada and said that "in due course" he would introduce legislation to make it effective.

Canada receives credit for $130,000,000 worth of work already done in digging the Welland Canal, a link in the proposed waterway. New York State is to pay $90,000,000 because of benefits it is expected to receive.

The plans call for two giant power stations, one on each side of the river near Messina, N. Y., each developing 1,100,000 horsepower. In addition, there will be a third station on the Niagara River developing 787,500 horsepower.

The total of 2,987,500 horsepower compares with the maximum of 2,700,000 horsepower developed by Grand Coulee Dam, which will begin operation today in Washington State.

The cost of the work at the International Rapids that will be borne by the Federal Government has been estimated at $116,000,000. In addition, there will be work in digging the seaway above and below the rapids that will cost the Federal Government at least $50,000,000.

Provision has been made for preserving the scenic beauty of Niagara Falls, favored honeymoon resort.

The project is to be administered by a ten-member commission, with half of its members from each of the two countries.

Senator Bridges (Republican), of New Hampshire, has already attacked the project in Congress. Several other Senators have said they would oppose it if it appears to hurt their native States. The Administration has made plain it will muster all its forces behind the multimillion-dollar plan and is confident of winning in Congress on the plea of defense necesity.

Dr. Macatee Defends 'White List'

"Its preparatio nhad nothing whatever to do with G. H. A.

"At the time it was drawn up, Group Health Association was not developed to the point where it could be approved or disapproved, either."

Early in the trial, now in its seventh week in District Court, the prosecution introduced the "white list" as one of its strongest bits of evidence in the case against the medical society and those of its leaders accused of trying to block the launching of G. H. A. and then, when it was started, of seeking to impede its progress.

Dr. Macatee was a member of the society's special subcommittee which conferred on July 26, 1937, with officials of the Home Owners Loan Corporation in an attempt to reach an amicable understanding on the group health issue. It was a $40,000 HOLC grant that launched the project.

While the physician was on the stand, Leahy read to the jury from the stenographic transcript of the conference, in which Dr. Macatee expressed "sympathy with the proposition of spreading the costs of illness to individuals over a large group so that the disasters that come to family budgets may be avoided by that group protection."

Dr. White on Stand

Only other witness at yesterday's session, presided over by Justice James M. Proctor, was Dr. Charles Stanley White. A prominent Washington surgeon, his testimony was concerned mainly with the reasons for denial of privileges to Dr. Raymond E. Selders to practice in George Washington University Hospital.

Dr. Selders, no longer associated with G. H. A., was the cooperative's staff surgeon in 1937.

Dr. White said Dr. Selders was barred from the hospital "for professional reasons," not because he was employed by a medical group which did not have the District Medical Society's approval.

The G. W. U. Hospital staff voted against the surgeon's application after receiving an adverse report from the Washington Academy of Surgery, the witness testified.

To Resume Monday

Earlier in the trial, the academy was dropped from the list of defendants, by directed verdict of Justice Proctor. Others exonerated at the same time were the Harris County (Tex.) Medical Society, of which Dr. Selders was a member, and Drs. J. Rogers Young and Leon J. Martel, of Washington.

"When you voted on the application of Dr. Selders, did you vote to restrain or break up G. H. A.?" Leahy asked Dr. White.

"No," he replied, "I voted to reject him purely on the report of the committee of the Washington Academy of Surgery. I had the utmost confidence they would give him proper examination and investigation."

The trail will be resumed Monday morning. It is probable that the defense will complete presentation of its case next week.

Congressional Battle of Beef Turns to Wool

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

The battle of the beef yesterday widened out into a war over wool—but there wasn't much fighting.

Many Representatives—probably the vast majority—will be surprised to learn that when they passed a $4,000,000,000 Army and Navy appropriation bill yesterday, they also approved a virtual prohibition against the purchase of foreign food and clothing.

The amendment, tacked on by a 19-to-10 vote of the Appropriations Committee a few minutes before the bill was reported out to the House, could apply to Argentine canned beef, but its primary purpose in this particular measure was to stop Army purchases of blankets and clothing made out of imported wool, presumably from Australia.

Beef Ban Still Doubtful

Though the amendment, proposed by Representative Scrugham (Democrat), of Nevada, aroused strong opposition in committee on grounds that it might damage American relations with foreign countries, it evoked virtually no comment on the floor of the House, and was accepted without protest.

Meanwhile, the fate of the ban on Argentine canned beef which the Senate wrote into a naval appropriation bill on Thursday remained in doubt. The prohibition against feeding North American sailors with South American beef was retained on a tie vote, with Vice President Wallace absent because he was entertaining guests at lunch and he didn't think his ballot would be needed.

His failure to break the tie is irrevocable; but an effort to reopen the matter will be made early next week because the clerk inadvertently forgot to count the vote of Senator Russell (Democrat), of Georgia, in favor of the foreign beef.

Question for Conference

A move will be made either to correct the Journal of the Senate or to reconsider the bill itself. In either case, the probable result will be that the measure will go back to the House without the antibeef provision, and consequently the question will have to be fought out in conference because the ban was originally written into the bill by the House.

Representative Scrugham told The Post that in this case his amendment was intended "first to protect the woolgrower"—as the bill contains a $70,000,000 grant for "clothing and equipage."

Though it is so worded that it could also apply to Latin American meats and Japanese fish, it would not have that immediate effect because, according to Acting Chairman Woodrum, of the Appropriations Committee, the present bill carries no funds for foodstuffs.

Signal of Policy

However, Representative Collins (Democrat), of Mississippi, another committee member, noted that it might serve as a signal to the War Department that it was the general policy of Congress that foreign food should not be bought under any appropriation bill.

It is understood that Representatives Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, and O'Neal (Democrat), of Kentucky, led the fight against the proposal in committee, pointing out that no hearings had been held on the subject. It was stated that such an amendment as this might endanger America's "good neighbor" policy and might have unforseeable effects on relations with other countries.

Representative Scrugham, on the other hand, said to reporters that "everybody else is getting a pretty good cut in the defense program, and the only fellow who is getting cracked is the small producer."

It was reported from New York yesterday that Rafael Uranga, director of the Argentine Meat Producers Corporation, said there was a "profundly disagreeable reaction in the Argentine" to the Senate vote on Argentine beef.

"Men of South America must judge speeches proclaiming the good neighbor policy of the Government through its deeds," he added. "This vote is a fact which appears entirely contradictory to those speeches."

Shifts Ordered In D. C. Units At Fort Meade

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Writer

Fort George G. Meade, Md., March 21.—Three men of the District's 121st Engineers have been ordered to school at Fort Belvoir, Va., to take intensive courses in operation of gasoline shovels and bulldozers recently acquired by the regiment, it was announced today. The school begins Monday and runs one week.

The men are Master Sergt. William E. Barry, Headquarters and Service Company; Sergt. Claude M. Sims, Company D, and Sergt. Pete Difilppo, Company C.

Today the Engineer Regiment took advantage of the first day of spring, when the weather coincided with the calendar, to return to their outdoor training schedule. The regiment built wire entanglements and dug trenches in the area set aside for its training.

The District's Twenty-ninth Military Police Company added 26 men from the Field Artillery brigade to its roster today in the move to bring it to its full strength of 185 men. Only 20 of the new men, probably those from the 176th Field Artillery of Pittsburgh, will be added to the company at once, according to Capt. Donald A. Falk, commandnig. Only one barrack building, accommodating 63 men, is available at present, he explained, two others being occupied by the 104th Ordnance Company and Headquarters Company, Twenty-ninth Division.

Four Washington selectees and 15 from nearby Maryland and Virginia have been sent to tactical units, the recruit reception center announced. They are:

Marshall R. Bell, 33 Rhode Island Avenue Northeast, to Twenty-first Engineers (aviation), Langley Field, Va.; Albert Carballo, 419 Randolph Street Northwest, to Seventy-fourth Coast Artillery, Fort Monroe, Va., and Charles N. Allred, 4417 Burlington Place Northwest, and Straty N. Matthews, 1417 Harvard Street Northwest, to Twenty-first Signal Company, Fort Meade.

Those from nearby localities are William Boswell, Upper Marlboro, Md.; Elwood J. Colson, Bowie, Md.; Walter L. Fyffe, Laurel, Md.; Harry W. Stancliff, Lanham, Md.; Aubrey C. Tipton, Cheverly, Md., to Twenty-first Engineers; James W. Ridgeway, Landover, Md., and James W. Swain, Upper Marlboro, Md., to Seventy-fourth Coast Artillery, Fort Monroe, Va.; Joseph F. German, Towson, Md., to Twenty-fifth School Squadron, Lowry Field, Colo.; Vernon N. Simmons, Jr., Hagerstown, Md., to Signal Corps, Replacement Center, Fort Monmouth, N. J.; Aramis T. Guy, Landover, Md.; William Hallman, Jr., Poolesville, Md.; Arthur R. Hawkins, Brentwood, Md.; Oscar A. Lefeged, Rockville, Md.; Henry D. N. Y. Bus Drivers Ratify Pact

New York, March 21 (AP).—Wildly cheering members of the Transport Workers Union (C. I. O.) today ratified an agreement ending the strike of 3,500 bus drivers and maintenance men which since March 10 has tied up routes of two bus companies serving 900,000 riders daily.

They booed every mention of Mayor LaGuardia's name, as well as those of bus company officials. Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine and two members of the mayor's fact-finding committee which effected the agreement last night at city hall. The plan provides that the union's demands for wage boosts be arbitrated.

Draft Takes Man Who Favors Reich

Chicago, March 21 (INS).—Kurt Trampusch, 26, a German who has been in the United States since 1936, refused today to take the Selective Service oath when he was examined by his local board.

Capt. Leigh Johnson, induction officer, ruled the German would have to take the year's training anyway, and said the oath was not obligatory. Trampusch filed a declaration of intention to become a citizen a year after he entered this country, but declared today he felt his "allegiance is with Germany."

Grand Coulee Dam Begins Producing Electricity Today

Grand Coulee, Wash., March 21 (AP).—Grand Coulee Dam—seven years abuilding and the biggest thing ever made by man—will go to work tomorrow.

In simple ceremonies, switches will be thrown between 1 and 1:30 p. m. (E. S. T.) to start water wheels of the 10,000-kilowatt turbines churning the energy of falling water into the first electric power from this project.

As the first Grand Coulee electricity energizes the 235-mile transmission line to Bonneville, there will come into being one of the largest integrated power systems in the West.

From Bonneville project on the lower Columbia River, this Grand Coulee energy (a reduced load of 150,000 volts) will be switched over the 40-mile line to the Federal Power Administration's substation in Vancouver, Wash.

There it will become part of the stream of power for the plants of the Aluminum Co. of America, nearby; the Pacific Carbide & Alloys Co., at Portland, and homes, farms and other industries served by Bonneville in western Washington and Oregon.

Each step will be broadcast over a national radio network.

Cambridge Mayor, Builder Sentenced For Conspiracy

Cambridge, Mass., March 21 (AP).—Mayor John W. Lyons of Cambridge and Paul Mannos, Brookline contractor, were sentenced today to three to four years each in State prison for bribery and conspiracy.

A stay of execution of the sentences was granted pending appeals to the State Supreme Court, but Judge Harold P. Williams stipulated that during this period Lyons must not function as mayor.

Lyons and Mannos were convicted by a Superior Court jury of more than 40 bribery and conspiracy counts each after architects and engineers testified they "kicked back" as much as a third of the fees they received for work on the City of Cambridge's $2,000,000 building program.

Money to Finish Stone Mountain Project Available

Atlanta, March 21 (AP).—The way was cleared today for completion of the Stone Mountain Confederate memorial "within the next three or four years," with sufficient Federal money available for the work.

Yesterday the Georgia Senate completed action on a bill authorizing a State park authority whose purpose would be the completion of the memorial as a self-liquidating project.

Goal Attained In Boys Club Fund Drive

Victory was reported yesterday by the Metropolitan Police Boys Club in its 1941 drive for funds. At a luncheon in the National Press Club, solicitors reported $101,868.

Under chairmanship of Charles B. Dulcan, sr., the campaign began on February 13 with a goal of $100,000 to be reached by March 11. On the latter date it was discovered the fund lacked $18,000, and it was decided to extend the drive for ten days.

Police were responsible for more than one-third of the total collections. Of $13,588 reported yesterday they were responsible for $8,463.

Among contributors reported yesterday was the D. C. Fire Department with $900.

Dulcan, in summarizing this year's activities, said the campaign had been conducted at a saving of $900 over last year's campaign. He thanked newspapers, radio stations, department stores and other concerns which aided in publicizing the campaign.

Morris Cafritz, president of the Boys Club, praised the leadership of Dulcan and Gordon Leech, secretary. "A few years ago," declared Cafritz, "the Boys Club was started by Maj. Brown and today we have one of the finest organizations in the city."

The meeting was concluded with presentation of a basket of flowers to Dulcan and three cheers for the victory.

Defense Bonds

The new savings bonds which the Treasury is preparing to put on sale May 1 are designed to tap the savings of the people in a way that will, as Secretary Morgenthau says, "best safeguard the Nation against the evils of inflation and . . . give all American citizens a sense of taking a direct part in the defense of the country." The terms of the offer should make the bonds attractive investments for persons of small means whose savings deposits are earning abnormally low rates of interest at present. With appeals to patriotism as well as to thrift, it is hoped that bond sales will amount to several billion dollars.

The issues will be of three types: 1. Ten-year defense savings bonds to be sold at a discount, replacing the so-called "baby" bonds; 2. Savings bonds of larger denominations maturing in 12 years, likewise to be sold on a discount basis to both individuals and corporations; 3. Twelve-year savings bonds, issued at par, carrying an interest rate of 2½ per cent. Since none of these issues will be transferable and all must be held until maturity to obtain the full rate of interest, it is probable that buying will be largely confined to individuals. Non-interest bearing stamps reminiscent of the days of World War 1 are also to be sold in denominations ranging from 10 cents to $5. The stamp sale is obviously designed to encourage saving by young people and others within the low income groups. Even though the actual returns from stamp sales may be small, the moral effect of this plan commends it.

Heretofore, the Treasury has relied much too heavily for safety upon bond purchases by commercial banks. The consequent excessive concentration of Government bonds in bank portfolios is dangerous because the banks buy these bonds on credit by creating deposits for account of the Government. Thus they add to the community's purchasing power and provide a basis for inflationary price advances. When individuals save to buy bonds, however, they have just that much less purchasing power to devote to the purchase of other things. So there is no inflationary addition to purchasing power. Furthermore, in an emergency such as now confronts us, the act of saving assists our preparations for defense by causing those who save to do without nonessential things in order that the Government may obtain essential defense weapons.

Citizens who respond to the Treasury's appeal will not only be doing themselves a good turn by securing an attractive investment; they will also be assisting the Treasury's efforts to borrow by safe methods rather than inflationary methods which entail a dangerous expansion of bank credit.

Realism On Deportation

The House should act promptly on the Administration-approved bill that would enable the Department of Justice to deal realistically with deportation problems. Under present conditions stern measures are required to protect our country against undesirable aliens. But transportation difficulties and the perils of sea voyages on ships subject to attack, as well as the refusal of countries of origin to admit deportees, frequently make enforcement of deportation orders impracticable. The House Judiciary Committee has therefore approved the Attorney General's proposal that undesirable aliens shall be held in confinement indefinitely until deportation becomes possible. Law-abiding aliens awaiting deportation would be treated indulgently, while aliens of good moral character illegally in the country would, as at present, receive special consideration.

The bill also specifically provides that aliens belonging to the Communist Party or Fascist organizations shall be deportable unless there is substantial reason to believe that their activities will not endanger the national safety. At present, membership in the Communist Party or the German-American Bund constitutes no ground in itself for deportation. The law simply provides that members of organizations advocating the overthrow of the Government by force and violence shall be deportable. The result is, as Mr. Jackson said in urging clarification of the statutes, that the Department of Justice has been compelled to try over and over again the issue as to the character of the Communist Party. The present bill carries a definite declaration of policy which would give the alien "a clearer rule to live by, the Department a clearer mandate to enforce and the courts a uniform rule to apply."

Labor And Mr. Ford

Reports from Detroit that Henry Ford may abandon his untenable policy of having no dealings with any labor union throw the spotlight on a phase of the defense problem that is no less disturbing than jurisdictional strikes. A few large companies are still denying their employes the rights guaranteed to them under the National Labor Relations Act. Wherever that situation exists, the primary responsibility for labor disputes which disrupt or threaten to delay production for defense rests upon the employer.

The Labor Relations Act has been in effect for five and a half years. Certainly that has been time enough for every employer to adjust his policies in accord with its provisions. Collective bargaining should have become the established method of adjusting disputes over wages, hours and working conditions long ago. Employers who are still trying to evade their clear obligations to negotiate contracts with their employes are not only out of key with the times in which they live; they are also encouraging strife and internal division in a period of international crisis.

Less than two weeks ago Mr. Ford reiterated his aversion for labor unions and indicated that he will not bargain with them. That position is no less arbitrary than the demands of some unions for contracts that would exclude all nonunion men or members of rival unions from defense work. Mr. Ford cannot cling to that policy without rendering his country a grave disservice in time of emergency. The Ford plants are urgently needed for the production of weapons for ourselves and countries actually fighting for their existence. But the Government cannot reasonably continue to place orders with Mr. Ford if he persists in violating the law. It is clear that the Government should not attempt to use its immense purchasing power to enforce routine orders of the NLRB. But outright defiance of the law over a long period creates another issue. Such an attitude leaves official Washington no alternative to the adoption of drastic countervailing measures.

Officials of the Ford Co. are now reported to be meeting with representatives of the United Automobile Workers, and about 1,000 men are reported to have been reinstated. On the other hand, the NLRB yesterday issued another complaint charging the company with unfair labor practices. Seven other cases against Ford plants have previously been filed, and in several instances the company has been ordered to bargain collectively with its employes. Hearings on the union's petition for an election to designate collective bargaining agents for the Lincoln and River Rouge plants will begin next Monday. We hope this will lead to an understanding, but in any event stoppage of work in these factories for any length of time is unthinkable.

Friction might have been reduced if the NLRB had moved long ago to give Ford employes a chance to elect collective bargaining representatives of their own choosing. Of course, the board has been busy on other cases laid at its door, but it can scarcely hope to curb unfair labor practices in plants where no machinery for collective bargaining exists. Further delay in giving employes in major defense industries an opportunity to express their wishes as to collective bargaining agents should not be countenanced. And wise employers will cooperate in this undertaking. If some maintain a stiff-necked attitude in spite of official pleas for unity in meeting the present menace to our security, they may soon find Uncle Sam in control of their plants under terms largely of his own making.

Men Of Property

Readers of the classic Victorian novels must often have wondered why the British are "taking" with much aplomb such destruction of their homes and institutions as must have just occurred in Glasgow and Plymouth. England is often thought to be full of Forsytes, or the men of property of whom John Galsworthy wrote. And loving property generally goes with owning it. It is evident, however, that the British are not as property-minded as the French. The French couldn't endure the thought that Paris might be razed to the ground by Nazi bombs. One reason is that Paris is far more France than London is England. How the Germans, who have a profound sense of property, will react to reciprocal bombings has still to be determined.

There are those who suggest that the Germans are really too property-minded to "take it" a l'Anglais, but so much has had to be unlearned by the lessons of the war that all past experience seems treacherous. Who, for instance, would have thought that the fiery Serbs would hesitate and that the milder Greeks would throw themselves recklessly into the breach? Similarly the Germans may see the sticks and stones which represent German stability fall without flinching, though they would be less than human if they did not reflect upon the background of Hitler's promises of immunity.

As to the British, a reading of the foreign authorities on England rather than England's own novelists might have prepared us for the superb fortitude of the British toward property loss. Taine, the French historian, is the great writer on British character, and this is what he said about the British of the seventeenth century: "England is made. She knows it and they (the nations of the continent) know it. Such as this country is, based on the whole national history and on all the national instincts, it is more capable than any other people in Europe of transforming itself without recasting, and of devoting itself to its future without renouncing its past." Taine's observation is proving to be equally true of the Britain of today. Now as in the past she clings with devotion to her past, but to intangibles more than tangibles. And it is this sense of proportion that is helping the people to adjust themselves to the needs of the changing times and plan a future better and brighter than what has gone before.

The Absent One

At just about the time that Vice President Wallace was eating his roast duck last Thursday, Dr. Charles C. Burlingame, the eminent psychiatrist of Hartford, was observing with wonder and admiration the members of the judiciary committee of Connecticut's House of Representatives. He notes particularly the marvelous spirit which enabled them to bear up for hours on end under a bombardment of irrelevant oratory.

The committee was considering the question of whether certain alcoholics should be sent to jail or to a hospital. As witness succeeded witness, Dr. Burlingame began to scan the legislators with a professional eye for signs of stress and incipient nervous breakdown. To his amazement he could discover none. The committeemen were just sitting there patiently and placidly listening. "I don't see how you can do it," said Dr. Burlingame to one of them. "I would be a patient in my own institution in no time."

Dr. Burlingame concludes that legislators do not become insane because they possess neuropsychological stability in a degree far beyond the average attained by the rest of us. If we understand Dr. Burlingame, the Connecticut legislators have made a perfect adjustment to the realities of their environment. Under the kind of pressures to which politicians are subjected, a really instable individual soon would jump out the window or at least begin biting the committee table. Even a normal individual, with a tendency toward what we call nowadays escapism, might think of an excuse to slip out for a breath of air or something.

Of course, the mere fact that Mr. Wallace was in the Senators' dining room with his mind on duck when he should have been in the Senate chamber with his mind on beef doesn't prove him an escapist. Doubtless it was just a matter of being still rather new to the job. But we dare say any Connecticut legislator could have told him that when the beef may be tied inside, it is always more satisfactory than trying to tie it outside.

What Is Written—

In the current number of the Yale Review Mr. Stephen Vincent Benet discusses the influence of the written word upon the destinies of men and nations. Words are of course at best but embodiments of thoughts, but merely by virtue of being written they open vistas that never after can be permanently obscured. And in testimony of this Mr. Benet reminds us of the original daring and prophetic power of some of the words that are part of our American heritage.

In other words, what is written is written and human aspirations once embodied in words can never be wholly defeated. That is true among other things of the formularies of democracy and political freedom and equality which now stand in such peril. The very word "citizen," as Mr. Benet reminds us, "perpetuates a dream as old as the city states of Greece and as new as last week's election."

The great words of great men of our own past are there to be reinvoked. "But . . . we need new words also—great ones—to match the present and to build for the future that must be. I do not know by whom these words will be made. . . . And yet if we believe in freedom, if we believe in life, they must be made." All this is well said. But the sad thing is that we have grown distrustful of words, perhaps too distrustful to be exalted or inspired by them. In our dread of rhetoric and bombast we seem to have lost the power of eloquence.

SLANDER UNSPOKEN

The word will not be spoken. It will lie
A while unuttered on the tongue, then die

And be forgotten. From the lips a tide
Of words less perilous will rush to hide

The tongue's sharp longing and the mind's desire
To cast the word abroad like sudden fire

And marvel at the havoc. So it dies,
Stilled on the tongue and shouted by the eyes.

Economic Picture

For several weeks we have listened to Congressmen emphasize the economic risk which faces us; we see 13 countries under Nazi control and 5,000,000 tons of shipping sunk; we hear of the destruction to England's dock facilities; yet farm Senators want a higher farm parity and speculators are booming domestic commodities, thinking—despite the above condition—large quantities can be imported by England under lend-lease procedure.

The fact is that our normal export trade has vanished and, much as we should like to give our surpluses to England, she cannot possibly afford to increase rations or allot more than a relatively very small quantity of tonnage to carry our food products; besides which it is her bounden duty to give priority to Canada's wheat.

World importers' normal annual requirements of wheat are approximately 550,000,000 bushels. By the end of next July, Canada and America will have a wheat surplus of 950,000,000 bushels, and their very promising new crops seem likely to increase that surplus by approximately half a million bushels. Therefore a strong probability exists that on this continent there will be a surplus of wheat sufficient to supply the world for almost three years. The world export situation for cotton is on a parallel.

The present prices for our farm commodities are not only good, but considering the circumstances, unbelievably so, and our farmers would be wise to let the speculator assume the burden of his optimistic reasoning.

France since 1934 has been exporter rather than importer of wheat. She absorbs the grain surplus of her North African colonies, imports a little Canadian grain, but exports wheat and flour. It is true that the 1939 crop was disappointing, but with the addition of their large accumulated wheat supply, there was in France at the time of the invasion a redundant supply, and if there is a shortage now it is simply because Germany confiscated the stocks and has failed to distribute them.

Two Blockades

The Hoover plan to feed the conquered nations of Europe has serious flaws, which considerably reduce its fairness and therefore its chances of success.

Hoover forgot entirely that Germany is trying as hard as it can to starve England. He should consider that this attempt may be successful. Certainly the figure for last week's shipping losses would tend to show that the much boasted campaign is getting under way.

His plan should include a condition on the part of Germany that food ships be permitted to go through the German blockade to England. Can anyone imagine the Nazis agreeing to such a condition, and yet it certainly is a fair one? What's sauce for the gooose is sauce for the gander. If England is to give up its greatest weapon against Hitler, Hitler should be asked to give up his greatest weapon against England. BENJAMIN FRAZIER.

Human Resources Vs. Physical Resources

Have read with interest, in The Post, March 19, the letter by Lloyd M. Graves entitled "The World's Great Undeveloped Human Resources."

"The world's greatest remaining virgin resource is its enormous masses of undeveloped people," says Mr. Graves. "More than half the population of the earth is included in the 'backward,' the suppressed and the 'underprivileged' scattered about its surface."

So far I can follow the author. An average real income per worker of less than $10 per week is the lot of 81 per cent of the world's population, according to Colin Clark, director of the Queensland Bureau of Industry, Australia, in his new book, "The Conditions of Economic Progress."

It may be true that "the economic potential of these people—their potential producing and consuming power—is sufficient to lift the whole of the industrial civilization to new and uncontemplated heights," but where are the natural resources coming from to make this potential realized in fact?

Mr. Graves says "there are vast untouched physical resources of land, minerals and forests in three of the major continents." There may be considerable untouched natural resources in the world, but they can hardly be called "vast." And to pull some 81 per cent of the 2,000,000,000 people up to a healthy and efficient standard of living, the untouched natural resources of the world would have to be vast, indeed.

Mr. Graves has expressed some excellent ideas on world cooperation in the future, but it is doubtful whether he has thought through the problem of population. As a sample study of American industrialization raising the standards of living of a "backward" people, let us take the case of Puerto Rico. The Interdepartmental Committee has recently made public a report on Puerto Rico which furnishes us with considerable food for thought.

Under the Spanish regime Puerto Rico passed through periods of want and despair, and seldom, if ever, enjoyed general prosperity. So complete was the transformation of the island's economy which resulted from the coming of the industrial revolution to Puerto Rico under the aegis of American capital and under United States economic policy, that many contemporaries thought it was the dawn of a new era.

But, this report goes on to say, while the standard of living on the whole appears to be somewhat higher than it was 30 years ago, it is probable that since the World War conditions have grown gradually worse.

"So long as present population growth continues, there is little or no prospect, whatsoever of so increasing the supply of available resources or of so improving the sum total of commercial opportunities of the island's agriculture, industry and trade that a satisfactory balance between social needs and means of support can be struck; the necessity of turning or 'bending' these trends becomes the most vital issue in Puerto Rico. That does not mean that a single stone should be left unturned in the attempt to improve and enlarge the earning power of the people of Puerto Rico; it does mean that, no matter how many stones are turned, a balance between needs and means cannot be struck without a drastic change in present population trends; in other words, without widespread and determined resort to birth control." (Page 21 of the report.)

If this has proved the experience of bringing industrialization to a small island of less than 2,000,000 souls right under the nose of the richest and most highly industrialized country in the world, think what the problem would be, for example, in India and China, which are large, distant, and contain nearly half the population of the entire world. GUY IRVING BURCH.

"Pork Barrel?"

Year after year the opponents of rivers and harbors legislation try to kill it by derision. "Pork barrel," they say; meaning that the bill carries appropriations for projects without merit except political. The astounding thing is that so many believe it, despite the fact that rivers and harbors legislation is entirely free from "pork," by reason of the method of its adoption and enactment, and has been so for a generation.

In the first place, Congress does not appropriate for particular projects. It appropriates lump sums to be spent by the Secretary of War at his selection (and that means at the selection of the chief of engineers, U. S. A.) from a list of approved projects. They are projects that have been certified economically sound after long study by the Corps of Engineers, U. S. A., made first by the district officer, reviewed by his superior, the division engineer; then by the board of engineers for rivers and harbors, and finally by the chief of engineers. No part of the study is perfunctory. Many projects are rejected.

Having passed that test, they go to the Rivers and Harbors Committee of the House, and if approved by them they are incorporated in the rivers and harbors authorization bill, which carries no money. When the bill becomes law they become approved projects, to which the Secretary of War may allot funds when made available by Congress.

There is no form of Government expenditure subjected to closer scrutiny as to its worth. Not to use too strong a word, labeling such legislation "pork barrel" is unscrupulous. To do so is to impugn the integrity of the Corps of Engineers and its chief, the integrity of the Rivers and Harbors Committee and the members of the House and Senate.

Rise And Fall

What an anomaly that we, the children of liberty, should turn, in such startling numbers, to totalitarianism. That's the disease, not the cure. It was always so. They rise, arm, raid humanity in quest of their eternal black ideal of bloodshot glory.

The entire past was lost to it. Socrates, Plato, Galileo, and the other major intellectual lights availed nothing against its scourge. As now, it outlawed, cursed, crucified truth, science, learning.

Then our forefathers, aided by distance and the very ignorance totalitarianism had fostered, established liberty. And in the swift moment of a century and a half, civilization rose from the hand loom stage to the radio era; from the ox-cart to the airplane. Everything above the fagot and stretcher came in that fleeting moment, as against the dismal ages squandered upon totalitarianism.

Don't we know the difference between liberty and slavery? Do we wish to see another six to ten thousand years devoted to slavery and wars? Can't we see that dictator's head jutting from every war cloud? Don't we remember that men were at peace until the scourge of dictators came? Don't we see that history itself is a river of blood flowing from human arteries opened by the swords of dictators? There's danger in this trend toward totalitarianism.

Reminiscence

Piston rods, working up and down and in and out of huge cylinders, fascinated me as I watched them through an open skylight on the Pacific Mail steamship Colon. I wondered why, when a rod went down, it did not punch a hole in the bottom of the vessel. A deck steward explained that the lower ends were fastened to a shaft which turned something around and made the boat go. The odor of grease, oozing from the cylinder heads, caused me to visit the side rail and lean far over. Soon I felt better, and, seated in a canvas steamer chair, I was fanned by a breeze rushing down from a trysail which had been set to steady the ship.

It was the second day out from New York. Four or five days more and we would arrive at Aspinwall, Atlantic terminal of the Panama Railroad. Those canvas lean-back chairs certainly were comfortable, and it was much more pleasant being on deck than in the stuffy stateroom below. Distressing sounds, emanating from rooms near the dining salon, were occasionally heard by persons at table, and these noises were amplified during rough weather.

We were fortunate in having an outside stateroom, with a porthole affording alternate glimpses of ocean and sky as the Colon rolled. Two berths were in that little room, also a cushioned bunk, upon which Mother slept. A candle swung in a gimbal above the washstand. Inserted in the metal cylinder was a spiral spring which caused the candle to rise as the burning wick absorbed wax or tallow.

When entering staterooms before the ship cast loose her moorings, passengers were warned of discomforts to come by green cans with up-and-down lids which were affixed to the sides of berths. On the first morning out, when spray was flying and the porthole occasionally was submerged in foaming water, Mother quoted the line "What are the wild waves saying?" and sister replied with sounds that were unmistakable.

Ours was not what might have been termed a rough passage, but there was plenty movement on and by this small luxury liner in the early 1870's. Occasionally a heavy pitch—the propeller, lifted out of water, would race wildly, causing metal and woodwork to tremble and creak. Racks were on tables for nearly all meals. Frequently soup, or other liquids, would spill onto a passenger; the sound of dishes crashing in the pantry ceased to be a novelty; and one noontime a woman of amplitude, having lost her grip on the railing of the companionway leading to the salon, was caromed from side to side until she came to anchor in the purser's lap.

Arriving in Aspinwall late on an afternoon, the Colon was moored alongside a pier, and passengers were invited to remain on board until next morning, when the train for Panama was due to leave at 9 o'clock. No one refused the invitation. Judged from what was seen from the deck, Aspinwall was not a pleasant place.

Soon after the ship tied up, a motley crowd gathered near the pier; men and women of many shades, from light brown to jet black, all scantily attired. By next morning the curiosity of the native Colombians evidently had been appeased, or they had slept late, for only a few were at the depot, and these were mainly women who walked along the platform, balancing on their heads baskets of bamboo splints in which were small, golden-yellow, crescent-shaped bananas.

Coupled in memory with the lingering taste of those bananas were two happenings during that train ride across the Isthmus of Panama. A man had said something that caused me to ask questions of the brakeman, and when the train stopped for 10 minutes and I was permitted to walk along the tracks, I stooped down, intent upon discovery. Mother, watching through an open window, asked, "What are you looking for?"

"Bones," was the solemn reply.

"What bones?" she demanded.

"The brakeman told me that these wood things are ties, and the man sitting near us said a Chinaman had died for every tie on this railroad. I'm looking for their bones."

"Come into the train," said Mother, who told me that the railroad had been built by coolie labor, and so many persons had died, due to the climate, that what the passenger said was a figurative if not a literal truth.

The train had started while Mother was talking about the unfortunate coolies, and soon she had more explaining to do. A woman two seats away said in a shrill voice, "I have ridden on canal boats and have seen locks. Don't tell me that locks or the strongest walls could hold back the Pacific Ocean, which is 6 feet higher than the Atlantic. If a way is opened across here it will bury this country, and the great wave might even reach New York."

Mother whispered, "Pay no attention to such foolish talk." She then explained that many persons in the United States were talking about building a canal across the Isthmus—a canal which would be big enough for oceangoing vessels to pass through.

If memory serves me right, a Western Representative advanced much the same argument in Congress when preliminary steps leading to a canal survey were being discussed. C. M. WETMORE.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Dykstra Board

THE EXECUTIVE ORDER setting up the new National Defense Mediation Board "declares it to be the duty of employers and employes" to make "every possible effort to settle all their disputes without any interruption in production or transportation." It is true, as Representative Sumners, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, says, that the board has "no power" to enforce this duty. It is true that a declaration of the President does not create duties which have the force of law. But Congress and the President can make laws. And since the President has made this declaration, and since Mr. Sumner's committee is studying and will very wisely continue to study legislation to enforce it, and since Congress and the public would support such legislation, there will exist very great compulsion on all concerned to arrive at voluntary agreements. When it is known that a failure to reach voluntary agreements would lead quickly to legal compulsion, the inducement to reach voluntary agreements is very much increased.

LIPPMANN

For while under this arrangement the right to strike, the right to lock out, the right to refuse conciliation are not outlawed, the practical situation is that these rights will be suspended by law if they are in fact exercised. The success of the board will determine whether legal compulsion is necessary. But because legal compulsion could so readily be placed behind the machinery of the board, the prospects of a voluntary industrial peace should be considerable. The board itself is excellently manned and the members will command public respect. They will operate on the principle that stoppages are morally outlawed and will be legally outlawed as well if, nevertheless, stoppages occur.

THE FINAL PARAGRAPH of the President's executive order is the most important part of it. For here is to be found the declaration of duty which Congress can, if necessary, make a legal duty. Here is the provision that workers and managers must give "sufficient advance notice of any threatened interruptions to continuous production as will permit exploration of all avenues of possible settlement so as to avoid strikes, stoppages, or lockouts"—in other words here is provided that "cooling off period" which Congress will, if necessary, make compulsory. The new organization is so arranged, therefore, that the duties which are "declared" by an executive order of the President could speedily be enacted into law if labor and management do not voluntarily carry out these duties. In the present temper of Congress and the country any evidence that the board could not enforce these duties by moral suasion would be followed quickly by legal compulsion.

In an environmnt of this sort we may hope, keeping our fingers crossed, that voluntary agreement will work. The field work is entrusted to the United States Conciliation Service in the Department of Labor which is under the direction of Mr. John A. Steelman. This is a very competent and experienced organization. It is generally understood, for example, that the strike in the Vultee plant would never have gotten so nearly out of hand had Mr. Steelman been brought in much earlier in the dispute. In any event it is this organization which will have to do the primary work of keeping peace, backed by Mr. Dykstra's board, which in its turn will be backed by public opinion and the prospect of legislation by Congress. If legal action is eventually necessary, the system under which it would have to operate would be just about the same system as we now have. The Conciliation Service would still have to be the primary agent of the Government. There would still have to be a board to determine when the law had to be invoked. And the law would have to prescribe the duties which the executive order "declares."

WHAT WE NEED, then, to realize is that while this system is in fact or can readily be made adequate for avoiding stoppages in industry, there are on the horizon problems which it will not be possible for labor and management in particular plants or even industries to solve. These are the problems which are bound to arise from the tremendous transformation of the whole economy which the defense program requires. Such a transformation is certain to dislocate many things: the supply and demand for materials and labor by industries and by localities, prices, the costs of production, established markets, conditions of employment, rents, housing, apprenticeship.

Out of these dislocations there are bound to develop problems—yet problems which neither the management or the workers in a particular industry can solve. They will require measures which belong to the general conduct of the whole defense effort: the fiscal measures to prevent inflation and to distribute the burden of sacrifice, the administration of priorities, of the rationing of resources, of general and of specific prices.

THESE MEASURES are beyond the province of the Dykstra Board. Yet if it is conducted wisely and with foresight, this board will in its daily work quickly become aware of the need of the larger measures, and because it is so competent and so representative it should develop into something like an industrial advisory council to which the Administration and the Congress and the public would look for guidance. Thus it could fill a want which is quite serious in Washington—a want arising from the fact that because authority is so distributed among departments which are so burdened with administration, there is no place where large general questions of policy are adequately considered.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Fore!

AT FORT BRAGG.

The guns which new soldiers of the American Army are learning to shoot and their special purposes suggests a vague comparison with the odd-shaped hoes, rakes and apple pickers that a golfer thinks he needs to flog a little white ball under varying conditions. There are some who never knew anything about golf and others who have grown up and forgotten the sweet, agonizing mischief of the era of wonderful nonsense, and perhaps to them this illustration of the nature and purpose of the guns will have no meaning at all. But it isn't my duty to teach the basic facts of life. They are supposed to know, when I say that the soldier's personal rifle, whether the old reliable Springfield or the new automatic Garand, is the equivalent of the golfer's putter, that I am speaking of the golf stick that counts most at the instant when the decision is to be made. It is the precision weapon. The rifle is the gun that wins the hole on the green after the artillery have blasted away with their big clubs. It is the weapon that shoots the individual soldier, personally, after which he cannot capture the position, even though the artillery has churned it upside down. This army has or will have altogether four of these caliber .30 weapons — the Springfield, the Garand, the Browning automatic and that playful old friend of the prohibition days, the Thompson, or Tommy gun.

THE TOMMY was rejected by our Army along toward the end of the last war as being inaccurate at certain ranges and, being thus snubbed, turned to a life of crime. It was first respectabilized, I believe, when the British, in their hour of great need, last summer, let out a yell for anything that would even make a noise, and our people sent them, among other relics, a lot of Tommies, presumably taken out of the property rooms of our police stations. Anyway, the Tommy has indubitably been respectabilized, and the objection to his inaccuracy probably was reconciled by the fact that very few soldiers can shoot accurately with any gun beyond the Tommy's accurate range.

Incidentally, the .45 automatic pistol is being abandoned because it is more like a cannon than a one-hand gun and really ought to have wheels under it. Very few men can hit a painted bull on the side of a barn at ten paces with the .45. This pistol was adopted many years ago on the suggestion of Lieut. Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, now retired but then a captain of infantry, that the American Army should have a pistol which would knock a man off his feet by impact.

Capt. Bullard had been slashed across the shirt with the expiring lunge of a Filipino fanatic armed only with an Oriental blade after Bullard had shot him four or five times with an old-style .38 revolver. Though wounded, the Filipino kept coming, and if he had kept coming just a few inches farther before he died, Robert Lee Bullard probably would have ended his career obscurely dead in a jungle. But impact won't be there to knock him down if you can't hit him.

THE AMERICAN Infantry Battalion alone now has a variety of weapons increasing in bore from the soldier's personal rifle or putter, shooting a slug about as big around as a fat pencil up to mortars of 60 and 81 millimeters, which are about a No. 5 iron. They give plenty of height and accuracy and firm sitdown and from a mile to about 2 miles of distance.

The 60 is about 2½ inches thick and the 81 more than 3 inches thick, and both are packed with commotion and malice, but just what conditions of rough or fairway they are intended for I haven't heard. They would seem to be trench-fighting tools, but everybody says trench fighting is stylish no longer. Even the fashionable shrapnel of the old war is disappearing.

But in between the personal rifles and the mortars there are a couple of approaching weapons. They are the caliber 50 and the 37-millimeter rapid-fire guns for antitank purposes which might knock out the enemy tanks but, again, might not, although our boys seem to think the 37-millimeter would. That one shoots a thing about the size of a pickle and about eight inches long, and if it hits a tank fair, it will walk in or, anyway, knock one of its shoes off and make it spin around in one place. But the old French 75, somewhat revised but shooting the same old concentrate of meanness and noise, is the one the new Army is really counting on for antitank work. That one will knock a tank's brains and tripe right out the far side, and they are using it flat, like a shoulder rifle.

So even in the infantry outfits there are weapons rising in size to more than 3 inches, while, on this post, the artillery are firing drivers, brassies and sandwedge types of guns that toss shells 'way to hell and gone, up to almost 10 inches across. They don't have to worry about the neighbors' children, their chickens or the wash, either. There is plenty of fairway here in a reservation 24 miles by 12 without a habitation on the range.

The Labor Situation

By Mark Sullivan

The New Board's Chances For Success

THE EFFECTIVENESS of the new Labor Mediation Board appointed by President Roosevelt cannot be fairly judged until after it has had a chance to function. The board includes men of fine reputation and high ability. It is accurate to say, however, that this move by the President is not universally considered to go to the heart of the need.

SULLIVAN

The new board will not have power to function about any strike until after two conditions have been fulfilled. First, the existing Conciliation Service of the Department of Labor must have attempted conciliation and must have failed. Second, Secretary of Labor Perkins must certify that the strike "threatens to . . . obstruct the production . . . of materials essential to national defense." Only after this step by Secretary Perkins can the new board take notice of any strike. It is tenable to say that persons familiar with Secretary Perkins' attitude think she would be unlikely to turn a case over to the new board unless the circumstances were extreme indeed. And after the new board gets jurisdiction, and after it investigates and comes to a decision, its only power is to make a report. The presumption is that a report made by a board of this character would have so much weight with public opinion as to cause surrender by either party to a strike that the board finds at fault.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S present move has not ended the disposition, within Congress, to handle the strike situation by formal legislation. But it is fair to doubt whether legislation directed specifically against strikes during war or preparation for war would squarely meet the need. A statute inspired by present conditions would run risk of two faults. It might be more repressive than is called for; and at the same time it might fail to meet squarely the permanent need—which is revision of the National Labor Relations Act.

The basic fault of the Labor Act, passed in 1935, has been described by Mr. Raymond Moley who, in the early days of the New Deal, was a White House intimate. Mr. Moley is not writing of the Labor Act at all—he is writing about the Securities Exchange Act. But what Mr. Moley says of the latter act was true of much of the legislation, including the Labor Act, that Congress passed during the period when Congress was enacting New Deal legislation without scrutinizing it closely:

"This was the first appearance of the strategy that Cohen and Corcoran (White House intimates) were to use so often—ramming a too severe bill through one house and then using it for trading purposes in the other. Corcoran was to say of it 'when you want one loaf of bread, you've got to ask for two.' And the adaption of this technique was to be one of the chief factors that undermined Congressional confidence in Mr. Roosevelt . . . When outraged Congressmen eventually began to realize that F. D. R.'s requests for legislation were not to be taken at face value, that he was continuously asking for more than he wanted or expected to get, their reactions toward the White House changed."

NOT ONLY WAS the Labor Act too drastic to be practicable. Of the three original members of the Labor Board appointed by Mr. Roosevelt, two were so extreme that when their terms ended, Mr. Roosevelt did not reappoint them because, as everybody assumed, he knew the reappointments would not be confirmed by the Senate.

After the Labor Act had been in existence some three years, there was a strong feeling that the act needed amendment. The feeling was shared by the American Federation of Labor, which asserted, among other charges, that the Labor Board was biased in favor of C. I. O. Processes designed to amend the act began in the Congress that met in January, 1939. Proposed amendments were sent to the Labor Committees of both the Senate and House. Both committees began hearings, which were characterized by postponements. In the House, the feeling that its Labor Committee was not sufficiently expeditious reached a point at which the House took an unusual step.

The House took the matter out of the hands of its Labor Committee and put it in the hands of a special committee to investigate the Labor Board. This committee held hearings for several months and recommended amendments to the act. The amendments were passed by the House June 7, 1940, by a vote of 2 to 1—258 to 129. This action of the House came at a time when practically all the members were, or recently had been, candidates in the primaries for renomination and were about to begin their campaigns for re-election in November. The action of the House was proof that a 2-to-1 majority of the members felt that the Labor Act ought to be amended and felt that the public supported them in this view.

THE AMENDMENTS were prevented from enactment by the fact that in the Senate the Committee on Labor never reported them out. When the recent Congress came to an end last January without enactment of the amendments, there was a strong disposition in the new Congress to begin the process of amendment anew. But as the war came nearer to America it was urged that a domestic matter so controversial as the Labor Act ought not to be brought up. This argument for inaction has so far prevailed. Meanwhile arise the many strikes which have caused the present condition.

The Gallup Poll

Transfer of 40 More Destroyers to Britain Favored by Majority as Security Investment

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., March 21.—If one of the early transfers under the Lease-Lend Act should be the turning over of some additional United States destroyers to Great Britain the transaction would have the support of a majority of the American people, a Nation-wide Institute survey indicates today. Such a transfer is now conceived as part of the "aid-short-of-war" which United States sentiment has long favored, analysis of the comments shows.

British observers have reported a need for speedy warcraft that can range the Atlantic sea lanes and protect convoys of food and war materials for the British Isles.

Wendell Willkie told members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee last month that America should send five or ten destroyers a month.

The Institute survey shows that it apparently makes little difference to the general public whether such available destroyers are sent at the rate of a few a month or in one large transfer or 40 or so.

To obtain a measure of public sentiment on the issue the Institute asked the question in two different ways. The results, put to average cross-sections, show an average of 2 to 1 favoring the transfer among those with definite opinions:

Would you approve or disapprove of the United States leasing about 40 additional destroyers to Britain?

APPROVE	52%
DISAPPROVE	26
UNDECIDED	22

Would you approve or disapprove of the United States leasing about five destroyers a month to Britain?

APPROVE	55%
DISAPPROVE	25
UNDECIDED	20

It is worth noting that the transfer of destroyers is approved by virtually the same-sized majority which has favored passage of the lease-lend bill itself.

As the bill passed the Senate early this month Institute studies showed 56 per cent for passage, 27 per cent opposed and the remaining 17 per cent either with qualifications to their answers or without definite opinions.

The average American views both measures in the same light, the survey answers show.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Saga Of Pelicans

"I watched the pelicans flying in formation over the water. I am sure they play follow the leader, for when the leader dips all the others dip. I wondered whether there was some rule about the way they caught fish, otherwise it seemed to me as if the leader would grow fat and the others grow lean."—Mrs. Roosevelt writing from Goldep Beach, Fla.

Dear Mrs. Roosevelt:

I saw the above observation on pelicans in your column and, as a student of pelicans all my life, I thought I would like to help you get the low-down on pelican life. I lived among pelicans for many years. In fact some of my best friends are pelicans.

Let me assure you that they follow no rules or regulations. They do not play follow the leader in the accepted sense; in fact, the leader of a bunch of pelicans is in a tough spot himself. He is practically under observation. The leader-pelican is more puzzled about the whole business than you are, Mrs. Roosevelt. Every little while he dips just to see if he is still being watched.

The head pelican gets out there by no will of his own. It's all done by a lot of trick shuffling and the pelican that finds himself the front pelican has just been out-foxed, or maybe I should say out-pelicaned. He is just being tailed and there is no respect, confidence or idealism connected with it.

To catch fish is a pelican's main aim in life, which is true of human beings. Pelicans are the pigs of all feathered creatures, and if they had a New Deal in the pelican world it would stand only for bigger pouches and the abolition of stomach-aches. A pelican has the appetite and greed of a ward politician.

If you had visited Sunday Isles fishing pier a few hundred yards from your Florida vacation house, you would have seen what a fool and hog a pelican is. It has no brains whatever and thinks through its stomach like a Louisiana aspirant to public office. On the end of this pier you would have seen dozens of fat pelicans in the water below, grabbing at the bait attached to the lines of fishermen trying to do some fishing. These pelicans grab the bait, hook and all, and are then hauled up to the pier by the angry fishermen who have to tear the pouches of the pelicans in order to get the hook and line free again. Mr. Pelican is then freed, but does he learn his lesson? He does not.

He returns and hooks himself all over again. You can see pelicans there with their mouths and pouches torn so full of rips that they are porous, yet they stay there day after day.

Now getting back to your thought about rules among pelicans, let me say that it is strictly a case of every pelican for himself, with no commissions, boards or controls anywhere. If a leader-pelican dips for a fish, it is ten to one the other pelicans will gang upon him and keep him from getting even a nibble. The leader is more apt to starve than the followers, this being the reverse of life among human beings.

So do not worry about head pelicans any more, Mrs. Roosevelt, as you have enough other things to worry about. Let 'em dip, dear lady, and forget it. And please drop the whole matter of whether one pelican gets fat while others get thin or they will hear you back in Washington and there will be an agitation to investigate the pelican situation. Probably somebody will propose that a billion dollars be set aside to establish a PDCA (Pelican Dipping Control Administration), and the first thing you know there will be extra taxes to help pay the cost of seeing that all fat pelicans be put on a diet and all skinny pelicans fattened up.

You can take it from me, one of the world's foremost authorities on pelicans, that they are doing all right for themselves and are very happy.

Very truly yours,
ELMER TWITCHELL.

Our Ambassador

By Harold J. Laski

Taking Stock Of Mr. Winant

London.

THERE ARE MANY things in the character and habits of the new American Ambassador to Great Britain on which it would be interesting to comment. He has made only one public speech. That and press interviews with him have only suggested that he believes deeply in the democratic cause and that he believes profoundly in its power to win. Mr. Winant has, as it were, slipped into our public life on the assumption that the best diplomatic representatives are seen, not heard. He has the belief that we in this country will appreciate him most by what he silently does to further the purposes so unmistakably announced by the President and Congress of the United States.

LASKI

MR. WINANT is an old friend of mine; and I must, therefore, confine my report of a talk with him to generalities rather than particulars. It was some years since I had seen him. But I emphasize my view that at this special time it is difficult to see how the President could have made a more exactly right appointment. It is not only that Mr. Winant represents so fully the America that still to millions of Europeans is a land of promise, the America where the ordinary man may still dream of great hopes to be fulfilled in a free society of free men and women. It is not only, as well, that the sincerity of his faith in the democratic idea goes to the root of his being. He represents the America that no longer worships what William James called "the bitch goddess, success." He is free of that illusion which equals bigness with grandeur.

There is in him a compound of the qualities, simplicity, sincerity, unbreakable steadfastness, which were the strength of that seventeenth century puritan who, by devotion to conscience, wrested a great commonwealth from a wilderness. Mr. Winant will do America great honor before he returns home. We are going to find that respect for him becomes a necessary part of our own self-respect.

He believes in our cause. He believes that the future of mankind demands the victory of our cause and thinks the man to effect its defeat is beyond thought; that is half the will to victory. It is the presence of that quality in Mr. Churchill that has, I suspect, formed the immediate bond between him and the Prime Minister. The question they have jointly to answer is not, "Are we going to win?" but "How can we best organize the means of victory?" I suspect, too, that back of the full understanding between him and the labor leaders, perhaps above all Mr. Bevin, is his grasp of what the worker has at stake; the realization that democracy cannot make terms with Hitler and hope to survive as a nation of free men.

I WAS STRUCK, too, by the range of his knowledge of the men with whom he has to work and the things he already knows he has to know. He has a sense of what England means, nonetheless profound because he remains so fundamentally American, prepared to judge as well as to praise. And I hazard the guess that before Mr. Winant returns he will know more of Britain than any American Ambassador even sought to explore, more than anyone save specialists.

Mr. Winant starts with certain convictions that, perhaps, appeal to me more because I have not always found them outstanding in the American Ambassadors I have known. Main Street in the United States is more important to him than Wall Street; and in Britain he is more interested in what they are thinking in the shelters of Fulham and the workshops of the Midlands than in the great houses of Mayfair and the great halls of the city of London. He knows that this war will be won or lost by the morale of the common people; that is more important than the effect of some defeat or some victory on the pulse of the Stock Exchange.

He feels in himself the drive that lies behind the confidence of the ordinary man who can "take it" whatever terror the enemy can loose. He has tested in Geneva the half-articulate dreams of solid trade unionists who have gone to its conferences, and has discovered in them the formulae behind that ultimate Americanism which Jefferson and Lincoln, Woodrow Wilson and Franklin Roosevelt put into words which express the determined aspirations of civilized mankind.

He is slow of utterance. He hesitates before he makes a judgment. He is tolerant of men. He has the power to learn from those experiences which it is not easy to endure. Perhaps I may repeat what impressed me. I spoke of the dull routine which imposes on a new ambassador the duty of calling on his colleagues who are senior to him. "But I don't find it dull," he said. "So many of them have so much of interest to tell me about their countries."

He is always interested in the spectacle of life, something the meaning of which, in his slow, rather wistful way, he is always seeking to penetrate. I liked his instant recognition of good will in others. I liked his belief that the great cause held in common provides a road on which for a considerable distance men of diverse faiths may travel together. I liked his obvious belief in the power of the American mind to hold fast, despite everything, to the great central principles which make it the American mind. I liked his modest definition of his function. "Maybe," he said, "I can find a few ways in which I can make the victory of democracy not only swifter but also more enduring."

MR. WINANT is, I think, a liberal in a sense that the grave complexities of this age have almost hidden from public view. He is a liberal in the sense that he is on the road on which lies the power of reason to maintain its empire over men's minds. He is a liberal in the sense that he insists that governments must be the servants of law and not the servants of governments. He hates cruelty. He knows in his innermost being that those who count the end only but are careless of the means will transform that very carelessness into their purposes as well. What I think he hates in Hitlerism above all is that it deprives ordinary men of their right to insist upon respect for their experience. The Governorship of New Hampshire has been a vital element in the capacity of the American Ambassador to see that freedom of mind alone is compatible with the spirit of a mankind entitled to hold up its head.

The talk with Mr. Winant heartened me in the same way that, in these grim months since the Battle of France, I have been heartened by the inflexible determination of Mr. Churchill to end the menace of Hitlerism. He made moving to me the meaning of America as the "arsenal of democracy." He made me understand the depth of its determination not to halt till the menace was lifted from the life of the world. There is about him a resolution and tenacity which burn like a flame. The America he symbolizes is the America that in the hearts of millions in Europe today stands with this fortitude as a pledge not only of redemption from tyranny but also of a new order in which the common man has freedom and security.

President Roosevelt has done many things for the emancipation of Europe since Hitler first raised his head. I doubt whether he has done a better thing than sending Mr. Winant to represent the American people in London. For he makes one feel that power to endure and that courage not to submit which make the first parent of achievement. He confirms our determination by the intensity with which he shares it.

China Holds Line For Freedom, Bullitt Says Urging Funds Aid

China, by holding in check the Japanese military forces, is playing a vital role in the defense of all democracies, former Ambassador William C. Bullitt said in a radio appeal for support for the United China Relief.

The Chinese, "with almost no artillery or airplanes, have met the Japanese army with three weapons—rifles, intelligence and courage," he said, "and have stopped it. After three years and eight months of war China remains free and fighting."

Pointing out that Japan "leagued herself with Germany and Italy against the United States and all other countries that live in freedom," the former Ambassador to France warned that "if Japan should conquer China her hands would be free to act in the Pacific."

He praised Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, leader of the Chinese forces, as "a great leader of a great people," standing now at "China's Valley Forge" in Szechwan Province, and said that if the Chinese are able to maintain their independence and eject the Japanese, "the next decades will bring forth a great new flowering of Chinese civilization."

"In intellectual power, physical endurance and courage the people of China are unsurpassed," he said. "No people will have a greater future if they but have opportunity to develop their civilization in peace."

As evidence he pointed to the peace-time accomplishments of the generalissimo and Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, the building of roads, rail lines, schools and hospitals, and the building of "a new morale" through the New Life Movement.

He appealed for Americans to "give all they can" to help "these suffering men, women and children," saying:

"Any help given today to the suffering people of China is a contribution for civilization and against totalitarian dictatorship. By resisting Japan, the Chinese are decreasing a threat against all democracies. They are helping us."

"DEAR LORD AND FATHER OF MANKIND" — JOHN G. WHITTIER

Dear Lord and Father of mankind,
Forgive our feverish ways!
Reclothe us in our rightful mind;
In purer lives Thy service find,
In deeper reverence, praise.

Whittier loved the simple life . . . the freedom of Nature and the great outdoors. "To love God and serve your fellow man," was his philosophy of right-living. In this hymn he emphasizes the service and reverence of purer lives

"NICE GIRL?" Universal picturization of an original story by Phyllis Duganne, produced by Joe Pasternak, starring Deanna Durbin, with Franchot Tone, Walter Brennan, Robert Stack, Robert Benchley, Helen Broderick, Ann Gillis, Anne Gwynne, Elisabeth Risdon, Nana Bryant, George Billings, Tommy Kelly and Marcia Mae Jones. Directed by William A. Seiter. At RKO-Keith's Theater.

THE INTERROGATION POINT that follows the title of this latest Joe Pasternak production starring Deanna Durbin, the "queen of the Universal lot," is a bit of nonsense. Of course Deanna is a nice girl. She is far more than that. She is the sole contemporary "juvenile" who has approached maturity, both on and off the screen, with an increasing charm, an expanding grace, a definite and distinguished poise and an ingenuous sense of humor that combine to make her one of the most fascinating young players appearing before the cameras.

BELL

With eight successive successes already to her credit, it would be a hazardous business to come out flat-footedly with the statement that the ninth, "Nice Girl?" on the screen at RKO-Keith's this week, is the best of the cycle. But we are by no means sure that it isn't. There is so much youthful freshness, wholesomeness, spontaneity, fun, frolic and music in "Nice Girl?" that it becomes an immediate object of irresistible fascination and enjoyment.

Something of the progress the fabulous Miss Durbin has made in the direction of competent acting may be gathered from the caliber of the cast with which she has been surrounded in this subject. Franchot Tone, Robert Benchley, Robert Stack, Helen Broderick and Walter Brennan are among the veterans to whose mellowed talents Anne Gwynne, Ann Gillis, Marcia Mae Jones and others of the youngsters add the sparkle of their youthfulness. Deanna is not lost, but leads the way in this fast company.

The story of "Nice Girl?" is a simple one, employing many of the comic, romantic and dramatic devices that have become familiar to the faithful on both stage and screen. They are utilized here, however, with uncommonly fine effect. Scientist Oliver Wendell Holmes Dana has three charming daughters. The youngest is a social "climber," full of affectation and the dreamy delusions of the immature. Another is aflame with the fire of the theater and dramatizes her every word and act. The third is the daughter with the magnificent voice, usually level head and fear of dying an old maid at the age of 23 because she lacks "sophistication," "glamour," "allure" and all those other ridiculous things some young ladies sometimes deem vital. When the young man from the Scientific Society comes to visit her dad, an opportunity is opened for the acquisition of this "worldy wisdom." It works itself out with such utter innocence and gentle humor that, as we have said, we would not be at all sure that "Nice Girl?" is not Deanna's best picture.

Deanna sings five times in her new film, although less accent is placed upon her voice than up her acting. The songs are all unpretentious, but all are liltingly lovely and beautifully sung. "Swanee River" is not the least of these. In her performance, the youthful Durbin demonstrates all of those qualities that should make a father proud of his daughter. Robert Benchley in the role of the understanding daddy of three sharply contrasted girls, offers one of the most ingratiating portrayals he ever has brought to the screen. He is the kind of father any girl should be glad to have. Franchot Tone, in the role of the "great temptation," does a comparably fine piece of work and Walter Brennan, as the small-town band leader, turns in his usual fine job of character delineation. Robert Stack once more is the "hero" in the case and Helen Broderick, Ann Gillis, Anne Gwynne and a considerable roster of others render superlative support. This little Ann Gillis, if she isn't careful, will find herself one of the screen's finest young comediennes.

The supplementary bill at Keith's this week is notable, too. It is led by the issue of the "March of Time" that bears the title of "Americans All," which might well append "The American Melting Pot" as a subtitle. There is also a new issue of the Pathe News—very brief—and a color cartoon, having fun with high points in American history, that is a honey. But it is Deanna Durbin and "Nice Girl?" that will keep the bill running on Fifteenth Street for weeks on end.

And He Really Needed to Learn

snapped in the midst of his ardent studies of how to become a detective in preparation for his stellar role in "Footsteps in the Dark," currently on the screen at the Earle Theater. Brenda Marshall is costarred with Flynn and the cast also lists such luminaries as Ralph Bellamy, Allen Jenkins, William Frawley, Alan Hale, Lee Patrick and Grant Mitchell

Earle's 'Footsteps in the Dark' Stars Flynn in Modern Dress

By Richard L. Coe

"FOOTSTEPS IN THE DARK." Warner Brothers picturization of a play by Ladislo Fodor. Bernard Merivale and Jeffrey Dell, starring Errol Flynn, with Brenda Marshall, Ralph Bellamy, Alan Hale, Lee Patrick, Allen Jenkins, Lucile Watson, William Frawley, Roscoe Karns, Grant Mitchell, Maris Wrixon and Noel Madison. Directed by Lloyd Bacon. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Earle Theater.

Masquerading in modern dress, Errol Flynn swashbuckles only mentally in his new film at the Earle, clinking clews instead of swords, rescuing Justice rather than monarchs of the past and becoming quite a Robin Hood of Our Lesser Day. His vehicle is titled "Footsteps in the Dark," one of those gay, bloody yarns based on the fascinating possibility that charm begets mental brilliance and all policemen are duds.

"Footsteps in the Dark" has the advantage of an involved plot with a galaxy of unexpected characters as well as the ones no polite mystery apparently exists without; it has the disadvantage of being so long and consequently so slowly paced, that the alert armchair detective beats Errol to the draw. And, in the words of Queen Elizabeth, that ain't what makes hoss racin'.

Withal, we enjoyed "Footsteps in the Dark" and were interested from the first shot of Flynn creeping across the lawn of a palatial home, silently clambering up a ladder into a lady's bedroom and appropriating the adjoining bed. (That was no lady, that was his wife.) Well, anyway, the erstwhile swashbuckler plays a highly-thought-of young lawyer who spends darn little time in his office. With mumbling Allen Jenkins as his chauffeur, he creeps away during office hours to write mystery stories. He's a bug about it, see?

Fine Supporting Cast

So to pick up "color" for his yarns, he visits Inspector Alan Hale, discovers a murder that passes for sudden death and spends the rest of the footage talking with his wife, his mother-in-law, a burlesque queen, a dentist, an Indian servant and a couple of dumb policemen. Humor of his adventures lies not so much in what happens, but how it happens.

It's a top-notch cast les freres Warner have assigned Flynn to help solve his modern difficulties. Among the things Flynn is called upon to do besides wear pants (the Elizabethans wore something else), is to give his impersonation of a Texas oil man and he's properly terrible at it. Pretty involved stuff, this acting business, calling for an Irishman to play a New Yorker imitating a Texan.

Lovely Brenda Marshall has practically nothing to do but look decorative, a matter she's evidently been pursuing since the cradle. Ralph Bellamy is an interestingly dull dentist and Alan Hale, Lucile Watson, Allen Jenkins and William Frawley perform with their customary skill. Lee Patrick is effective if not exactly true to life as the burlesque charmer. (Now how would we know about that?)

"Manhattans vs. Latins"

Earle's stage revue is titled "Manhattans vs. Latins" with Little Old New York getting this vote. This is the stage revue for which the Earle had such a busy time importing a band to vend the Latin rhythms. Carlos Molina's orchestra has definitely arrived and its radio reputation proves its atmosphere is authentic if only tepid. Most nearly torrid member of their aggregation is a limber lady who does her act 15 feet above the stage floor.

Of the Manhattans there are those daftly indifferent dancers, the Lathrop Brothers and Virginia Lee. Very pleasant folk. Gene Sheldon plinks his humorously pliable guitar and Kay Hamilton brings definite warmth to a couple of modern ballads. Saddest thing of all on the Earle bill is the lack of Roxyettes. Come on back, girls!

Recapitulating: "Footsteps in the Dark" is an agreeable enough trifle if taken that way; its stage partner is fairish.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, March 21 (INS).—I couldn't have been more surpised than when I heard that Universal is costarring Deanna Durbin and Charles Laughton in "Almost an Angel." It was as if someone had told me Shirley Temple would be teamed with Edward G. Robinson. The idea of romantic Deanna appearing with Laughton, who usually runs to heavy "dramah," is certainly something new under the Hollywood sun. Deanna's first picture after she becomes Mrs. Vaughn Paul, will be this whimsical comedy written by Norman Krasna.

PARSONS

Those of us who met good-looking Capt. Giles Steadman of the S. S. America at the cocktail party Sally Eilers gave in his honor, admit that he is handsome enough to be in the movies. Well, he isn't going to be in the movies himself but the story of his life, a movie drama called "The Captain and the Ship," will be brought to the screen by Warners.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: The hottest news of the week is that Virginia Gilmore and Fritz Lang are talking marriage; Baby Sandy has a brother born today. If he's as cute as his sister, he'll be another movie star. Mary Martin and Dick Halliday get in New York tomorrow and it's Mary's first vacation in the big town in two years; Ida Lupino won't have to worry about what she will wear Easter, for Louis Hayward has brought her a complete new outfit.

A fan magazine printed a line that they would send free pictures of Gene Autry and in three weeks they had received 30,000 requests. They can't all be Gene's relatives! Franchot Tone in Palm Springs recovering from a cold; Wyn Rocamora gave Pat Morison a birthday party at the Scheherazade and the Scheherazade, is giving Helene and Lee Bowman, newlyweds, a cocktail party next Tuesday; just when we thought Barry Trivers and Florine McKinney were going to reconcile, he stepped out at the Florentine Gardens with Mary Brian; maybe it's just as well Archie Mayo is leaving for New York in the stratoliner, for he's cooking a chop suey dinner tomorrow night for the cast and crew of "The Great American Broadcast."

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Hollywood, March 21.

Dennis Morgan did all right for himself the other day when he visited the White Sox training camp. Not only looked well in their baseball outfit, but the boys said if he loses his acting job he can join them and not just as a mascot. Now that Dennis has proved himself a star, and Warners still own "The Desert Song," and musicals are back to stay at least for a year—how about it, boys—why not give him that chance he's been promised?

HOPPER

Lloyd Nolan's past has caught up with him. A couple of years ago he left Paramount because he was tired of playing gangsters. Recently he signed up to return to the studio—to play the chief gangster in "Buy Me That Town." Now two other studios want him for "loughie I'm runnin' dis-town, see?" guys. Lloyd, your record just caught up with you tried to "go straight" but you—see, Wise Guy!

"Grounded" by insurance while she's playing in "Before the Fact," Joan Fontaine is getting caught up on her gardening while hubby Brian Aherne cavorts overhead in his new plane. When the sound man complained that Mischa Auer's muffled voice wasn't coming through clearly in a scene for "Cracked Nuts," Director Eddie Cline explained, "We're trying to get a laugh, not a Carnegie medal."

Florence Bates, who was so good in "Rebecca," phoned me to put on a rave about Director Jack Conway who's doing "Love Crazy" with Myrna Loy and Bill Powell. Seems Fay Bainter was cast as Bill's mother. She was taken ill, then Florence got the role and she was taken to the hospital and had her gall bladder removed. When Fay recovered, they put her into another picture, but they waited for Florence—and she's playing a part that's out of this world—she's sweetness and light and messes up everybody's life she touches.

Director Alfred Hitchcock, who's been accused of being somewhat of a sadist, is giving his "Before the Fact" company the choice of catching his sore-throat or swallowing one of his English creosote tablets before beginning work each morning.

Claudette Colbert has been invited to participate in the Silver Skis Tournament in Washington State next month. Watch it, Claudette, it ain't that sliding down fast that gets you, it's that being stopped suddenly on the bottom! Bill Gargan gave his wife a horse for her birthday, then nearly broke his neck trying to ride the critter down at Palm Springs, the old Indian Giver!

When Jimmy Cagney met Kaaren Verne, who has the lead opposite Jeffrey Lynn in "Underground," he was told that Kaaren's real name was Bechstein. "Funny," said Jimmy, "I just bought a Bechstein piano, something I've wanted all my life." "Yes," exclaimed Kaaren—"well, my great grandfather founded that company." It was a foregone conclusion Buddy De Sylva would film "Louisiana Purchase" in color. All big musicals should be that way, as Darryl Zanuck had proved in his "Down Argentine Way" and "That Night in Rio."

Mrs. Johnny Weissmuller is telling a funny one on Johnny. The Weissmuller basement flooded after a heavy rain and she asked Johnny to go down and rescue a couple of things she had floating around. He wouldn't! Didn't want to wet his feet!

Humphrey Bogart, Ida Lupino Soar High in 'High Sierra'

"High Sierra" is by way of being a parting movie salute to the Dillinger gangster era, a period that already seems as fabulous and far-away as that of Jesse James. Not that the picture isn't current. It is laid in the modern crook's milieu of tourist camps, juke-box joints and resort hotels. But it is pervaded by the spirit of Roy Earle (Humphrey Bogart), middle-aged gangster, who is "sprung" from the penitentiary only to find that his new partners in crime are half-baked jitterbugs. From there, it's only three skips and a wild mountain motor chase to the stony top of the high Sierra and Roy Earle's last "crash out" which happens to be a complete blackout of Roy Earle.

Humphrey Bogart plays the almost washed-up gangster with a force that recalls his first big part, that of the gangster in "Petrified Forest." He's gray about the ears, toughened, seasoned, hardboiled by crime and the penitentiary. Also, he gives the sense of underlying nerve tension, of a man who knows he's on the way to death, but won't admit it even to himself. The suspense builds up terrifically.

Everything goes wrong just when it seems about to go right. Every attempt to escape from the closing net only pulls it tighter. The picture is one that doesn't need any tag line about crime not paying. It's implicit in every ruthless and realistic development. The direction and playing are tremendously expert throughout, though Bogart and Ida Lupino distinctly top the cast in ability.

The Post's own Napoleon and his creator, Cartoonist McBride, appear in a color short. There is a real Napoleon. He's an Irish wolf hound and has been McBride's pal for many years. The British raid on the Lofoten Islands provides high drama in the newsreel. MARY HARRIS.

Science Aids Housewife With Window Shades That Are Washable, Decorative, Heat Reducing

Spring brings a desire to let sunshine into the home. The lighter touch may be accomplished by colorful slipcovers for chairs, ruffled curtains and light window shades, as used in the living room above. Since science has disclosed that eggshell and white shades will reduce the summer heat intake to a greater degree than green shades, that is one reason for using them. Another reason is that lighter shades may be cleaned and washed

Pastel Colors Will Make Room Cooler, Laboratory Tests Reveal; Expert Gives Directions for Home Cleaning

By Martha Ellyn
The Post Household Editor

SPRING cleaning used to be a cyclonic event of which many of us have vivid if not scarring memories. It was a time when children trod cautiously, when fathers disappeared on business trips if possible, and meals were the catch-as-catch can variety. And mother and a husky maidservant gave the house the "works" from attic to cellar.

Martha Ellyn.

But science, which has been poking its nose into many things affecting our daily lives, has produced a number of inventions to lighten mother's chores at housecleaning time. One thing research has provided to make work lighter is the type of shades or blinds for windows.

Once we believed that dark green shades at our windows were essential if we wanted to keep the maximum heat and glare from the summer sun out of our rooms. For this practical reason women used them although they added nothing to decorating schemes.

Recent laboratory tests at Armour Institute on the insulating qualities of cloth window shades, have demonstrated that light colors, particularly eggshell and white, will reduce the summer heat intake to a greater degree than dark green. That means you may have rooms cool and still have light enough for reading.

Tests also showed that a white or eggshell shade fully drawn will reduce the heat intake by almost 50 per cent, while dark green only reduces it 25 per cent. Add another white shade and the heat intake can be reduced up to 67½ per cent.

News is Timely

Such news is most timely with a Washington summer approaching. It is certainly worth remembering, too, that one cloth shade will reduce heat loss in winter up to 42 per cent, while two will reduce heat loss up to 52 per cent.

As a matter of fact, there is a light spring leaf-green shade that is lovely and cool looking. The green side could be used inside with the white one facing out. Manufacturers have even given inspiring names to the new shades —sunrose, chrysanthemums, larkspur and peachskin. And they are available at such low prices that one could easily afford to have an extra set for summer to match or accent a color from the slip-covers.

Summer should find a change even if only the furniture is shifted. The living room chairs can be turned away from the fireplace and made to face the windows. The dining room table can be moved away from the traditional center to the window.

There are a number of things one can do with a shade. Especially in the summer one can indulge in gay, informal treatments, like sewing a chintz ruffle to the edge of the shade. Duplex shades, the kind that are one color inside and a different color facing out, may be ordered.

If you live where there is dust and soot—and most persons do—washable shades are a blessing. And if you have other window problems, like rollers that won't roll but snarl back at you, or snap, then take your window troubles to Miss Virginia Watson, who is in the home furnishing department of a local department store this week.

For those who have washable window shades here are Miss Watson's suggestions for cleaning them.

Make Sure It's Washable

First make sure you have a washable shade. Lay it flat on a smooth clean surface like the kitchen table. Wash with cloth and soap suds made from reliable soap or soap powder and tepid water, as you would wash a porcelain table top. Rub stubborn spots. Work as quickly as possible and rinse well with cloth dipped in clear water. Dry thoroughly with absorbent cloth-Turkish towel. Turn shade on other side and clean in same way. Roll it smoothly onto roller and hang it at a closed window for about one hour, as this prevents edges from curling. Then pull it out full length and let it finish drying.

There's difference between a washable and a cleanable shade, according to Miss Watson. Cleanable shades should be dusted thoroughly and wiped with a damp cloth but not allowed to get really wet. Shades stay in better condition and require less washing if they are dusted frequently. This also prevents that line through the middle that appears as a result of the shade being drawn half way. Cleanable shades may be purchased for as little at 79 cents and washable ones for little more than $1.

Spring Movie Brides Wear Pastel Shades In Screen Weddings

Hollywood, Calif.—Since current screen fare is always the fashion dish of the future, the girl who plans a spring wedding will find useful wardrobe hints in two forthcoming Warner Brothers pictures.

In "Kisses for Breakfast" Shirley Ross wears a wedding gown that is visual evidence of the "pastel" bride predicted for the future. In dark yellowed eggshell, the gown has a skirt made with two separate draperies to give it extreme lines, and long sleeves with moyenage shoulders caught with little sprigs of pearls and orange blossoms. Her matching turban ends in soft scarves that fall below the waistline.

In the same film Jane Wyatt wears a jaunty tambourine pillbox with a dark suit ideal for travelling. It is pushed back on her head and gayly embroidered with vari-colored yarns and sparkling gems. Jane's blouse, in washable white satin, shows the low V-shaped neckline decreed by fashion and extra long cuffs that turn back over the suit cuffs.

Merle Oberon, star of "Affectionately Yours," is also a screen bride and also wears a pastel wedding gown, in light blue. Instead of the usual veil Merle wears a tiny squared hat of white spring flowers sitting like a crown behind her pompadour. Her lounging slacks in lustrous shades of purple and violet with sarong overskirt of purplish red is an ideal house pajama for a bride.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Heartbroken by Husband's Sentimental Attitude Toward His Mother and Sister, Whom He Praises As Patterns of Perfection, Wife Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My problem is a serious one. My husband gives his first affection to his mother and sister,—and this hurts me deeply. His mother and I had a quarrel a few years ago, after which he took me back to my folks and he stayed with his family for four months. Then he quarreled with them and decided we should take our furniture out of storage and go back to housekeeping again.

We took a place a mile from his folks, and lived there two years. They never came near, not even when he was seriously sick for a while. He was so upset that he gave up his millwork and bought a farm 400 miles from them. They knew we were leaving but they continued to ignore us. Then, the night before we left, he asked me if I would go with him to say goodbye to them. For his sake, I went, and I have sometimes been sorry since.

His mother and sister have come to visit with us every summer since then, and now, once more, he thinks nobody can compare to them. No one can cook or bake like his mother. His sister is the most wonderful housekeeper, etc. When we have company, he sits at the table and sings his mother's praise as a cook. He tells people I am "working up" to her standards,—but such a left-handed compliment is more discouraging than pleasing to me.

Once, when writing to them, he started by saying: "To the two Dearest Ones in the world—." Another time, he told me: "A man can always get another wife; but he has only one mother. And no wife can ever measure up to one's mother." This hurt me so I burst into tears, and although he saw I was crying, he never asked why. We owe many bills, yet he spends our last cent to take them home at the end of their visits. Just the one-way trip costs about $35. When they are here, he neglects his work to take them places that cost money. Yet I never ask my mother to come, and expect him to entertain her expensively, take her home, etc.

When I bake or cook, I think, "No matter how good it is, he will not think it as good as his mother's." I baked raisin bread for Christmas, and he told the hired man it was good, but not as good as his mother's. He said, "Her's has an art to it." I felt like throwing mine out and telling him to get his mother to do his baking. He has two insurance policies, both of which were originally made out to his mother. I never knew this until recently. Then he had th smaller one transferred to me, leaving the one three times as large in his mother's name.

I love my husband dearly and am true to him; but these things hurt me so much that he himself says they make me dislike him. And I get so discouraged at times that I don't care whether we make a go of marriage or not. And I sometimes hate his mother and sister. If I try to forget them for a while, he stirs things up again by asking if I have written to them. Have I reason for feeling hurt and discouraged? Please tell me how to manage the problem, before it gets the best of me.

UNHAPPY.

Smile Up Your Sleeve At His Childish Talk

DEAR UNHAPPY: Your husband's attitude toward his mother and sister probably would exasperate the average wife, since it reflects an obnoxiously sentimental, deplorably neurotic state of mind and emotion. But that attitude has been drilled into him by his mother, and is by now an ineradicable part of the fabric of his nature—so that, in my opinion, there is nothing whatsoever you can do to change it.

Your husband's statement, that "A man can always get another wife; but he has only one mother and no wife can ever measure up to one's mother,"—is merely a boiled-down version of what his mother has been telling him for years. I have heard that identical sentiment expressed, in almost identical words, by more than one devouringly possessive mother of a puppet-son,—when said mother was doing her level best either to keep her son from marrying, or to relegate his wife to a "fifth wheel" rating in the family line-up.

What such a pronouncement amounts to, of course, is sly repudiation, on the mother's part, of her inalienable moral responsibility to deliver her son over to life, as it were, when he has attained his majority. It is, for the man, an insidiously demoralizing doctrine, calculated to render him psychically and socially unfit for true marriage. In some cases that doctrine has involved a man in a series of aborted marriages, in which each of his so-called wives has meant little more to him than a concubine or housekeeper.

But perhaps one need not take so dark a view of your situation, —since your husband at least had the spunk to move 400 miles away from his troublemaking mother. Inasmuch he was willing to go that far in an attempt to stand on his own feet, it seems to me you could well afford to turn a deaf ear and a smiling countenance to his braggadocio about what wonderful people his "folks" are. Undoubtedly such talk is childish; but scarcely more childish that your anguished reaction to it.

Also, it seems to me you might reckon a few weeks' annual visit —and extravagant entertaining, including the costs of their trip back home—a small price to pay for approximately 50 weeks' annual deliverance from their offensive presence. At this distance, they certainly can't break up your home; nor can they break your heart (despite their hold on your husband's imagination) if you resolve to accept his attitude toward them as being something he simply can't help—any more than he can alter the color of his eyes or the date of his birth.

As for being jealous of them—why bother? If your husband didn't actually prefer your company to theirs, he wouldn't have come back to you after the first break; nor would he have gone off with you to live hundreds of miles away from them; nor would he tolerate your tearful tantrums directed at them. Since you love him dearly (so you say), be thankful for his daily and constant companionship, and learn to smile up your sleeve at his rankly sentimental attitude toward his kith and kin.

Designer Upholds Strapless Gowns

Hollywood, Calif. — Although other couturiers have tried time and again to discard the strapless evening gown, Orry-Kelly goes blithely ahead creating more and more designs with uncovered shoulders. If a girl has lovely shoulders she should be allowed to show them, Orry still believes.

To frame Merle Oberon's dark, patrician beauty and reveal photographically perfect shoulders in "Affectionately Yours," Orry has just done a robe de style in black with extremely full skirt. The heart-shaped decolletage plunges daringly low in front but is given a kind of mock modesty with a sheer inset of flesh tulle. Merle wears a pompadour and a large black bow on the back of her head.

Start a Rock Garden Now

A DELIGHTFUL little rock garden with its gaily blossoming plants! You can tuck one in any partly shady corner of your yard.

If you've a natural slope, so much the better. Or you can build one with alternating layers of rocks and earth. Tilt the surface rocks slightly inward for drainage and bury all but the very tops so rocks won't dislodge.

Then to plant an array of rock-loving beauties to peep out between stones—Campanula carpatica with its pale blue bells, rosy-lilac aubrietia and snowy white arabis. And, everywhere there's the tiniest crack, impudent sedums—blooming in white, yellow and rose. What a rainbow of colors they create against a dark background of spreading junipers, other shrubs!

But perhaps you've a dry, sunny spot for your rock garden. Plant sempervivums, potted cacti, moss pinks. And always lovely in any moderately sunny corner is a blossom-dotted lily pool, mirroring summer skies. You can make one from a tub!

Complete directions for making and planting lily pools and rock gardens are given in our 40-page booklet, Gardening Made Easy. Has information on flower borders, lawns, shrubs, trees, vines and roses. Includes pointers on growing gourds, vegetables and herb gardens.

New Colorless Liquid Chinstrap Banishes Wrinkles

There comes a time in every woman's life when she suddenly discovers that her chin has lost its youth and firmness. Then she thinks, tomorrow I'll start exercising to restore its contour. But somehow or other, she never seems to find time to get in that bit of exercise. Gradually the chin line becomes worse and the woman begins to develop a complex about it.

A great boon to those who want to do something quickly about an aging chin is a new liquid chin strap that is now being introduced in one of the local stores. You smooth on the colorless liquid chinstrap just as you would a foundation cream. Invisible under powder, the chin strap firms the chin and helps you to hold it erect. While the strap hides wrinkles and defects at the same time it is doing a permanent job of toning the chin muscles.

Excuses Given for Not Reducing Are Usually Old Wives' Tales

By Ida Jean Kain

ALL IT takes to get out of reducing with a clear conscience is a good excuse. So if you don't have one, you may invent it. Perhaps you don't reduce because . . .

You have high blood pressure and have to be careful.

Or, you're "just naturally fat and a diet doesn't make a speck of difference."

Well, how about this one—"I'd rather be a bit overweight than so thin and haggard?"

But perhaps you say, almost wistfully, "With my heart I can't reduce—I cannot take any exercise whatever."

Then again, you may bring your husband into it: "He likes me just the way I am and simply puts his foot down when it comes to those diets."

Maybe you put it off on your age, in the sincere belief that "When a woman gets to be my age, she has no business dieting."

Finally, there's the excuse of "I do all my own housework and if that isn't enough exercise, nothing is."

What's your favorite reason for not reducing? Let's see whether it's legitimate.

With high blood pressure and weight considerably above normal, you'd better reduce. That's the first step the doctor usually suggests. In 1,000 cases of high blood pressure and overweight, it was found that the loss of 10 pounds lowered the blood pressure 14 points! So, obviously, a low calorie diet is in order. It's true you have to be careful about exercise—avoid those in which you bend over—but a few mild exercises to strengthen the abdominal muscles are a health measure.

You may have cause to believe you are naturally fat. But the fact remains that all excess fat is the direct result of excess calories. You probably have a low calorie requirement and to control your weight you must be very discriminating in your choice of foods. You should avoid fat in any form, and all rich desserts.

If you have the habit of announcing, with defiance in your voice, that you'd better be plump than thin and haggard, you are not being fair in your comparison. Getting your weight down to normal—not below it—is bound to improve your appearance.

You may be among those who have a heart condition. Then you should know that every excess pound imposes an additional burden upon that hard-working heart of yours. You should take only the exercise the doctor advises, but you should never overeat.

It looks as if most of these reasons for not reducing are just alibis. There seems to be no legitimate excuse for not taking off 20 to 50 pounds of excess fat.

Signora Rosso in U. S., Plans Visit to Capital

It's predicted that the Washington chill toward Italian diplomats and others of the Axis powers will be lifted toward at least one scheduled visitor. She is Signora Augusto Rosso, wife of Mussolini's envoy to the Soviet, an American born, and a popular Capital hostess of several years ago.

Signora Rosso, the former Frances Wilkinson Bunker, landed in Boston a few days ago on a Swedish boat and is en route to Florida. She will make her headquarters at Cocoanut Grove, where her mother, Mrs. George Wilkinson, has been staying. Her two children, Adele and George Bunker, will complete the family reunion. George is on holiday from his school and Adele, after a period at Duke University, is now making her home in New York. Also at Cocoanut Grove are Signora Rosso's close friends, Mr. and Mrs. Travers Ewall. They frequently visited her in Washington when she was Mrs. Wilkinson Bunker.

After a fortnight in Florida, Frances Rosso will return to her home town, Evanston, Ill., for a visit. Her family has a residence there and she will spend the early spring renewing acquaintances. Not until May is she expected to reach Washington.

Signor Rosso Not Here

Ever since she married the Italian diplomat and went to Moscow to live, Signora Rosso has made an annual trip back to her homeland to see her children and her old friends. This time the Ambassador did not accompany her on the long and difficult journey. At one time he was Italy's envoy in Washington and was one of the most popular and eligible members of the diplomatic corps. He was a favorite with Capital hostesses, all of whom were much chagrined when he left to become Ambassador to the Soviet.

A few months after his departure the then Mrs. Bunker returned from a jaunt to Europe and shortly afterwards her engagement to the diplomat was announced. After a whirl of farewell parties in Washington, she sailed again and went to Paris, where her marriage took place at the Italian Embassy.

Last year Signor Rosso accompanied his wife on her annual trip to Washington and both were entertained at several parties a day during their visit. That was before Italy entered the war, and feeling had not yet reached the pitch where it now is.

The Italian Embassy in Moscow is a large and palatial building with marble halls, columns, heavy paneling and painted ceilings. A few summers ago Miss Bunker and her school friend, Miss Barbara Bolling of Washington, traveled to Moscow for a visit at the embassy. The two girls had a thrilling summer and were honor guests at a large masquerade ball given by the Rossos.

Many Leave For South

Though the first hint of Spring is being felt in Washington, others beside Signora Rosso have gone South for a late season vacation. The Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Jesse Jones joined the exodus on Thursday and are at Miami Beach until the first of the month.

The former Ambassador to Germany and Mrs. Hugh Wilson have arrived at Palm Beach, where the season is at its height. They are staying at the Surfside Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, of Bethesda, also have joined the Palm Beach colony. They were among the guests at a luncheon given by Arthur Bradley Campbell on Thursday at the Bath and Tennis Club. Others in his party were Mr. and Mrs. LeRay Berdeau, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Q. H. Smith, Mrs. Dorsey Cullen, Mrs. David Crowley, Mrs. George Otis Rockwood, Mrs. Nina L. Duryea, John P. S. Harrison, Mountfort Coolidge and Prince Mikhail Gounoroff.

Lawton–Head Nuptials Held

The wedding of Miss Cynthia Powers Head and Edwin Hubbard Lawton took place last night at 8 o'clock at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Edwin Lawton. The Rev. Peter Marshall officiated at the ceremony. The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James F. Head, of Wilmington, N. C.

Given in marriage by her brother, the bride wore an ivory and lace gown. It was the bridegroom's mothers' wedding gown. Her illusion veil fell to the edge of the slight train. She carried a bouquet of roses and sweetpeas.

Miss Elizabeth Prescott Lawton, sister of the bridegroom, served as maid of honor. She wore a chartreuse gown, cut on classic lines, with a girdle of matching lace. Her bouquet was of Talisman roses. Arthur Pierce Middleton, of New York, served as best man. Following the ceremony there was a reception. Mrs. Lawton, who assisted in receiving, wore an aqua crepe gown with a corsage of gardenias.

Following their wedding trip in the South the couple will live at 3204 Seventeenth Street. Mr. Lawton attended Friends School and was graduated from the University of Maryland.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

MR. AND MRS. Paul Mellon will entertain friends this afternoon from 4 to 7 at the Red Fox Tavern in Middleburg. The party will follow the Piedmont Hunt point to point races. The Mellons arrived at their home, Rokeby, near Upperville, on Tuesday from Washington, where they went for the opening of the National Gallery on Monday. His many Virginia friends "listened in" with interest to the talk which Mr. Melon made that evening over the radio.

The Piedmont Hunt point to point races will be run over a flagged course of about five and a half miles at Rokeby. The first races will be called at 2 o'clock. It will be a heavyweight race for gentlemen.

The second race will be a ladies' race, side saddle or astride; third, event of the afternoon, is the Rokeby Challenge Bowl, a race for gentlemen. Among the entries will be last year's winner, Clifton's Gem, owned by Duncan R. Read, of Middleburg. This horse was ridden to victory in an exciting finish by young Mike Kerr. Mike will not be here to ride today, as he has joined the Philadelphia troop for a year's service in the Army and is stationed at Indiantown Gap, Pa. Clifton's Gem will be ridden this afternoon by William P. Hulbert, jr., who will come home from Randolph Macon Academy, Front Royal, to pilot the favorite to victory—his friends hope.

THE NEIGHBORHOOD is filled with weekend visitors and many parties will be given. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bowyer will be hosts at a buffet dinner tonight at their home, Mount Defiance, near Middleburg. Today is Mr. Bowyer's birthday. Mrs. James Foster Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Turner Foster and Carter Foster will give a large supper tonight at Glenville, The Plains.

Francis Greene of Warrenton, who on Red Flower won the individual point to point race of the Warrenton Hunt last Saturday, will try for the Rokeby Bowl event today. When Mr. Greene won the race by a length he took home four lovely silver trophies. The large Perpetual Bowl, presented by Frederick H. Prince, jr., a silver platter, the Mary Converse Cutting Perpetual Challenge Cup inaugurated this year in memory of the late Mrs. George Cutting, and a silver plate.

THE STORY of Mr. Greene's good hunter, Red Flower, by Queen's Guild out of Beautiful Flower, is most interesting. The mare, Red Flower, was bred by Albert Utterback of Haymarket, who sold her to James B. Skinner of Middleburg. Stephen C. Clark jr., later bought her for a good price as a hunter. Mr. Clark thought so little of her that this season he gave her to Daniel C. Sands, M. F. H., of Middleburg Hunt, to use on the hunt staff if he wished. The first of this season she was ridden in a hunt by "Nick" Nicholas, the whip, who also thought little of the mare, as she gave him several falls. One day Dan Sands offered to trade Red Flower to Crompton Smith for another horse. About that time Francis Greene needed a horse for the Warrenton Hunt and Mr. Smith lent his friend, Mr. Greene, Red Flower, explaining he didn't think she was much good. During the winter one of those roundabout Virginia horse trades took place. Crompton Smith liked a horse which Dick Kirkpatrick owned; Francis Greene offered to buy Dick's horse at a small sum and trade it to Crompton for Red Flower. The trade was made with everyone satisfied.

* * * *

MR. GREENE hunted his mare all season, giving her the best care, changing bits until he found what suited her best, and found her such a delightful mount that he decided to enter her in the point-to-point race last Saturday. He beat Compton Smith and Mowgli a champion point-to-point combination, which had won the Redland Hunt point-to-point event in Maryland the Saturday before, in a driving snow storm.

The laugh was on Crompton last Saturday, but no one took it better than he nor congratulated Mr. Greene more heartily. Now everyone is looking forward to seeing these two riders and horses compete in the Piedmont point-to-point race today.

Horse Show to Aid Service Club

The Secretary of War and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Frank Knox, and the Commandant of the Marine Corps Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb are all sponsoring the horse show to be held at Fort Myer Saturday afternoon and Sunday evening, March 29 and 30, for the benefit of the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club of Washington.

The clubhouse, at 1015 L Street, offers board and lodging at a modest price to enlisted men. Dances are held under the supervision of "Mother" Steed. Up to now the club has been self-supporting, due in part to the rental of the hall to various organizations and of the rooms to all-year lodgers. Now these rooms are to be turned over to the greatly increased numbers of Service personnel, making a strain on the club's budget.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace head the patrons for the benefit horse show, and others include the British Ambassador and Lady Halifax, Mr. and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, Mrs. J. Fred Essary, Mrs. Truxton Beale, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon and Maj. and Mrs. Henry Leonard. Mrs. Julian Schley is chairman of the show.

Parties Off As R. F. Kelley Is Called Away

Robert F. Kelley, who recently returned to this country on leave from his post as counselor of the American Embassy in Turkey, has gone to Boston to see his mother, who is seriously ill. He plans to be back in Washington the latter part of next week for a brief stay.

Formerly chief of the Eastern European Affairs Division of the State Department, Mr. Kelley has a host of friends here who would like to entertain for him during his vacation, but several parties already planned have been postponed because of his mother's illness.

He hopes to return to Washington in time for the cocktail party that Miss Elizabeth Howry had arranged to give in his honor on March 29. The fete is to be one of five that will precede the buffet supper that Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould is to give that evening. Mrs. Gould's party, incidentally, is to be an event that will happily combine pleasure and welfare activity. Arranged by a group that calls itself The Galbo Club, the party will be a means of raising funds to be divided equally between Gallinger Hospital and the Metropolitan Police Boys Club. Each person invited to one of the five cocktail parties is to pay $1, which also will be "admission" to Mrs. Gould's home.

Among those, who, in addition to Miss Howry, will give cocktail parties, are Mrs. Martin Vogel and Baron and Baroness Stackelberg, Mrs. Robert Moulton, Mrs. Porter Davidson and Mr. and Mrs. John Caswell.

A feature of the evening's entertainment at Mrs. Gould's party will be a fortune telling booth, in which Mrs. James Hamilton (Gipsy) Lewis will hold forth.

Capital Whirl

By Sally Swift

SENHORA DE MARTINS, wife of the Brazilian Ambassador, is practically commuting between Washington and New York these days in busy preparation for the Red Cross benefit tea-dance and fashion show which she is giving at the Embassy on March 27. There will be beautiful models to wear the gowns of one of New York's smartest shops. A gown from a French couturiere will be awarded and the latest attraction to be added is a fortune teller.

The other day Senhora de Martins gathered a few friends together for lunch at the Embassy. Mention of the fortune teller brought on a discussion of superstitions while we were having cocktails. The Ambassador collects superstitions as some people collect antiques, and pretends to believe in them. He told of dining with a friend recently at the Carlton when the party numbered 14. One guest was suddenly called away on urgent business, whereupon the others rose in a body and hustled the youngest and least-ranking man away to dine at the nearby bar.

NELSON ROCKEFELLER had arrived at the Martins' luncheon without his wife, who was flying down from New York and had wired that the plane was delayed by engine trouble. After a recount of the guests which showed a non-superstitious number, we sat down to lunch, and when Mrs. Rockefeller arrived she slipped into her place at the Ambassador's left and entered into the conversation as if she had never heard of a plane with engine trouble in a high wind. At the Ambassador's right was Mrs. Richard Kleberg, whose husband, the well-known Representative from Texas, was chatting in perfect Spanish with Senhora de Martins at the other end of the table.

Our hostess looked very smart in a simple gray tailleur with a henna-colored blouse and her shoes were gray lizard combined with henna calf. Pretty Countess Lasocka also wore a tailleur, hers of black with a blouse of brightly colored embroidery, and her spring hat was a froth of multi-colored veiling. Also present were the Brazilian First Secretary and Senhora de Alencastro-Guimaraes, Count Lasocki and Luiz Sampaio. Senhor Sampaio is in the United States on business which is sure to be mixed with pleasure, as he is most agreeable and speaks perfect English. A sportsman and a hunter of big game, he caused a flurry among the ladies when he said that on his recent trip through Mexico he had very much enjoyed the bull-fights and had taken some excellent colored movies of toreadors in action.

ARRIVING AT the Polish Embassy the other afternoon to have tea with Mme. Ciechanowski, I found the wife of the newly-arrived Ambassador just bustling out of one of the downstairs offices giving some instructions over her shoulder. With pleasant informality we went upstairs together to a small drawing room where a freshly-laid tea table offered delicious Polish cakes and tea from a silver urn.

Mme. Ciechanowska is small and slender, with a charming, expressive face, blue eyes and gray hair. You sit down to talk to her primed with questions—questions about herself, her experiences at the fall of Poland and her experiences since in beleaguered Britain. In less than a minute you are quite amazed to hear yourself discussing in detail with her your own personal problems. That is the kind of person she is. I did elicit, however, that Mme. Ciechanowska was in Paris with her children trying to make her way home to Poland when her country was invaded; that her husband was in New York speaking at a forum on foreign affairs at Columbia University, and that the family was reunited in England under bombardment.

ALSO CALLING on Mme. Ciechanowska at tea time were the Egyptian Minister and Mme. Hassan and we were joined by the Ambassador himself, who came upstairs from his office. Mme. Hassan was as pretty and neat as a china figurine in a pale, gray-blue frock. Her hat and shoes were dark and she added a touch of color with her necklace from which hung a scarab in raibow colors. Mme. Hassan is off for a vacation in Florida with her little daughter and highly pleased because she will have the child to herself for a while, without benefit of nurse or social distractions.

LANSBURGH'S

New Clubhouse Opened By Newspaper Women

By Jessie Ash Arndt
The Post Club Editor.

Presented with her own key to the new headquarts of the Newspaper Women's Club at 1604 Twentieth Street, Mrs. Roosevelt, who is an honorary member, yesterday unlocked the door at the tea given in her honor, officially opening the new clubhouse.

Cameras clicked and interested spectators watched as the First Lady was greeted by Miss Katherine Brooks, president of the club, and escorted up the walk and the short flight of steps leading to the entrance of the house, where she received the key from Miss Margaret Hart, chairman of the house committee.

She unlocked the door to find active and associate members of the club and several Cabinet wives there to greet her. Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Vice President, had arrived only a few minutes before from the Congressional Club, where a reception in her honor had been given. Among other guests were Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State; Mrs. Frank Knox, wife of the Secretary of War; Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, and Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, wife of the Attorney General.

As the presence of the First Lady was considered more important to the success of the housewarming than the completion of the furnishings, the party was held in rooms still without rugs on the floors or curtains at the windows, but nevertheless assuming a cheery homelikeness.

The living room, decorated with palms and large baskets of flowers, had on the walls the club's interesting pictures of distinguished persons who have been its guests from time to time.

Included among the furnishings were two love seats given by Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, one of the associate members, who was present yesterday.

The pleasant informality of the occasion was typified by Mrs. Roosevelt as she perched on the arm of one of the love seats—despite protests and offers of more comfortable places to sit—and chatted with Mrs. Knox and Mrs. Jackson, whom she found having tea together there.

Among associate members present, in addition to Mrs. Loose, were Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, Director of the Mint; Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin. Margaret Wade, one of the inactive members, was also there, as was Mrs. P. T. McGerr, of Nebraska, mother of Miss Grace McGerr, one of the members. Mrs. Kate Scott Brooks, honorary president and mother of the present president, was also present to greet members and guests.

In the tea room, adjoining the living room, the table was set with dishes newly purchased by the club, which were in pastel shades of blue, pink and gold; a lace cloth and crystal candelabra with tall, white tapers. Paper napkins, on which the name of the club was embossed, were also the gift of Mrs. Loose. The silver tea service used was that presented to the club several years ago by Mrs. William N. Doak, another associate member.

The new headquarters will be for the use of the members at any time. They may go there for rest and relaxation or may use the sunny library, equipped with a typewriter, as a place to work when they desire. Each member will have a key so she may go and come as she pleases. Arrangements also may be made with Miss Hart, as chairman of the house committee, for entertaining there. A small garden outside will be cultivated by Mrs. Lillian Arthur, Miss Bessie Poe and Mrs. Vylla Poe Wilson.

D. A. R. Holds 50th Congress Here in April

Hotel reservations are being made and local florists already are putting things in readiness for the busiest week of the year—April 14 to 20—when the Fiftieth Continental Congress of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, will be in session.

More than 4,000 Daughters from all States of the Union are expected to be present for the sessions, which will be of particular interest this year because a new president general will be elected with her cabinet, to succeed Mrs. Henry M. Robert, jr., of Annapolis, who has served for the past three years. Mrs. William H. Pouch, past president of the Children of the American Revolution, is the only candidate who has announced.

The congress will mark the close of half a century of the society's devoted patriotic service and will record the completion of various golden jubilee projects of Nation-wide scope.

Important resolutions concerning national defense and other major issues confronting the country will come before the congress. The society's achievements during its 50 years will be reviewed and its future course charted.

Because of the crowded schedule, this year's congress will continue for six instead of the customary five days. The annual banquet, however, will be on Friday night, as usual.

There are some important changes in the program, as compared with those of former years.

Pilgrimages to Arlington National Cemetery and to Mount Vernon will be made on Tuesday, April 15, instead of the Sunday preceding the opening of the congress, because of the crowds on Easter Sunday.

Tuesday evening, April 15, the historical pageant given during the Golden Jubilee celebration last October will be repeated. The formal reception to the president general will be omitted. Mrs. Robert and the national officers and honorary national officers will greet informally the members who may come to the stage following the pageant.

Since the pageant will occupy the program Tuesday evening, the pages' ball at the Mayflower Hotel has been scheduled for Thursday evening. Ordinarily the pages' ball follows the president general's reception on Tuesday evening.

The Fiftieth Continental Congress comes on Easter week, when the Capital will be crowded with visitors. Committees are hard at work, however, making arrangements to provide accommodations for all of the thousands of members of the D. A. R. who will come to Washington.

Women to Hear Mrs. Irene Wright At Chevy Chase

Miss Irene Wright, of the Cultural Relations Division of the State Department, will be the guest speaker of the international relations section of the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase at the regular monthly meeting of the group on Tuesday at 10:30 a. m., in the clubhouse on Connecticut Avenue.

Miss Wright's subject will be "The Lion's Cubs," the lion meaning Spain. She is the corresponding secretary of the Hispanic Society of the Americas and has been decorated twice, by Spain and Cuba. Miss Wright is also the author of a number of books dealing with historical research of England, Holland and Cuba.

Mrs. Wallace Honored at Tea Given by Congressional Club

Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Vice President, was honored yesterday at a tea given by the Congressional Club and attended by several hundred members and guests.

Spring sunshine apparently had persuaded the Congressional wives to exchange fur coats for suits and flowered hats, making the gathering a gay and attractive one. The Marine Orchestra, with the members in their red blousses, contributed not only its music but also added to the colorful picture. In fact, looking from the receiving line, where most of the women were in navy blue with accents of white, to the orchestra on the opposite side of the room, gave the quick impression of a patriotic color scheme.

Mrs. John Taber, of New York, the club president, who headed the line with Mrs. Wallace, wore a navy blue suit and hat and a corsage of white iris. Mrs. Wallace also was in navy blue, with a white crown in her small sailor hat and a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Charles A. Plumley who, as a next in line, wore black with a small flower hat; Mrs. Herron Pearson, a navy blue dress with a light blue yoke, and a navy hat; Mrs. Homer D. Angell, a flowered print dress and hat of white flowers; Mrs. John Sparkman, a navy dress and small sailor hat trimmed with flowers, and Mrs. Charles Clason, a navy suit with wide revers of beige linen edged in violet, and a small beige hat trimmed with bunches of violets.

The tea tables set in the dining room and the smaller room adjoining the ballroom were decorated in pink and white. One had a center bouquet of carnations; the other, of snapdragons, and both were lighted with pink candles.

Mrs. William H. Larabee, chairman of the hostess committee, was in charge of the tea rooms and was wearing a brown dress and a necklace of heavy gold beads, and a hat trimmed with wings in tones of orange and yellow.

Serving with her were Mrs. Clyde Williams, Mrs. Joe Smith, Mrs. Jesse Wolcott, Mrs. Charles Leavy and Mrs. Karl Stefan.

Alternating at the tea tables were Mrs. George Norris, Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, Mrs. J. J. Ellender, Mrs. Wallace H. White, Mrs. Elbert Thomas, Mrs. Ralph O. Brewster and Mrs. Alexander Wiley.

Among those attending the affair were Mrs. Richard Duncan and her guest, Mrs. Robert Lee Mehornay, of Kansas City, Mo., whose husband is serving in the Office of Production Management; Mrs. James H. Hughes, wife of Senator Hughes, of Delaware; Mrs. William Langer, wife of Senator Langer, of North Dakota; Miss Evelyn Pearson, who is here from Randolph-Macon College, spending her spring vacation with her uncle and aunt, Representative and Mrs. Pearson; Miss Gloria Feinberg, who is here from Hartford, Conn., spending the spring holiday with her uncle and aunt, Representative and Mrs. Herman Koppelmann; Mrs. Clarence Hancock, Mrs. Luther Patrick, Mrs. Henry W. Albers, who was the guest of Mrs. John Vorys; Mrs. Paul Boze and Mrs. Edward Kaier, of Indiana, who were guests of Mrs. Larabee; Miss Jeanette Grover, who returned this winter from a long residence in Rome, and who was there with Mrs. William Clark Taylor.

Martin Offers Plan to Pacify Midwest G.O.P.

By Geoffrey Parsons

Copyright by New York Tribune Inc.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 21.—Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., who will submit his resignation as chairman of the Republican National Committee in Washington on Monday, offered a plan today to meet the demand of Midwestern Republican State organizations that they be given a greater representation and voice in the G. O. P.'s national councils.

He suggested that the post of executive director, vacant for four months since the resignation of John D. M. Hamilton, be made a three-man job, with three executive directors, each assigned to a major section of the country: East, Midwest and Far West. Such a plan, an innovation in the party's setup, might satisfy the Midwestern State organizations, who feel that their success in recent elections entitles them to greater recognition from the party. The Martin proposal would at least make an important job for a Middle Westerner, it was pointed out, and not place the party machinery in this part of the country under the direction of some one unfamiliar with its problems.

The Martin proposal, however, elicited no immediate enthusiasm among the Midwestern State chairman who opened a two-day conference here today with an eye on the 1942 Congressional elections. They seek to emphasize their demand that the National Committee, if it should accept Mr. Martin's resignation at Washington on Monday, pick a Midwestern, preferably a Midwestern State chairman, as Mr. Martin's successor.

Mr. Martin spent five hours chatting with G. O. P. chairmen from a dozen States and then hurried back to Washington, leaving the assembled party leaders still in the dark as to whether he would allow himself to be drafted to continue as chairman of the National Committee. The feeling among the Republicans here is that he will, but Mr. Martin's only comment was: "All I can say is that I am going to resign on Monday. I can't predict what the committee will do."

Martin said that Wendell L. Willkie "has a strong hold on members of the party and will continue to be a strong factor in building up the party."

Willkie's stand for increased war aid to Great Britain, including his support of President Roosevelt's lease-lend bill, has not coincided with the views of many in his party.

Marseille Rioters Are Warned

Marseille, March 21 (U.P.).—French demonstrations against German and Italian military officials composing the Italo-German armistice commissions established here were revealed tonight in an official communique demanding that the "incidents" cease immediately.

The communique by the French military command warned of "severe repression" in event of further manifestations of hostility.

Family Affairs Are in Order Here

1. THE ANNUAL FAMILY DINNER was staged last night at Calvary Baptist Church, Eighth and H Streets Northwest. Feature of the affair was the selection of a "typical family." Those chosen were (left to right) Myra L. Mitchell (daughter); Clyde L. Garrett, former Texas Congressman (father); Mrs. Frank B. Mitchell (mother); John A. Patterson, sr., (grandfather), and Jack Brown (son)

2. A FATHER-SON BANQUET was held at the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, on Chevy Chase Circle, O. C. Wright Field Strike Is Ended

bers of the A. F. of L. involved to do so."

Col. Lester Miller, field commandant, described the settlement "as a fine American act where any thought of personal and factional differences have been set aside for the good of the entire Nation."

At the same time, forecasts of an early settlement of the strike at the Edgewater, N. J., plant of Aluminum Co. of America were made following the announcement by Sidney Hillman, OPM associate director general, that he had told representatives of striking C. I. O. aluminum workers to return to their jobs while the OPM would seek to aid in future negotiations to settle demands and grievances.

Elizabeth Strike Settled

An eight-day strike at the General Instrument Corporation Plant, at Elizabeth, N. J., was settled when A. F. of L. electrical workers obtained wage increases.

Prospects also brightened for settlement of the 11-day strike of 2,000 A. F. of L. employes of the Cornell Dubilier Co., makers of electrical parts vitally needed in defense construction. After a conference here Representative Eaton (Republican), of New Jersey, said both sides agreed to work on a plan for resumption of operations under an extension of a recently-expired contract. Eaton added that the company indicated it was willing to grant wage increases.

Negotiations proceeded at New York on a new soft coal mining contract, and at Pittsburgh toward a new contract between the C. I. O. Steel Workers Organizing Committee and the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation. Wage increases are sought in both cases.

From the West Coast came indications that the Nation's oldest defense strike, an eight-month shut down of a Weyerhaueser Timber Co. sawmill, may be the first to be considered by the National Defense Mediation Board. E. S. Jackson, Federal conciliator, said after a conference between company representatives and those of the striking A. F. of L. lumber and sawmill workers union that he had recommended to the Secretary of Labor a speedy certification of the dispute to the board.

To Mediate Sawmill Strike

In Los Angeles, executives of six large airplane plants reported that the strike at the Harvill Die Casting Corporation threatens a coastwide shutdown of aviation factories unless it is quickly ended. To meet the threat, Hillman appointed Paul Shoup, former Southern Pacific Railroad president, as industrial adviser to work with Thomas F. Burns, senior OPM labor consultant, already on the scene. The factory had been supplying 30,000 parts daily until it was shut down a week ago when 350 of its 425 employes walked out.

Yesterday's only strike extension was a walkout of 400 men from the Oakland, Calif., General Motors truck factory, joining a C. I. O. strike against Chevrolet and Fisher Body plants in the same city. Company officials said the men refused to use materials brought in and that the issue was presumably one of "hot cargo." The plant was working on Army truck orders.

Missing Girl Found in Park

Doctors, trying to question her, learned little of the girl's experiences since she left her room, at 1706 Nineteenth Street Northwest, for her office Wednesday morning. She broke into sobs at every question.

Once she did say, however, that she had been walking a lot.

Roommate Visits Her

Because of her distraught condition not even her roommate and former schoolmate, Miss Doris Nolan, was allowed to visit her last night.

Miss Egoscue was identified by cards in her purse. Also found there were $1.95 in cash and two travelers' checks, each made out in $10 amounts. She was reported having $25 with her when she disappeared Wednesday.

Police here said they received word from the girls' mother in Oregon yesterday that Miss Egoscue had on previous occasions disappeared from home for two or three days at a time. The mother, Mrs Laura Egoscue, was quoted as fearing her daughter was the victim of amnesia. Only a few weeks before she had come to Washington to accept a position with the War Department, the girl had disappeared from her position as a typist at the Forest Grove High School, but had returned safe several days later.

Pig Can't Lose

Hogg Cites Pigg, Brings Home Bacon

By the Associated Press

Fort Wayne, Ind., March 21.—Artemus Knuckles sued in Justice of the Peace Court to get back a pig that had wandered onto a neighbor's farm and been confiscated.

His lawyer was David Hogg.

Hogg cited a decision in a like case given by Sullivan Circuit Judge Martin L. Pigg.

Pigg's decree was based on an opinion of Indiana Supreme Court Judge John G. Berkshire.

But Justice William Moberly didn't have to rule on the question, was the pig Knuckles?

Knuckles and neighbor settled the case out of court. Knuckles paid $5 for the hog's keep and the neighbor gave him his hog back.

Yugoslavian Nazi In British Hands

New York, March 21 (AP).—Reliable reports were received here tonight that the pro-Nazi Milan Stoyadinovic, former Yugoslavian premier and foreign minister, is in British custody.

It was believed Yugoslavian authorities had turned him over to the British because they feared an attempt to establish him as a Yugoslavian "Quisling." Dispatches on Wednesday said Stoyadinovic had been expelled and sent into Greece, Britain's ally.

Mother-in-Law—A New Angle

Chicago, March 21 (AP).—Harold Hickey wanted a divorce from Rose Hickey—cause, mother-in-law trouble.

But then Hickey expanded: "Married in 1939, we went to live with my mother. I insisted that we rent an apartment of our own. But my wife became angry. The trouble was her affection for my mother."

Result—a divorce on grounds of desertion.

Well, It Will Grow Up

Gordon Burrows, who operates a filling station at 6021 Wisconsin Avenue, last night won the calf named Rosie which was the door prize at the party given by the United Democratic Women's Clubs at the Armory in Silver Spring. The calf was donated by Eugene Casey, of Gaithersburg.

"What will I do with it?" was Burrows' only comment.

Office 'City' Approval Withheld

Park Commission Indorses 1 Building At Suitland, Refuses To Back Seven Others

Until suitable facilities for planning and zoning are developed, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday declined to approve in total the proposed "Federal City" of eight office buildings at Suitland, Md.

The commission indorsed construction of one building to house not more than 4,000 workers. It had been proposed by the Public Buildings Administration to quarter 5,000 employes in each of the eight offices. The PBA has an option on 430 acres of land and $3,200,000 is available for the purchase and construction of the first building.

In a formal statement following its meeting yesterday, the Park and Planning Commission said it was unwilling "to approve any additional office buildings on this site unless further study should cause it to feel that it would be a wise policy to concentrate further office buildings in this one area."

Action Follows Inspection

In a further statement, the commission recommended that every effort be made to establish adequate public control by local authorities of housing developments in the area surrounding the Suitland project through proper zoning, subdivision and building regulations.

The commission's action followed an inspection tour of the Suitland site Thursday. Chairman John Nolen, jr., said the tour revealed a "startling lack" of plumbing and other facilities and predicted a serious water shortage might develop if the entire project were carried out.

Thomas S. Settle, executive secretary of the commission, reported that the present site "is no place for 40,000 persons"—the number expected to work in the proposed eight buildings under the PBA plan.

He added that the Suitland tract was outside the Maryland-Washington metropolitan district, as well as the Washington suburban sanitary district and without proper control as to general planning.

Recreation Shortage

Earlier the commission announced that Washington faced an emergency lack of recreational facilities and opportunities for children, adults and service men. The announcemen came after C. F. Palmer, defense housing coordinator, appeared at the meeting to discuss the effects of defense expansion.

Acting upon a proposal by Milo Christiansen, director of the D. C. Community Center and Playground Department, the planning group approved a plan to develop and improve 35 playgrounds and 20 park areas for recreational purposes.

Christiansen told the commission that efforts would be made to obtain for recreation purposes $8,000,000 of the $150,000,000 provided under terms of the Lanham bill, now before the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds. This legislation would authorize appropriations for additional community facilities necessary under the national defense program.

The defense program, said Christiansen, has aggravated an already rapid population increase in Washington. He pointed out that the city grew 36 per cent from 1930 to 1940 and in that time less than $1,000,000 was expended on recreational improvements.

The commission also approved approaches to a railroad overpass at T Street Northeast, crossing Mount Olivet Road east and west.

Miller Heads All Traffic Control Work

Motorcycle Squad, Accident-Prevention Unit to Be Under His Direction

Inspector Arthur E. Miller will be named head of all traffic control work, including the accident prevention unit and the motorcycle squad, at the Commissioners' board meeting next week, it was indicated yesterday.

The order will become effective on April 1, date of the retirement of Inspector William E. Holmes, head of the Metropolitan Police traffic division.

Commissioner John Russell Young, who held up Inspector Miller's appointment last week because he wanted "a little time to think it over," yesterday declared Miller is the "logical choice." His appointment was forecast last week in The Post.

An honor graduate of the Northwestern University School of Traffic, Inspector Miller has been specializing for many years in local traffic work and has been groomed for the job by his superior, Superintendent Ernest W. Brown.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, in charge of all police activities, has been a strong supporter of Inspector Miller, as head of traffic, for many years. Engineer Commissioner David McCoach, jr., is also prepared to vote for Miller's new designation.

Streetcars Collide, Five Are Injured

Five persons were taken to hospitals last night following a collision of two Capital Transit Co. street cars at Seventh Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest at 8:35 o'clock. Four of the injured were women.

The injured:

Grace Keyes, 28, of 233 Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast.

Mary Clark, 23, of 427 Sixteenth Street Southeast.

John C. Hausch, 28, colored, of 1107 Irving Street Northwest.

None was seriously injured. They were taken to the hospitals by motorists.

Police said Thomas J. Payne, 28, of 1460 Irving Street Northwest, and Daniel L. Warwick, 55, of 639 Gallatin Street Northwest, were conductors of the cars.

New Parking Rules Issued for 13th Street

New parking regulations affecting Thirteenth Street Northwest between Logan Circle and Arkansas Avenue were issued yesterday by the District Commissioners. Further restrictions were also ordered on six other streets and one street was designated for one-way traffic.

The Office of National Capital Parks, meanwhile, announced that traffic on West Executive Avenue, between Pennsylvania Avenue and State Place, will be one-way southbound beginning Monday. The change was made at the request of the White House, officials said, to expedite official business there and at the State Department.

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer said the Thirteenth Street restrictions were intended to extend the rush-hour parking restrictions on that street as far as Arkansas Avenue.

The new regulations follow:

From Logan Circle to Arkansas Avenue, no parking, east side from 7 to 9:30 a. m. and west side from 4 to 6 p. m., except from Logan Circle to U Street no parking at any time on the west side; from Florida Avenue to Clifton Street, no parking on either side at any time; from Monroe Street to Spring Road, no parking west side from 7 to 9:30 a. m.

The new one-way street will be U Place between Fourth and Sixth Streets Northwest, for westbound traffic only.

All other restrictions are in the Northwest section and are as follows:

E Street from Seventeenth to Eighteenth Streets, no parking at any time on the south side and no parking between 7 and 9:30 a. m. on the north side.

F Street between Sixth and Seventh Streets, no parking from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. on the south side.

Fairmount Street from Georgia Avenue to Sixth Street, no parking at any time.

G Place from Ninth to Tenth Streets, no parking at any time on the north side and from Sixth Street east to the first alley on the north side no parking at any time.

Rittenhouse Street, no parking at any time on the north side from Georgia Avenue east to the first alley, a distance of 200 feet and on the south side from Georgia Avenue west to the first alley.

Woodley Road, no parking at any time around the small triangular island at the intersection of Twenty-ninth Street.

The second registration of Government dancers will take place at 1:15 p. m. today in the District Building, focal point of a program to entertain 50,000 soldiers, marines and sailors and an equal number of national defense workers.

Since two weeks ago when the first "draft" was held, Archie Edwards and his recreation committee cohorts have been besieged by Federal lassies just clamoring to sign up for the dances, he explained yesterday.

A campaign is soon to begin to enlist Washington families to invite the selectees to a nice Sunday dinner or a place to sleep over the week-end. Minor Hudson, chairman of the community, hospitality and recreation subcommittee of the District Defense Council, recalled the cooperation of D. C. families during the last war.

Meanwhile, Edwards promised that of the first 175 girls who register today 100 will be dispatched to tonight's barn dance in Alexandria and 75 to Quantico. Last night 50 of the registrants danced with soldiers at the Arlington Cantonment.

Carter Barron, division manager of Loew's Theaters, was named chairman of the talent review committee at a meeting of the community, hospitality and recreation group yesterday. Harold D. Fangboner will head a group to work on service clubs for the men in uniform, and T. J. Anderson, assistant director of the Community Center, will head the group in charge of entertainment for colored troops.

Next week's activities listed by Edwards include:

Tuesday at 7:30 p. m., Thomson School, Twelfth and L Streets Northwest, tryouts in dramatics for plays ot be presented at the camps.

Tuesday at 8:30 p. m., Federal Auditorium, concert by the Department of Agriculture symphony orchestra and chorus, under direction of Dr. Walter Bauer.

Wednesday at 8:30 p. m., Central High School, and every Wednesday night in the future, tryouts for specialty acts for entertainments at the camps and locally for defense workers.

Friday at 8 p. m., Camp Meade, a company of 75 will entertain with music, singing, dancing and acrobatics.

Saturday at 8 p. m., Holbrook Farm Dairy, dance with 100 girl "selectees."

Standing-up Bars Favored For District

Serving of Drinks To Patrons on Feet Receives Approval Of Commissioners

Proposed legislation to permit standing at bars has won the approval of the District Commissioners, it was learned yesterday. Next week they plan to act on this and 21 other proposed changes in the liquor code submitted by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

Failure by the city heads to act on the proposed regulations, shelved by them because of a request of the Federation of Citizens Associations, yesterday brought Chairmen Reynolds and Randolph of the Senate and House District Committees to the District Building for an explanation.

The federation had asked the Commissioners to withhold action until a report was submitted by the citizens. This document was submitted yesterday to the Commissioners.

See Better Control

Both Commissioners John Russell Young and David McCoach, jr., feel that standing at the bar will bring about better control. They argue that the bartender has a better opportunity to judge the sobriety of a standing customer.

Police Supt. Ernest W. Brown last year testified in favor of this regulation when it was discussed at the Eberharter hearing on the local liquor situation.

A proposal indorsed by the Board of Education, which would prohibit issuance of a license to any store within 600 feet of a public or parochial school, college, university, library, athletic field, hospital or church, has very little chance of approval by the Commissioners in its present form.

Although this restriction, if approved as it now stands, would not affect holders of licenses, these same licensees would have to comply with the regulation when they made application for renewal or transfer. All liquor licenses must be renewed each year.

McCoach Prepares Map

Col. McCoach yesterday began preparation of a map pointing out the locations of all schools, churches, libraries and the like, with circles indicating a 600-foot radius.

Many of the circles overlapped, but a careful study indicated there would be little territory, except in theoutskirts of the city, where a license could be granted under this proposal.

The two controversial questions in the proposals, which would ban the use of prices in liquor advertisements and a price-fixing proposal, are due for rough sledding when taken up by the Commissioners, Senator Reynolds, who was present at yesterday's conference at the invitation of Representative Randolph, said he approved the ban on the use of prices.

Mrs. Doyle Tells Policy on Protests

A new policy of the Board of Education not to file merely "routine protests" against renewal of liquor licenses was designed to make a "stronger case" rather than to relax efforts, Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the board, said yesterday after having received a letter from the Washington Federation of Churches.

The letter, signed by Wilbur LaRoe, jr., chairman of the federation's committee on civic affairs, said that the board of directors was under the impression that the superintendent of schools "was discouraged from opposing renewals unless new facts have been developed since the granting of a license."

It continued: "This we regard as most unfortunate, if true, for the reason that the same facts which originally made the superintendent feel that the granting of the particular license was inadvisable may still exist when renewal is sought. . . . It is difficult for us to understand on what theory the board sought to tie the hands of the superintendent in this matter."

The Board of Education adopted the policy on March 5. It stated, in part, that "as a general rule, protests against renewals by school authorities should be based on new information or any evidence of violation of the law rather than as a routine course of procedure merely because a protest was filed at the time the original application (for a license) was made."

Mrs. Doyle said that routine protests had proved ineffective in the matter of renewals, and that school authorities would now attempt to make a stronger case in situations which they regarded as detrimental.

U. S. Convoys 'Inevitable,' Fr. Walsh Says

The lend-lease bill was called a "more historic and challenging pronouncement than any private or public act of the past" by the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown University, in an address last night at Memorial Continental Hall.

Speaking in his annual series of lectures, Father Walsh said "we have enunciated a new Monroe Doctrine. . . . But the Roosevelt doctrine of 1941 enjoys a legal sanction which neither President Monroe nor any of his successors ever achieved," he stated.

Of the bill's implications, Father Walsh pointed out that the latest Gallup Poll shows 83 per cent of public opinion is still against America going to "war in formal and unequivocal panoply."

"Upon the President devolves the heavy task of attemptin gto reconcile that poignant expression of hope with the steady pressure of an almost mathematical formula. If he decides—or if he has already decided—to convoy those supplies by American sea and air power he will be strictly logical and consistent."

"The materials dispatched to England are useless for the defense of democracy," he went on, "if they find resting place in the depths of the ocean. They must reach their destination or else they might just as well be kept at home. Hence, to convoy them by American warships and warplanes seems inevitable. The President was freely elected to a third term with full knowledge of the growing tragedy and with clear understanding of the meaning implied by that shattering of long-established precedent. The necessity of his dealing with each crisis as it arose was implicit in the vote of confidence," he declared.

Great Stocking Mystery Ends; It WAS Acid

It WAS sulfuric acid, girls and you may now have the scientific word of the National Bureau of Standards.

Since Februray 18 when the first runs on local hosiery made their spectacular appearance the Bureau has been testing stockings ruined windy days.

H. Kenneth Kugel, the District's smoke inspector, announced three days ago it was sulfuric acid. He'd found a smoke stack downtown which gave forth this "deadly" agent of milady's hosiery.

Over the weekend this stack is to be scrubbed clean.

The Bureau of Standards, in its report, said:

"Dark specks of matter could be seen with the unaided eye at most of the breaks.

"They clung to the fibers at or near the breaks. The broken fibers clearly had been acted upon by a chemical at the point of rupture and had none of the characteristics of fibers which have been severed by cutting or abrasion. Chemical tests showed fibers to be strongly acid in the vicinity of the particles, but not elsewhere. Analysis showed that the acid was sulfuric acid."

It was stated that possible sources of sulfuric acid in the air in cities include the products of combustion of coal, fuel oil and gas, automobile exhaust gases and spray from overcharging of storage batteries.

D. of A. Benefit Tonight

District No. 1, Daughters of America, Fairfax, is sponsoring a benefit bingo party tonight at 8 o'clock in the Order of Fraternal Americans Hall, Vienna.

Takoma Park Citizens Ask School Fund

Because of the great growth in the area due to defense measures and new building operations, the Takoma Park, Md.-D. C. Citizens Association last night voted to call on the State Legislature for $50,000 for an addition to the J. Enos Ray School on New Hampshire Avenue.

Following an address by Mrs. George E. Robertson of the Takoma Park Health and Welfare Association on the work being done by that group the citizen's body went on record to supply funds to support the dental clinic.

Steps also were taken at the meeting, held in the public library, to form a boy's club as as well as a similar organization for girls. The committee on recreation and playgrouds was instructed to work out details.

Walter E. Irey, chairman of the public utilities committee, made a report on the proposal of the Capitol Traction Co. to give improved express bus service for a straight 10-cent fare without transfers. He stated that seven different organizations in the area have united to fight any increase in fare. He pointed out that most of the residents in that vicinity would be forced to pay two fares to travel downtown.

George M. Roberts, superintendent of weights, measures and markets, talked of the work being done to protect the people of Washington from short-weight practices.

Three Get Prison Terms in Union Meeting Fracas

Three men who answered debate with violence at a meeting of Bricklayers Local Union No. 1 last July 24 were sentenced to imprisonment by Justice F. Dickinson Letts in the District Court yesterday.

Woodson W. Holst, a member of the local, complained that he was attacked when he took the floor to deny that improper overtime practice had existed at a navy yard project. The cases were dropped in Police Court for lack of evidence. Later, Detective Sergt. Joseph E. Shimon, the District attorney's inquiry chief, uncovered evidence which was given directly to the grand jury.

Convicted of attacking Holst with iron pipes were two officers of the union, Thomas Elam and John Gleason. Elam got two to six years in prison and Gleason one to three years.

Convicted of simple assult was William Gleason, who was sentenced to ten months in jail.

Assistant District Attorneys Charles B. Murray and William Hitz, jr., prosecuted the three in a weeklong trial in the District Court last week.

Dr. Wetmore Off To Study Birds In Colombia Wilds

Bogota, Colombia, March 21 (AP).—Dr. Alexander Wetmore, director of the United States National Museum in Washington, and a party of Colombian and North American scientists, headed today for the little-known Guijira Peninsula, northernmost point of South America, to seek new forms of bird life and to study bird migration.

The party's goal will be the three virtually unexplored mountain ranges at the eastern end of the peninsula which is divided by the Colombia-Venezuela border line. Dr. Wetmore said he hoped to find new clews to the secrets of bird migration.

During the two-month expedition, the party will collect specimens for both the National Museum and the Colombian Museum of Natural Science.

Economical Tuberculosis Work Pledged

Harald H. Lund, new executive secretary of the D. C. Tuberculosis Association, last night pledged an efficient and economically run tuberculosis-fighting organization, in a speech before the District of Columbia Public School Association.

"The association feels a real responsibility to the people who buy seals," said Lund.

Mrs. R. M. Graham, State chairman of the summer roundup committee of D. C. Parent-Teacher Association, described work of examining children in schools during the regular terms and having their necessary health work done in summer.

The association adopted a resolution indorsing the Overton bill formula for determining the Government's annual payments to the District of Columbia.

One of the founders, Joseph Howard, will make the principal address.

Library Taking Protective Measures, MacLeish Reveals

Observing that the British Museum completed plans for safeguarding its collection four years before the outbreak of war, Archibald MacLeish, the Librarian of Congress, yesterday announced that the Congressional Library "is taking preliminary steps" for the protection of its 6,000,000 volumes and pamphlets "against any risk, however remote."

American libraries and museums have had under consideration the "general problem" of protection of their storehouses of knowledge "since the beginning of the present war," MacLeish said.

The protective measures now being taken by the Library, he declared, entail "the listing of unique and irreplacesble books and manuscripts." He added that "problems of packing and storage are under consideration."

"The Library administration expects no change in its service or in the maintenance of its collections," MacLeish said. "However, preparation for the protection of a collection of 6,000,000 volumes and pamphlets is a slow business, since enormous quantities of books must be handled in order to list exceptional materials.

"Any large library, and particularly a library of the size and importance of the Library of Congress, has in its collections many books and manuscripts of such great value that every possible precaution against any risk, however remote, must be taken for their preservation."

Burglar Loots School Near Police Station

A burglar yesterday broke into the Grimpke School, 1900 block Vermont Avenue Northwest, less than 30 feet from the back door of the Thirteenth Precinct station. He stole $18.50 worth of candy and knickknacks.

Edna H. Rhines, principal of the school, reported the robbery, but was unable to tell police how the intruder entered. Loot, which included only 11 cents in money, consisted of several pieces of china, a leather jacket, four boxes of candy and a package of cookies.

Two other District schools also were entered during the night, it was reported, apparently by the same thief.

Two electric irons and 10 pounds of ham were taken from the Margaret Murray Washington School, O Street Northwest between North Capitol and First Streets, and several carpenters' tools were stolen from the John F. Cook School, North Capitol and P Streets.

In both the latter burglaries, police said, iron grillwork was removed from rear windows. Intruders also smashed into telephone pay stations at the Cook and Washington Schools, taking an undetermined amount of cash.

Army Announces Plan to Enlist Negro Air Unit

The Army yesterday announced plans for formation of the first Negro air squadron, and said enlistments would be opened in a week for 40 men from the Middle Atlantic area.

The unit, the Ninety-ninth Pursuit Squadron, will have 33 pilots and a ground crew of 276. Enlistments for the latter force will be opened at Bolling Field and other Air Corps posts next weekend on a "first come, first served" basis. High school graduates only are accepted in the Air Corps.

Tax Collector Issues Warning

Tax Collector Guy Pearson yesterday warning there are nine days left to pay the second half installment on the real estate and personal property taxes without added penalties.

Deadline for the payment is March 31. He also reminded taxicab operators that they must pay their $25 license fee before March 31. Only 1,600 of an estimated 4,500 drivers have obtained the license.

Joe Extended To Limit in BruisingBout

N.Y. Giant, Knocked Down Repeatedly, Is On Feet at Finish; Gets Return Bout

By Jack Cuddy.
United Press Staff Writer

Detroit, March 21.—Abe Simon, the New York "man mountain" astounded the boxing world tonight by lasting until the thirteenth round with Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis before a Detroit record indoor crowd of 19,000 flabbergasted fans.

Louis, defending his title for the fifteenth time, scored a technical knockout over the giant challenger at 1:20 of the thirteenth round when Referee Sam Hennessey stepped in and stopped the bout.

Big Abe, who provided Louis with the most serious competition he met since the night Max Schmeling knocked Joe out, was wandering helplessly about the ring when Hennessey intervened. Simon had been floored twice in that thirteenth session for counts of nine. Earlier in the battle Simon had been on the canvas twice and at another time he went half way through the ropes.

Simon Proves Tough

Simon, who had been expected to get kayoed in a couple of sessions, proved to be the toughest man Louis ever met. Only a superman could have absorbed the dynamite that Joe dealt tonight. . . . But Big Abe, gashed in both brows and with cuts on his nose and mouth . . . kept plugging along like a human box car. His ruggedness and fighting heart were amazing indeed.

Promoter Mike Jacobs was so pleased with Simon's performance that he announced a return 15-round title match at Madison Square Garden on May 16.

But even more amazing was Simon's wagon-tongue left jab which pumped continually into the champion's surprised face . . . a face that gradually became glove-flushed and then badly swollen. Joe's left cheek and eye were bruised so badly that he could hardly see from that peeper.

Joe Gets to Him

The bout was scheduled for 20 rounds, and after the tenth passed, with Simon still going strong it seemed as if he might actually last the full distance. But Joe got to him in the thirteenth and his dynamite finally crumbled the man-mountain.

After about 15 seconds of that round, Joe smashed Abe with a left hook on the chin. Abe staggered backwards into his own corner. There a thundering right dropped him flat on his back. He rose at the count of nine. Louis was after him, battering the big fellow's head with hooks. They circled into a ROUND ONE—Louis hooked a left to the ear. Louis jabbed another to the cheek and Simon was short with two jabs. Abe bounced a hook off Louis' eye. Louis floored Simon with a whistling right, but Abe was up with no count. Abe jabbed Joe twice on the eye. Louis dashed in with a left to the body. They mauled each other in close. Joe bounced a left and right off Abe's chin and Abe was staggered.

Louis-Simon Fight, Round By Round

In a half clinch Joe crossed to the head and took a left to the body from the giant. Louis smashed right and left to the head. They stood in milling a few moments swinging wildly. Abe backed Louis into the ropes at the bell and the crowd roared.

Simon clicked twice with a left jab. Joe raised a red mark on Abe's eye. They traded straight lefts to the head. Abe jabbed three times to the face without a return. Louis smashed two solid rights to Abe's jaw. Again they squared off and clubbed long lefts. Louis hooked a hard left to the head at the bell.

Joe dashed in, throwing both hands to the head. Simon stuck his left into Joe's face and held momentarily. Louis smashed Abe with two solid rights to the chin and followed with two more to the chin and the giant took it standing up at the bell.

Louis' round.

ROUND SIX—Abe stuck that same straight left into Joe's face twice. For half

Chattanooga Bows, 9-5, to Nats' Rookies

By Wirt Gammon
Sports Editor, Chattanooga Times.

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 21.—Spring may be here now, but not for Chattanooga's bat attack. It reverted to type again today. The Lookouts amassed only six hits and fell before the Washington "B" team, managed by Calvin Griffith, 9 to 5, in a game which a heavy rain interrupted to turn the camp's warmest day into its coldest.

The Lookouts were helpless before the slants of Joe Beack, right-handed Orlando star of last year, and had only one hit when he went out in the end of the sixth. They did get going later against Alex Zokowsky, with the aid of his wildness, but right in the middle of a seventh-inning rally, with the tying run on second base, Manager Griffith changed pitchers, putting in Dick Poydok, fine-looking southpaw from Kingsport, and that bit of strategy by the former Lookout manager stopped the Chattanoogans.

John Welaj fell in love with the pitching of Rae Scarborough and Lefty Burrows. The Nat utility man of last season batted in five runs with two singles and two doubles.

Tuffy Leemans Receives Draft Questionnaire

The long arm of Uncle Sam reached out yesterday to determine if football star Tuffy Leemans is to be called into service under the Selective Service Act. Last night Leemans was poring over his draft questionnaire.

LEEMANS

Leemans, the New York Giants' backfield ace, is 28 and married with no children.

Interviewed last night the former George Washington gridiron star declared he had no idea when or if he would be called but said "I'm ready."

Leemans said he had a high call number in Local Board No. 2. "About 2,000," I believe.

He is to start grid practice with the New York Giants sometime in August, probably at Superior, Wis.

Eagles, Rovers Tie, 6-6, In Hectic Ice Match

N. Y. Overcomes 0-5 Deficit to Force Game Into Overtime; Eagles Held by Own Goalie

By Jack Munhall

The vagaries of Eastern Amateur League ice hockey were manifest to 2,078 fans at Riverside Stadium last night when the champion Washington Eagles amassed a 5-0 lead over the fourth-place New York Rovers and barely gained a 6-6 overtime tie because they had great difficulty in scoring on one of their own goalies.

The Rovers, coming from behind with 4 goals in the third period, tied the count at 5-5 going into overtime and then forged ahead, 6-5, before Washington managed for a tying marker with only 1 minute left of the extra period. And all the trouble was caused because for more than 19 minutes Washington was held scoreless by its spare goalie, Les Colvin, who was recruited by New York when the Rover goalie was injured.

Rovers Overcome Deficit

And so well did Colvin execute his unusual duties that Washington was held scoreless while the Rovers overcame a 1-5 deficit and almost won the match. Paul Courteau fired in the goal that enabled Washington to produce the first tie for New York all season.

Colvin was a big improvement over Cosby, for it was against young Gerard that the Eagles had apparently put the match on ice (no pun intended) with all of their five goals in the first period. The Rovers scored once in the second stanza, added another early in the third and then deadlocked the count with three quickies late in the third session after Colvin had entered their line-up.

Frankie Parker, always a nemesis to Washington, sent the game into overtime when, at 17:15, he scored on assists by Julie Sawchuck and Fred Ferens. Previously Howie Hollinger and Jimmy Wilson had tacked on goals to the one "Red" Tilson made in the first two minutes of the third period to set the stage for the deadlock.

New York took the lead for the first time at 3:45 of the overtime on a shot by Bob Brownridge with the help of Hollinger and Lude Check. But along came Courteau, with his second goal of the night to score the point that clinched the Walker Cup for the Eagles. Oddly, it was Courteau who, at 8:07 of the first period, had marked up the Eagles' first goal.

Eagles Score Early

Sensational was the Eagles' first period attack which deluged the bewildered Rovers with five goals. The Eagles were playing as if they had bet money on themselves, and the Rovers, not expecting such ferocity from a team that had already clinched the title, were swept off their feet.

The forward line of Courteau, Dewey and Pranschke opened scoring at 8:07, with Courteau swatting the puck in on a double pass from his mates. Germann got No. 2 on a spectacular solo charge. Mike took the puck in center ice and swung toward the left corner. Rover defenseman, Fred Ferens, took up the chase immediately and began shouldering the Eagle and poking at the puck with his stick. But despite that interference, Germann edged in toward the nets and from a diffi-

Augusta, Ga., March 21.—Both the defending champion and the medalist will be missing in finals play for the Forest Hills Women's Invitation Golf Championship here tomorrow.

Miss Helen Siegel, of Philadelphia, the defending champion, lost to Medalist Elizabeth Hicks, of Long Beach, Calif., on Thursday, and Miss Hicks in turn bowed, 3 and 2, to Dorothy Kirby, of Atlanta, in the semifinals today.

The other semifinals winner was Professional Helen Dettweiler, of Washington, D. C., who rallied after being 3 down at the twelfth hole to edge out the veteran Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., 1 up.

Miss Dettweiler and Miss Kirby will meet in the 18-hole finals tomorrow.

Bulla, Ghezzi In Deadlock For Golf Lead

By the Associated Press

Greensboro, N. C., March 1.—Erratic Vic Ghezzi, of Deal, N. J., and Johnny (Boo Boo) Bulla, Greensboro's husky problem child of golf, toured the par 70 Sedgefield Country Club course in 67's today and tied for the 18-hole lead in the Greensboro open.

Ghezzi, member of the honorary 1939 Ryder Cup team which didn't get to play because of the war, carded the lowest 9-hole score of the day in negotiating the first half in 32, 3 under par.

Bulla, shooting with power and accuracy, was rarely in trouble, and missed a much lower score by rimming several long putts which would have given him birdies. He had birdies on the fourth and fifth holes to round the turn two under.

On the second nine Bulla shot one bogey and sank a 36-foot putt for an eagle three on the eighteenth.

Ghezzi, who hadn't won a major tournament since he took first in the North-South in 1938, attracted much of the record opening-day gallery of 4,500 by the time he reached the eighteenth.

Three tied for the next position with 68's—Ed Burke, Horton Smith and Jim Turnesa. Burke had trouble with putts, but came up with an eagle three on the eighteenth, sending his second 200-yard shot dead to the pin. Smith missed an eagle on the same hole when his 40-foot putt trickled by the cup.

Fine Support Of Leonard Saves Game

Dean, Wild, Gives Detroit All Runs; Lewis and Evans Lead Plate Attack

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Orlando, Fla., March 21.—The Nats have found somebody they can lick. Today, for the second time, they beat the Tigers in the Grapefruit League. They won the ball game in the first three innings and then sort of poured it on by shutting the Tigers out in the last seven innings. The final score was 7 to 5.

Dutch Leonard won most of the plaudits of the 1,500 natives and tourists at Tinker Field. He walked into the ball game in the fifth inning, and the Tigers haven't scored a run against him yet. He gave up only four hits in his five-inning turn on the mound.

But Jim (Dopey) Dean was something of a disappointment to Manager Bucky Harris. He pitched the first four innings and gave up all of the Tigers' five runs. He lacked control. He walked two batters, hit another and tossed a grievous wild pitch into the proceedings. Not only that, but he lacked a fast ball.

However, Dean did not exactly pitch himself out of a Washington uniform. After giving up a run in the first inning, and being victimized for four in the second, he settled down and held the Tigers scoreless in the third and fourth. And except for an error by Buddy Lewis, he would not have been scored on in the Tigers' big second inning.

Runs Scored Early

All of the game's runs were packed into the first three innings. The Nats hammered Johnny Gorsica, one of the Tigers' better pitchers, in the first inning for three runs to take a 3-1 lead, and after the Tigers went in front 5-3 in the second, Washington came up with a run in the second inning and three runs in the third to take the 7-5 lead it held to the finish.

Despite his scoreless performance, Leonard was in trouble in both the eighth and the ninth innings when the Tigers had the tying runs on base. Sammy West made a fancy catch of Franklin's long drive in the eighth to rescue Leonard, and in the ninth Jimmy Bloodworth saved the game for the Nats. The Tigers had two on base and two out in the ninth when Bloodworth went far to his right for a fiercely-smacked grounder by Ned Harris and came up with a brilliant stop of the ball, turning it into a game-ending forceplay at second base.

Buddy Lewis and Al Evans were the big shots in the Nats' batting order. Lewis banged out hits in both the first and second innings that figured in Washington runs, and in the third Evans tripled viciously into left field for a hit that had a part in two more runs by the Nats.

First Man Singles

The first man to face Dean, Frank Croucher, knocked his first pitch for a single, and Dean wild-pitched him to second. The run scored when Harris singled past Travis. Dean, however, forced Hank Greenberg to ground into a double play started by Travis.

Against Gorsica the Nats countered with four hits and three runs in the first inning. Case drew a walk, and with one out, Sammy West, Buddy Lewis and Cecil Travis singled in succession. A bit later Jack Sanford beat out an infield hit to drive in the third run of the inning.

The first four men to face Dean reached base in the second inning. He hit Rudy York on the back and then he walked Gehringer and Franklin. Two runs scored when Lewis' butchered Tebbetts' hard grounder. A third crossed the plate when Gorsica's grounder took a freak hop past Bloodworth for a

A Ticklish Spot for Washington Goalie in Second Period

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Orlando, Fla., March 21.—You know the story of the ugly duckling which emerged finally as a beautiful swan. Well, little Jimmy Pofahl threatens to improve on that one. He was a dead duckling no less, when he came to the Nats' camp here four weeks ago, but he is beginning to emerge as the Nats' regular shortstop.

POVICH

There wasn't a place in the Washington line-up for Pofahl when the Nats set up their headquarters here on February 19. Cavorting about in a Washington uniform, he was just a $40,000 eye sore to Clark Griffith, who for a year had never ceased to wonder how he ever came to part with that much dough for the likes of Pofahl. He couldn't throw, and he couldn't hit.

But all of a sudden, Griffith and Manager Bucky Harris, too, are happy to have Pofahl around. The United States Army threatens to revamp the Washington infield. Third Baseman Buddy Lewis will be in the Army within 60 days, according to best information, and the Nats' first move will be to restore Cecil Travis to third base. Then they'll move Pofahl into the shortstop job again.

They're happy to have him around because, in some magic manner, the fellow has suddenly begun to act like a $40,000 rookie. His newfound, or perhaps newly recovered talents, will soften the blow of Lewis' loss. Travis can play third base better than Lewis ever did, and Pofahl now threatens to play shortstop better than Travis could have done.

When the Nats arrived in Orlando last month, Pofahl was a pathetic sort of personality in the camp. He had been relegated to the bench with eminous finality. Bucky Harris simply implied that Pofahl was no big leaguer, and in all of his public utterances he did not include the boy in any of his 1941 plans. Pofahl was a silent little fellow during all the training and exhibition game preliminaries. When he got into the late innings of the exhibition games, it was just a sop to his pride, tossed Pofahl away by Harris, who doesn't like to hurt anybody.

Long before the middle of last season, the Nats' bosses had given up on Pofahl. That he would not be a power hitter was obvious from his size, but they were hopeful that he would maintain a respectable average. But he couldn't get up a gallop at bat and finished his brief term as a regular with a .234 average. That was a sad deficiency, but Pofahl could have won more consideration by showing some skill in the field. He didn't—not much, anyway.

The fellow's throwing arm was something scandalous. Candy arm, the baseball people call it. He could scarcely get the ball across the diamond to first base, and then it was only with an effort. He scrambled around pretty well after ground balls, but if he had to make more than any ordinary throw, he was up against it. He was tabbed simply as the owner of a bad arm.

Griffith all but vowed that he would never buy another ball player he had not seen. In Pofahl's case, he had drafted his former ace scout, Joe Engel, to appraise the fellow at Minneapolis, and Engel had turned in a glowing report about him. Engel had said nothing about a weak arm, and Griffith supposed he was buying a capable shortstop.

However, even Griffith could not believe that Pofahl's arm trouble could have escaped the notice of his scouts, and he protested vigorously to Mike Kelly, owner of the Minneapolis team, that Kelly had turned an injured player over to the Nats. Kelly maintained that if Pofahl's arm had been hurt, it must have happened in the off-season, and then it was brought out that Pofahl did, indeed, figure in an off-season taxicab accident that hurt his throwing arm.

At best, though, Pofahl did not bulk as an asset at shortstop. Given a good throwing arm, he did appear to be a typical ground-ball bearcat, weak-hitting shortstop of the National League type who did not fit into the power-crazy American League scheme. Griffith continued to moan about the 40 grand from which he had separated himself.

But somehow, Pofahl has begun to play good ball. Bucky Harris has been gaping at the excellence of the throws he has been making for the past week, and not an infielder on the club can come up with as difficult a ground-ball chance as Pofahl. He is even beginning to look like a fellow who could hit a respectable .290, and altogether it's pretty wonderful for the Nats at a time like this when Uncle Sam wants Buddy Lewis.

More Bunk Than Poetry:

Dear Boss:

There's that old saying about you can lead a horse to water, but you can't make him drink. Well, anyway, I can write you these letters, Boss, but I can't make you read them. In fact, I'm not writing this one, I'm letting the members of the Walter Haight Club air out some of their entries in the contest. I'm not going to play any favorites. I just snatched up a wad of them and I'm going to let the chips fall in all directions. Without further ado, will get right down to business.

HAIGHT

We might as well start with a stinkeroo, the work of J. S. D., jr. He's fair on rhyme and good at reason, but the only meter involved is the one in the cellar. Here goes:

Tubby-Tone Haight, may his tribe decrease,
His "Dear Boss" column is an A-1 piece;
A-1 as to lousy, it's the worst in creation,
Let's draft Pounds and his column for a year's hibernation.

Some members are relying on the one-two punch. They are the on-the-fence type and send in two verses, one building me up and the other knocking me down. Take a gander at this from W. O. C.:

I know of a slob by the name of Haight,
Who is always crushing a race track gate;
He writes funny stuff about his trips,
But never mentions his measly tips.

This same W. O. C. must have had a feeling of remorse after writing the above, for he pulled a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde with his other entry. I can almost feel him patting me on the back with this:

Some men aspire to be sports-writers,
Some are cast into life's niche by fate;
Some guzzle whisky by the liters,
But I'd rather write like Walter Haight.

Mrs. C. H. out on Fortieth Street must have started to write one and then decided to confess. At any rate, she gets off to a good start and ends the thing rather abruptly. She writes:

My friend Pounds Haight hates weigh.,
That's cause he jests about his fate;
I know, I'm in the same shape.

I thought that horse named for me would come into this thing sooner or later. D. H. brought this one to the office in person. He looks like a lovely person and I like him but——

Now Walter cares nothing of weight,
So long as the food comes to Haight;
And he'd feel no remorse to eat some of his horse
Dished up as a stew on his plate.

Some club members dig deep in their bag of wisdom and come up with classic lines. V. H. M. makes me feel as if I'm something down in marble (which I ain't) with:

Diamond Jim and fleet Gold Heels
Were like our own two Walter Haights,
For man and horse were sparkling wheels
In life's huge tide of changing fates.

C. L. H. is another of those two-timers. After getting off four long lines calling my stuff "tripe," he must have run short of ink, because his next effort is short but sweet (to me):

Old Man Haight,
Ain't he a sight,
Big as a barrel,
But, boy—can he write?

But I like them all. From Greenbelt comes a touching verse composed by I. N. M. He sent in eight, but his No. 2 effort looked like his best. I wonder what the judges will say about:

Whenever I hear of Walter Haight
There's one thing that I can't get straight;
Which is meant, the horse or man?
Each can fill a moving van.

Yanks Show 'Murderers Row' Flash to Rout Dodgers, 7-0

Five Homers Account for Seven Runs

Dizzy Dean Blanks Bucs for 3 Frames; Mize's Single Beats Bosox for Cardinals

Clearwater, Fla., March 21 (AP).—The New York Yankees, looking like the "murderers row" of their world championship days, blasted the Brooklyn Dodgers into a 7-to-0 defeat today. All seven runs were scored by the home run route. Tommy Henrich hit two of them to account for three tallies. Charley Keller opened the shelling with a four-bagger with Red Rolfe on base in the first inning and Joe Gordon and Rolfe each hit homers with the bases empty. Kirby Higbe was the victim of the first four blasts while Rolfe's was made off Bill Swift.

Marvin Bruer and Spud Chandler handcuffed the Dodgers, each allowing three hits. Bruer pitched the first five innings and Chandler finished.

Dizzy Dean Shows Form

Los Angeles, Calif., March 21 (U.P.).—Dizzy Dean pitched five scoreless innings today as the Chicago Cubs triumphed over the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7-4. Ken Raffensberger relieved Dean in the sixth frame and allowed the Pirates all their runs—two two-run homers by Dominic DiMaggio and Bob Elliott.

Lou Novikoff hit his second homer in two days to give the Cubs the game. The rookie outfielder hit for the circuit with two mates on base in the seventh inning after Rookie Lou Stringer also had homered.

Mize's Hit Helps Cards

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 21 (AP).—With Johnny Mize contributing a pinch-hitting single in his first appearance of the spring, the St. Louis Cardinals gave the Boston Red Sox a ninth-inning scare today before dropping a 4-to-3 exhibition game.

Mickey Harris pitched the first six innings for the Sox and allowed only three hits and one run. Emerson Dickman, who followed, got into trouble in the last inning by walking the first two men. Mize, only recently signed to a contract after a long holdout, drove in one of the runs scored by the Cardinals.

Pete Fox hit a home run with Manager Joe Cronin on base in the second inning for Boston's most telling blow.

Browns Win Twice

San Antonio, Tex., March 21 (AP).—Making it a day of double victory for the St. Louis Browns, Vernon Kennedy, Johnny Allen and Bob Harris collaborated in pitching a 2-hit 5-0 shutout against the Minneapolis Millers today in the second game of a twin bill. The Browns' reserves defeated the Randolph Field Ramblers, 8 to 4, in the first game.

Kennedy gave the Millers both their hits in his five innings on the mound. Allen, obtained from Cleveland, then pitched for the Browns for the first time. He was wild but unhittable in three innings. Harris finished one-two-three in the ninth.

Reds' Rookies Score

Tampa, Fla., March 21 (AP).—Rushing over seven runs in the first inning, the Cincinnati Reds Rookies trounced Birmingham, of the Southern Association 9-4 today before a slim crowd. Junior Thompson and Witt Guise hurled for the Red Rookies. Thompson handed out three passes and was touched for all nine Birmingham hits in the six rounds he worked.

Johnny Riddle, the Redleg's new 34-year-old catcher, showed a better than average arm in handling the receiving.

Tribe Rallies to Win

Fort Myers, Fla., March 21 (AP).—After being held to give hits and one unearned run in the first eight innings, the Cleveland Indians rallied in the ninth today for four runs and a 5-to-4 triumph over the Louisville Colonels of the American Association.

Outfielder Roy Weatherly, making his first start of the "grapefruit league" season, delivered the single which plated the tying and winning runs after one-base blows by Hal Trosky, Beau Bell and Ray Mack. G. U. Skaters Battle Penn Here Tonight Collegiate hockey will be featured at Riverside Stadium tonight when Georgetown University's sextet concludes its season against the University of Pennsylvania's pucksters at Riverside Stadium at 8 o'clock.

Two hours of public skating will follow the game and only 54 cents will be required for admission to both features.

The powerful Penn Skaters, Eastern Pennsylvania College Conference champions for the second consecutive season, will introduce one of the greatest collegiate goalies in the East in Victor Edelman; an all-conference center and high scorer in John Coperthwaite, and one of the fastest skaters of college players ever to invade locally in Bill Byrnes, a wing.

Coperthwaite is considered one of the finest scoring players ever turned out at Penn and one of the outstanding collegiate stars to be introduced at Riverside since hockey's introduction there.

The Hoyas have routed Franklin and Marshall and Temple, nosed out Lehigh and tied Penn State in games thus far, but will be on the short end of the odds tonight.

Baltimoreans Face Brewers' Five Tomorrow

The Baltimore Clippers, the team that dealt the Washington Brewers their most costly defeat in second-half American Basketball League competition, are to invade Riverside Stadium tomorrow night when the local Brewers close their 1940-41 league season locally at 8:45 o'clock.

The Clippers recently upset the Brewers in Baltimore at a time that they appeared hot in the running for the second-half championship and in so doing spoiled their championship chances.

The Brewers, fired up over that costly 2-point defeat, will be out to square the score tomorrow night and will endeavor to defeat the Clippers as decisively as possible.

Two former Brewers will be included in the Baltimore line-up, namely: Mike Bloom and Howard Bollerman, both 6-foot-6-inch centers. Bloom was sold outright to the Clippers in early season and Bollerman later was traded to Baltimore in exchange for George Slott.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

On the Florida Baseball Front, March 21.—It will interest Brooklyn's pennant-hungry baseball fans to know that the Phillies who were left behind by Kirby Higbe, when that worthy was sold up the river, believe he'll win close to 20 games for the 1941 Dodgers.

CONSIDINE

The manager who saw him sold off the club, Doc Prothro, looks moodily over the current crop of Phillies and wonders how six or eight of them will give him as much good baseball as Higbe did. However, Prothro doesn't grieve openly. He is still too stunned by the fact that his boss, Gerry Nugent, actually got $100,000 in cash, plus Vito Tamulis, Bill Crouch, pitpitchers, and Tommy Livingston, a catcher, for Higbe. Believe it or not, that is the actual amount tied up in Higbe by Larry MacPhail, who is as fearless with other people's money as Tom Yawkey is with his own.

We asked Higbe's old catcher, Walter Millies, about Higbe's ability, and he gave us the following rave notice:

"He'll be a big winner with Brooklyn; never doubt that. He's as fast as anybody in the league and he's got a fine curve and great control. He was wild when he came to us, but Prothro worked on him like a fond father. Doc changed him from an occasional side-armer to an overhand pitcher. He's right in his prime now, and we're all glad he's getting a break. The fellow lost four games by 1-0 last year and nine by one run—because we couldn't hit for him. We all think he'll be able to stand the pressure up there, too. Some fellows can play good ball only when there's nothing at stake, but Higbe's not that kind."

All of which sounds pretty good for Brooklyn. But before erecting temporary bleachers at Ebbets Field to take care of the World Series mobs, the Dodgers should know that it is also the worm's-eye view of the Phillies that it won't be the Dodgers who win the National League pennant, even with Higbe's 18 or 20 games. The boys Higbe left behind him, when he was tapped for bones and left this purgatory of the game, believe that all that Higbe will do is take up the slack to be caused by the final subsiding of Fred Fitzsimmons. Fitz won 16 games last year when nobody expected him to win more than one or two, the boys point out, and he can't do it again. So, they further assume, that fine as their missing confrere Higbe will be; he'll only be able to keep the Dodgers as high as second.

If that sounds depressing, then consider the Phillies themselves. To finish second in the National League would be a realization of the maddest dream a Philly could have. A super-super Philly ambition is to get to the top of the second division. The grim, every-day goal of this motley collection of washed-up big leaguers, and raw rookies from the minors and sandlots, is to scale to the dizzy heights of seventh place. That, you'll grant, is a modest goal, but the Phillies haven't been able to reach it very often in recent years. They've finished eighth since 1937, when they rose majestically to seventh. Except for 1932, when they finished fourth under Jimmy Wilson, they have not been in the first division since 1917 and, brother, that's now going on 24 years.

The Phillies think it will be the Giants they will have to battle for seventh place this year, which thought must cause further anguish to the shade of old Muggsy McGraw. For when the Phillies chose a foe with whom they intend to battle for the right to leave the cellar, it is no compliment to the foe. However, we think the Giants will escape the accursed fate of replacing the Phillies in the cellar for, bad as they are, they aren't that awful.

The Phillies finished 15 games behind the seventh place Bees in the 1940 race—even with the aid of Higbe and Hugh Mulcahy.

This year the Phillies lost Higbe to the Dodgers and Mulcahy to Uncle Sam. They say that Mulcahy's being drafted was more of a blow to Nugent than to the pitcher, for Gerry had just about closed a deal to sell Hugh to the Cubs for $75,000. That sum, plus the $100,000 he got for Higbe, would have kept Nugent going along at his fine salary, and enabled him to make good that usual 6 per cent return on the investment for another couple of years. And, by that time, he could reasonably expect Prothro to have developed some other kid to sell.

As we pointed out at some length last year it is unjust to expect much of the Phillies. They long since have forfeited all claims to being a sports organization or a big league team. They are a misplaced minor league breeding farm, from which the National League pennant-winner can always win 19 or 20 games out of the 22 scheduled. It is a scavenger organization existing on the crumbs dropped by better clubs. Its pay roll is kept low because it hires only desperation cases, young or old, and when it comes up with a Higbe (or a Klein, Bartell, Camilli, Davis, etc. etc. etc.) it sells him to survive, content in the knowledge that during the ensuing season it cannot finish any worse than eighth.

Bill Cross, Lew Hanbury Stars of Fights

If last night's championship round at Turner's Arena is any standard of measurement, the Nation's Capital will send a delegation of knockout artists to Boston next week as its representatives in the National Amateur Athletic Union Boxing Tournament.

In addition to producing some of the fiercest fights seen in Washington in recent years, last night's finale of the District A. A. U. championships produced six knockouts as 32 youngsters fought it out for the right to a berth on the Capital's Amateur Novice and Senior teams.

Hard put to single out any one contestant as outstanding, the judges finally decided on Bill Cross, 126-pounder, as the star of the novice division and Lewis Hanbury, Merrick's 126-pounder, as the "class" of the senior division.

The Red Shield Club won the Knights of Columbus novice team trophy with 40 points, while the St. Mary's Boys Club fighters from Alexandria won the Ourisman team cup with 20 points, beating out National Training School. Merrick and Police Boys Club No. 5.

Cross, a clever little puncher with one of the niftiest left hands seen in the tournament, won the Times-Herald Cup as the outstanding novice fighter by handing Will Work, of Merrick, a thoroughly scientific beating.

Dickey Mullens, who has displayed more punching power in proportion to the size than anybody in the tournament, gave Hanbury a close battle for the Fred Hartley trophy as the outstanding senior.

Tony DeToto won the sports center sportsmanship tourney.

Dickie Mullens, the 112-pound National Training School youngster, became the undisputed knockout king of the tournament when he kept right in form in winning himself the senior flyweight championship over Eugene Hayes, also of National Training School.

Dick Uses Right

The killing punch was Dickie's lethal right hand, which he used to knock out his semi-finals opponent Wednesday night. He exploded it under the heart of Hayes in 2 minutes 12 seconds of the second round. It was a paralyzing blow which knocked all the wind and fight out of Hayes, but until the end he had been fighting Dickie on even terms.

Denny Petro, unattached, winner of last year's 112-pound title, stepped up into the senior bantamweight division and carved out a harrowing victory over Norman Fleming, of Huron A. C., for the 118-pound championship. Petro put Fleming on the floor in the first with a savage left uppercut and slammed him to the canvas again with a looping right on the head at the end of the second. Fleming gave Danny a pair of bad cuts under each eye and administered a painful body beating, but he couldn't solve the southpaw's attack.

Biggest upset of the night came when Lewis Hanbury, of Merrick Boys Club, knocked out Bernie Cady, of Red Shield. Cady, winner of the Golden Gloves featherweight championship, went down and out under a powerful overhand right swung by Hanbury as the bell ended the second.

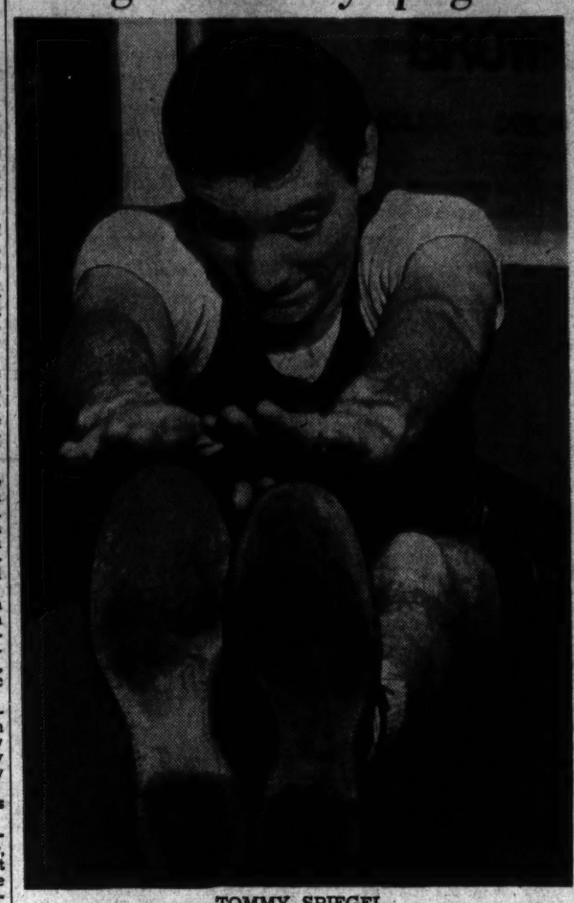
Paralyzed Leg No Handicap To Fighter Tommy Spiegel



TOMMY SPIEGEL

Uniontown Boxer Overcomes Early Injury; To Meet Slugger White Here Monday Night

The fact that he hobbles about with his right leg paralyzed as a result of an accident at the age of 15 in a sandlot football game doesn't worry Tommy Spiegel, the 24-year-old Uniontown, Pa., "Miracle Boxer," who meets Slugger White, Fall River, Mass., colored lightweight, in a ten-round cofeature match Monday night at Turner's Arena.

It seems quite appropriate that Spiegel should be making his debut on the Monday show, for 10 per cent of the gross proceeds will be turned over to the Children's Hospital Blood Bank Fund sponsored by The Washington Post and Station WJSV.

"I had plenty of blood transfusions when I suffered a stroke of infantile paralysis," Spiegel was saying yesterday. "When I left the hospital a year or so later, I was called a crippie. Yeh, my right leg was shot, but I still had my left one and I refused to be licked."

Worked Hard to Recover

Tommy was persistent. He did a great deal of trotting and got plenty of leg exercise. Then he put on gloves, went to Florida, won his first match. Being successful in the South he went to New York, he states, and won 18 in a row, losing the next three. Some States frowned on him, due to his game leg, but once the commissioners saw him in action they called him the "Miracle Boy."

Spiegel stepped eight rounds yesterday and moved nimbly. Kenny Overlin, the middleweight champion, was on hand and remarked to Spiegel's brother, Joe, who is training him, "that boy defies everything—he's the gamest kid who ever put on gloves, and what a sweet fighter. Any boy who can beat Bob Montgomery, Sammy Angott as Tommy did, is some hot potato."

Today around 1 p. m. Spiegel will return to Huron for another public drill. His stablemate, Harry Hurst, outstanding Canadian lightweight contender, will arrive from Montreal, and they will train together. Hurst, winner of 19 straight matches, will meet Tommy Cross, Philadelphia colored boxer, in the other ten-rounder on the Blood Bank show. Hurst is the boy who will attempt to gain revenge on Cross for the licking the Philly boy handed Spiegel last year in the Quaker City just after Tommy whipped Bob Montgomery.

Plans to Fight Here

Hurst, should he not be gobbled up by the Canadian draft, plans an extensive American campaign with the hopes of meeting Lew Jenkins, the champion, maybe in Washington.

Supporting bouts Monday show Frankie Martine against Tommy Hoover in a four, Tony Kelly against Taylor Miller, and Roy Dunn against an opponent to be announced later.

Official Retires

Chicago, March 21 (AP).—George H. Foster, Chicago, secretary of the Illinois Racing Commission for the past seven and one-half years, turned in his resignation to the commission today.

Foster said "personal reasons" prompted his decision.

Maryland U. Riflists Win 3d Corps Title

University of Maryland's R. O. T. C. varsity rifle team won first place in the Third Corps Area Intercollegiate matches for the sixth consecutive year, it was announced yesterday by the school's military department.

The Maryland team, coached by Lieut. Col. Chester C. Westfall and Sergt. Fay J. Norris, amassed 3,795 points out of a possible 4,000 to defeat the second place V. M. I. squad by 42 points. Twenty points behind Virginia Military came Penn State College. Georgetown, with 3,666, was fifth, behind Lehigh.

High score of the Maryland team was 382x400 by J. A. Clark. L. H. Haskin, with 380, was second high.

The match was fired from four positions—prone, sitting, kneeling and standing. Both Haskin and Clark made perfect 100's prone and Clark scored 99 sitting.

Bowlers to Open Old Dominion at Rosslyn Tonight

Bowling greats and near greats from Washington's metropolitan area will battle it out tonight, and until tomorrow at midnight, in the annual Old Dominion Open on the Rosslyn alleys. Galt Davis, Mr. Big at those drives, expects an entry list to exceed last year's record of 246. Men and women will compete on a three-fifths of handicap basis from a 128 scratch. The maximum handicap will be 84 pins. Women will roll for consolation prizes.

The cost of entry is $3.50 and there will be a guaranteed first prize of $150. Leonard Smith, of Brookland, was the winner last year. Art Brown, of WOL, and Walter Haight, of The Post, will roll in a special match.

Greenbelt, Marions Win Cage Games

Greenbelt routed Crusaders, 39-13, and Marions swamped Christ Church, 33-8, last night in D. C. Recreation Department Basketball League games. In the only other game scheduled Pincus Grille won a 2-0 forfeit over Corner Cafe.

High scorers for Greenbelt were Contair, with 14 points, and Provost, with 9. Walsh paced the Marions' victory with 13 tallies.

Wells' Record 184 Features Pin Activity

The Insurance League's meet at Penn Recreation brought out a new hero last night in Bob Wells, Elliott & Short, who rolled the highest game an individual has ever rolled in the league, a 184, featuring a triple-header strike. After getting his triple-header, Wells spilled all the sticks but No. 10 on his fourth ball. The pin wobbled, but failed to fall. Then Wells came back with a double-header which, with the exception of that lone No. 10 that failed to fall, would have made six strikes in a row. His high set was only 408, but together Wells' highs made it possible for his team to take top totals with 604—1,764, the latter mark also an all-time high.

Brookland

The Brookland Ladies League at Russ Diehl's drives was featured by the 2-1 victory of the Gemeny's Flowers team over Federal Litho, with whom they were tied for first place. The triumph put the former quintet out in front by one game despite Emma Bourne's 346 top set for the Litho girls. Ann Reynolds, Willis Esso, with a 140, led her team to top game of 531.

Moore Hardware, M. P. M. Market and Gartrell's Champs scored sweeps over Brookland Recreation, Gulf Service and Brookland Garage in the order named. Sterling Opticians are tied with Federal Litho for second place.

Jen Roschleau, Beta Chi No. 1, had high game of 130 in the Inter-Sorority League at Brookland Recreation but Helen Doyle's nice 333 set counted more, as it helped her Chi Sigma No. 1 girls also take the big count with 1,483 pins. Lambda Sigma Delta girls took high team with a total of 519 pins.

It was Secret Service night at Brookland Recreation in the Treasuray meet for R. Reeley, of the SS boys, led for highs with 152-417, which made it possible for his team to take highs after pinfalls of 590 and 1,675.

Arcadia

Mabelle Hering, D. D. W.'s, was the star of the Ladies' Independent meet at Arcadia, for her own highs of 136-344 were what her team needed to win top totals with 555 for game and 1,586 for set. The D. D. W's also took all three from Fleischmann's Yeast.

Eagles and Rovers In 6-6 Deadlock

cult angle let fly a backhand shot. The puck travelled at a terrific clip, struck Goalie Cosby's skate and glanced into the cage at 11:53.

Goal No. 3 was credited to Burns—his first of two during the period—who darted in to follow up a shot missed by Mailley, assisted by MacBeth. No. 4 fell to the line of Courteau, Pranschke and Dewey, with Pranschke in the scoring role at 17:39, and then just nine seconds before the end of the stanza, Burns finished the first-period rout. Norm picked up his second point with the assistance of MacBeth and Mailley.

The Eagles maintained their hot pace in the second period, but were held scoreless by the Rovers' suddenly stiffened defense. Meantime New York ruined Hemming's shutout bid at 18:57, when Frankie Parker scored on a fast play in which Jimmy Wilson and Ray Trainor collaborated and reduced their deficit to 1 to 5.

Numerous were the times Washington missed goals by the slimmest of margins. With a bit of luck, the Eagles might have made five more in this session. But with a few breaks the Rovers, too, might have rung up that many, for they were giving Hemming fits throughout the period.

Once Washington's Dewey took five quick stabs at the puck as it lay a few inches from an unprotected New York net, but Goalie Cosby who had left his station to thwart an Eagles rush, held the puck firm with his stick and Dewey was unable to dislodge it. That was just one example of how close the Eagles came to scoring.

Mother Dog and Her Kennel Doing Well After Canine 'Blitz' in Boston

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

The mama must have been busy with "Bundles for Britain" or something when this picture was taken. These are her undecimuplets (eleven to you). They are German boxer pups, six females and five males. Greta Von Eugards gave birth to them at the Boston home of C. F. Sprague. Not a record, experts say

Tropical's Naples Purse Taken by Shady Brook's Timeful

Votum Runs Second; Miss Quiz Third

Jockey Connolly Rides Winner; Payoff Is $9.30 For Each $2

By the Associated Press

Tropical Park, Fla., March 21.—Away from racing all during 1940 and unable to win in six previous outings this season, Timeful came into his own here today and won the featured Naples Purse. A test of a mile and a sixteenth that drew seven starters. With Apprentice Eddie Connolly doing a nice job in the saddle, the Shady Brook Farm's representative, sporting all-white silks, splashed past the wire with four lengths to spare.

Mrs. H. G. Good's Votum, the choice, was second by three lengths, while Scarlet Gate Farm's Miss Quiz finished third. Heavy overnight rain made the track sloppy and Timeful needed 1:46 to negotiate the distance. The gelding returned $9.30 for $2.

Bright Trace tried to steal the race. The filly rushed into the clear. Miss Quiz, finally showing some of the speed that has marked her morning trials, put the early leaders away as they rounded out of the backstretch. Votum also shot into the contention. As the field swung for home, Miss Quiz, Votum and Timeful, which had been fifth, bobbed their heads in unison, battling for command. Once inside the final furlong, Timeful pulled into the clear for his easy triumph. Votum made Miss Quiz falter through the last sixteenth.

PATRIOT, on the inside and prominent in the early running, closed gamely in the final furlong and outlasted ALOHORT when the final test came. ALOHORT, outrun rounding the turn, finished with determination when placed to pressure and would have won in a few more strides. ALSAB, slow to get going, came with a rush when straightened into the stretch.

GOLD MESH, away forwardly, lacked speed and dropped back in the early stages. She slipped through between the leaders at the furlong pole, closed with determination under punishment and got up in the last strides. VALDINA JACK set a fast pace and raced GALLANT HOUR into defeat. He then held on gamely, but could not withstand the winner's bid. SYMPHON finished strongly and easily disposed of the others.

Daily Double—Patriot and Gold Mesh paid $86.70

BELLARMINE worked her way up on the outside in the final quarter mile, wore MEXICANA down in the final drive. The latter, a prominent contender all the way, faltered after taking the lead through the stretch. STARKEE moved up fast on the stretch turn, took command, but then hung in the stretch.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:35. Off at 3:38½. Winner, Calumet Farm's br. c. BAY CARSE rated the pace the first half mile, moved up gradually in the last 3 furlongs and wore TIME O' WAR down in the last stride. TIME O' WAR, eased off the pace in the run down the backstretch, took command when straightened out into the stretch, but faltered suddenly right at the end. SPEED TO SPARE raced REMARKABLE into defeat, yet held on well enough to hold SHERRON ANN safe.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:06. Off at 4:07. TIMEFUL, permitted to settle into his stride in the opening half mile, moved up fast when placed to pressure and easily disposed of the leaders in the final furlong. MISS QUIZ, a keen contender throughout, just lasted long enough to stave off BURNING STICK'S bid.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds; claiming. Start good from Puett gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post at 4:34. Off at 4:36. Winner, S. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLANK, $58.70, $19.90, $10.60; STADIUM, $6.70, $5.50; JOE PETE, $5.40.

FLANK worked his way up gradually, slipped through between the leaders turning into the stretch, took command and maintained his lead to the end under pressure. STADIUM broke alertly, showed good speed, but faltered in the last furlong. JOE PETE bettered his position steadily while racing very wide and bore in in the stretch run.

Disqualified for Fighting Too Hard

By the Associated Press

Little Rock, Ark., March 21.—Two game little fighters stood toe-to-toe in the Arkansas A. A. U. boxing tournament and slugged each other so effectively that another man automatically won the 126-pound open championship.

Harold White, of Little Rock, and Perry West, of the 127th (Kansas) Field Artillery at Camp Robinson, fought at close quarters for two and one-half rounds last night, finally opening cuts over each other's eyes.

Blood streamed over their faces and they were still firing away when the referee stopped the fight and disqualified both because of their condition.

Their disqualification automatically made O. D. Hightower, of Clarksville, the champion.

Selections at Tropical Park

Dear Al:

The horses who ran under the colors of "A. C. Compton" and later under those of the "A. C. C. Stable," will be sold in the Bowie paddock on March 31 at 11 a. m., the day before the opening of the Prince Georges County track. The sale will mean a parting of the ways for Henry Hecht, Baltimore businessman, and H. Guy Bedwell, veteran Maryland owner-trainer. They jointly own the horses to be put on the block and the combination has been successful in the past from coast to coast. The horses are: Sun Egret, Son Altesse, Clingendaal, Ace Call, Drift Along, Latour and Transmitter. Sun Egret has been prominent in stake company and was one of the leading 2-year-olds in his juvenile year. Bedwell recently returned from California, where he campaigned a large string. He has more than 20 horses in training at Bowie now in addition to those to be sold. James J. Carroll, the St. Louis commissioner, come through with future book odds on the Kentucky Derby. For the most part the prices on the horses with a chance appear to be rather skimpy, although Little Beans at 40-1, isn't so bad. He holds Dispose and Our Boots at 4-1, with Porter's Cap and Curious Coin, 6-1, and Whirlaway, 8-1. Carroll will give 40-1 on Monday Lunch, the colt that Art Brown says will win the Derby. Speaking of Art Brown, I'm going to meet him in a bowling match tonight at 10 o'clock on the Rosslyn Alleys. Galt Davis, who is staging the match is going to present the winner with a bottle of Sloane' liniment. Come on Bowie.

BILL.

First race—TRAVEL AGENT may prove the best of these veteran sprinters. Packs top weight of 116 pounds, but has the class to down this kind. JOHNNY Q. breaks off the rail and has speed to make the most of the position. GOLDEN CARGO gets in with a feather and is dangerous.

Second race—EBONY FLY, with Don Meade to do the booting, probably is the right one in this field. Gets a modest weight assignment and is ready for the best. BILLY BEE has punch, but may be overweighted. PATSEY BEGONE is a possibility.

Third race—KAHYRITE turned in a sizzling effort last out and may make it two in a row in this company. LARGO MINT has worked well and should be close with these. VESUVIUS for the minor award.

Fourth race—With BLENWEED and WHIRLAWAY as its representatives, the Calumet Farm seems to hold a strong hand in this 3-year-old test. Either could take down the chief money. LITTLE BEANS, if ready, would be a serious contender. FETTACAIRN appears to have an edge over the others.

Fifth race—MANY STINGS was the victim of a bungling ride last out. Comes back for this battle with Meade aboard and I look for an improved effort. JOE SCHENCK fits nicely in the field and is dangerous. SICKLE T. to take care of the others.

Sixth race—ENGLISH HARRY finds a route that is right up his alley in this 14 furlongs. The weight shouldn't bother him. WEARY FLOWER will do a lot of closing and is a threat. DRUCO SYSKA gets in with a feather.

Seventh race—BESS B. might awaken to take the chief end of this purse. The route and the company seem to suit. IDA ROGERS may cause trouble. CHERRY TRIFLE may fill out the money bracket.

Eighth race—CAVE HILL finds conditions that seem to fit in with a winning perfection in the day's finale. I'm going to string along. CRIUS will be right in there knocking. RED RAIDER for the show end.

Best bet—ENGLISH HARRY.

Don't Hoard, Industrial Leaders Urge

By the Associated Press

New York, March 21.—Defense industry leaders called upon brother manufacturers today to avoid "hoarding" in their all-out effort to speed the Nation's arming.

Forty of these leaders, meeting as the defense committee of the National Association of Manufacturers, approved a "statement of policy" specifying:

"We urge manufacturers using domestic materials to accumulate or contract for only such inventories as are consistent with their . . . sales. . . ."

The committee urged the same attitude on manufacturers using imported materials.

Looking toward the cessation of hostilities, the defense committee recommended that patents used collectively by manufacturers should be returned to their original holders "when the defense emergency is over."

W. P. Witherow, president of the Blaw-Knox Corporation and head of the defense committee of the N. A. M., said as he left a committee meeting that the "next 100 days" would determine the mass defense production possibilities of the United States.

"We feel," he said, "that the next 100 days will determine the time in which defense industry gets rolling—whether industry gets up to its mass production ability."

He said the committee was unanimously of the opinion that all industrial and labor efforts should be directed toward complete national defense.

John Biggers, director of production of the Office of Production Management, sat with the executives at a round-table conference and answered running questions regarding the country's needs.

Heading the group was W. P. Witherow, president of Blaw-Knox Corporation, of Pittsburgh. He was flanked by two vice chairmen, R. E. Gillmor, president of Sperry Gyroscope Co., of Brooklyn, and N. W. Pickering, president of Farrel-Birmingham Co., of Ansonia, Conn.

Every industrial center of the United States from New England to the West Coast was represented on the committee.

Among the committeemen was S. E. Lauer, president of York Ice Machinery Corporation, York, Pa., where the "community pooling plan" of defense industry was originated.

The National Association of Manufacturers has gone on record as approving the York plan.

Charles E. Wilson, president of the General Electric Co., was among those taking part.

Steel Rationing Planned

Chicago, March 21 (AP).—Inland Steel Co. today notified customers that it will accept only orders that can be included in 1941 schedules and these only in a reasonable relationship to previous sales.

An exception would be made, however, for tonnage required for definite defense contracts. When books are opened for the first quarter of 1942 the company will provide first for its proper share of defense tonnage and then allocate remaining capacity among customers in relation to previous sales.

Company officials said the past six months incoming orders have been in excess of production capacity.

Sales of fine Australian wools have been reported at 1.00@1.09, scoured basis, according to quality.

Sugar Futures

New York, March 21 (AP).—World sugar futures raced up 3 to 4½ points today on heavy turnover on trade reports that Great Britain had arranged to buy Cuban or San Dominican sugar, the first since last June.

Demand was further stimulated by expectations a Cuban sugar loan by the United States would facilitate sales of Cuban sugars abroad through the lease-lend bill. Sales totaled 21,800 tons; May, 0.82½; July, 0.87½.

Domestic futures, still buoyed by a steady spot raw market, gained 1 to 2 points after Thursday's setback on news that the quota had been enlarged. Turnover was 6,750 tons.

Despite a sale of spot raw sugar at 3.32 cents a pound, a decline of 2 points, the market's undertone held steady. Offerings generally were priced at from 3.35 to 3.40 cents. Refined remained locally at 4.95 cents.

Wheat Curves Lower Another Cent a Bushel

By the Associated Press

Chicago, March 21.—The wheat market's setback from four months peak prices reached at mid-week was extended another cent a bushel today.

Profit taking and selling inspired by reports of increased loan wheat redemptions and larger terminal market receipts accounted for most of the weakness. Support that checked the decline and caused frequent small rallies was stimulated principally by increasing demand from the Orient for Pacific Coast and Gulf flour and scattered crop complaints from the winter wheat belt.

Wheat closed ⅝-1⅛ lower than yesterday, May 87¼-⅛, July 84½-⅝ off; soybeans ¾-1 lower; rye unchanged to ¼ off and lard unchanged to 5 lower.

Rail Purchases Expand 14% During Year

Railway Age reported yesterday that the Nation's railroads spent approximately $1,160,266,000 for materials, supplies, fuel and equipment during 1940, a 14 per cent increase over 1939.

The trade publication attributed the heavy buying to the stimulating effect of national defense programs on carrier spending.

The railroads' heaviest expenditure, $624,821,000, was for materials and supplies, while $284,318,000 went for fuel and $251,127,000 for new locomotives and cars.

Approximately $215,282,000 was spent for bituminous coal, compared with $204,240,000 in 1939; approximately $37,864,000 for fuel oil, compared with $53,170,000 in 1939; and $4,570,000 for gasoline, compared with $4,363,000 in 1939.

London Stocks

London, March 21 (AP).—The stock market closed generally dull after an idle session. Operators held off after receipt of an unconfirmed report of an agreement between Germany and Yugoslavia.

After initial precautionary marking down of prices, several sections rallied slightly in the absence of selling pressure.

The gilt-edged group recovered earlier losses. In the foreign bond section Japanese issues were ½ point lower and Brazilian issues finished heavy.

Industrials showed occasional late gains but brewery shares remained easy. In a fair business in domestic rails only minor changes occurred. Oil movements were narrow. Kaffirs were irregularly lower. The quota decision failed to affect tin shares.

Weakness in Power Issues Depresses List; Preferred Shares Are Exception to Trend

New York, March 21.—Leading stocks were thrown for losses of fractions to 2 or more points in today's market.

While a few specialties, including a handful of yesterday's buoyant utilities, managed to finish on the upside, most industrials closed at or near bottom.

The list was hesitant from the start as most of the power company climbers of Thursday showed signs of fading buying power.

Dealings were fairly fast for a while in the morning, then dwindled, but picted up on a sell-off in the final hour.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .3 of a point at 41.4, low mark of the week. The day's drop was the largest since March 13. Transfers totaled 471,680 shares, against 490,140 the day before.

Potential buyers, brokers said, took a somewhat pessimistic view of the apparent capitulation of Yugoslavia to Nazi pressure and intensification of bombing raids over England and Germany. Business news, however, generally was hopeful and limited offerings in many instances. Comforting also was the settling of a number of strikes. The failure of stock prices to make any real progress in the past several days was a bit discouraging to recovery proponents.

Some preferreds of Engineers Public Service, Standard Gas and Electric Power & Light were up as much as 2 points or more at new highs for the year, but senior issues of Commonwealth & Southern, American Power & Light and Philadelphia Co. slipped. Expectations that integration plans of several holding companies would benefit preference stocks still were a supporting influence.

Pere Marquette preferreds and those of Bangor & Aroostook ended well ahead. The former was bought on the chance directors soon would vote to pay off or cut large dividend arrearages.

General Motors and Chrysler backed away as this week's automotive output registered a drop due to weather interruptions of manufacturing operations.

Among prominent losers were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, Wright-Aeronautical, Standard Gas common, Westinghouse, Dow Chemical, Eastman Kodak, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Phelps Dodge, Anaconda, Western Union and Consolidated Edison.

Bonds and commodities were irregular throughout. Wheat at Chicago was off ⅝ to 1⅛ cents a bushel and corn down ⅝ to 1¼. Cotton was up 30 to 50 cents a bale.

In the Curb, Phoenix Securities preferred was up 5 points and Standard Power & Light preferred advanced 1½. Modest improvement was retained by American Gas and Venezuelan Petroleum. Montgomery Ward "A" jumped 3½ on a light turnover. Aluminum of America fell 2¼ and lesser losers included Pennroad, Sherwin Williams, Brewster Aero, Gulf Oil and Niagara Hudson Power. Turnover here was around 96,000 shares, compared with 100,000 yesterday.

Moderate Climb In Home Building Costs Predicted

New York, March 21 (AP).—Lewis H. Brown, president of Johns-Manville Corporation, a leading building material firm, predicted today a continuation of the uptrend in home building during the first half of 1941 and perhaps longer.

At a regional stockholders meeting, Brown said that while undoubtedly there would be some price rises in building materials due to increased costs of production, he did not believe there would be a return of skyrocketing prices that curtailed building in the first World War.

"Responsible leaders in the building industry," he said, "will do their share in attempting to resist every tendency to enter an inflationary cycle such as we saw in the last war."

Southern Gas Firm Plans Refinancing

New York, March 21 (AP).—Financial circles heard today that the Southern Natural Gas Co. was considering a refinancing operation that would reduce its total funded debt of about $18,000,000 and cut charges by issuing lower interest bearing securities. Bonds outstanding carry 4½ and 6 per cent coupons.

The company, an affiliate of Federal Water Service Corporation, serves about 50 communities in Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia.

3,000 Get Pay Boost

Manville, R. I., March 21 (AP).—The Manville-Jenckes Corporation, makers of fancy cotton and rayon cloth, announced today a 10 per cent wage increase to 3,000 employes, effective next Monday. The pay roll weekly is $65,000.

Trade Publication Editor Predicts Inflation Ahead

Hartford, Conn., March 21 (AP).—John H. Van Deventer, president and editor of Iron Age, predicted a Government-sponsored policy of wage and price inflation in an address at the annual meeting of the Hartford County Employers' Association.

"Right at this moment," Van Deventer said, "there is a concerted and comprehensive move to force by strike or threat of strike, a wage increase varying from 10 to 25 per cent. If this is successful, it will mean that the $7,000,000,000 that American taxpayers have put up willingly for aid to England will shrink in buying power to about $5,500,000,000, and that we will have to provide some $5,000,000,000 more to secure the anticipated results from our own $30,000,000,000 defense outlay."

This move to force higher wages, Van Deventer said, is preliminary to the conviction that the Administration, "in spite of assertions to the contrary," will shortly sponsor "general or selective price rises in goods and commodities under a controlled inflationary plan."

Stockholders' Total Doubles Since 1929

New York, March 21 (AP).—Holders of common stocks in 50 typical corporations listed on the New York Stock Exchange increased from 1,647,680 in the first quarter of 1929 to 3,659,644 at the end of 1940.

The figures were contained in the New York Stock Exchange's monthly magazine Exchange, released today. They presumably reflected in part a considerable shifting of stock from speculative accounts, where they were held in brokers' names, to investors' strong boxes.

Cotton Futures

New York, March 21 (AP).—Cotton futures gained 5 to 10 points today on trade reports the Administration might be forced to grant higher commodity loans to satisfy farm-bloc pressure. Strength also was derived from continued strength in cotton textiles.

The market started lower because of Bombay selling. This soon subsided and hedging sales also tapered. Trade demand appeared throughout the session, but lacked bulk.

Worth Street cloth dealers reported only small turnover in print cloths and broadcloths, but prices held firm at the top of the current move upward. Goods were difficult to obtain for shipment prior to July.

Exports Thursday, 4,418 bales; season so far, 794,024. Port receipts, 14,021; port stocks, 3,482,539.

Nats' Early Attack Beats Tigers, 7 to 5

Gorsica hit George Case in the back at the start of the second inning and Lewis eventually drove him home with a single to right, but it was in the third inning that the Nats won the ball game with a four-run assault against the side-arming Detroit right-hander.

Sanford beat out an infield hit with one out, and Evans scored him with a long triple to left. Dean and Case walked to fill the bases, and when Charlie Gehringer made a stupid sort of play on Cramer's grounder, a run scored and the bases were still full. Gehringer foolishly attempted to force Case with a throw to second base, but Case beat the ball to the bag. Sammy West drove in the third run of the inning with a long fly to right.

Harold Newhouser and Al Benton pitched six innings of shutout ball for the Tigers thereafter, allowing only two hits, but Dutch Leonard was out there doing a scoreless job on the Tigers to retain his two-run lead.

The two favorites—defending Champion Ben Hogan and North-South Champion Sam Snead—were among the leaders. Hogan carded 69 to tie with lanky Jimmy McHale, of Philadelphia, Snead and nine others had 71's.

Low amateur was Adrian McManus, Greensboro, who shot 71. Second amateur was Skeg Riegel, Harrisburg, Pa., 72.

Martin Pose, of Argentina, provided one of the day's highlights. His second shot to the 18th green landed in the middle of a piece of waxed paper. While the rules committee looked that one up, a bystander set the paper on fire. It was all right, as the rules said Pose could move the paper.

enth Street, believes I'm taking these things seriously. She sends this tidbit and then writes, "P. S.—Please don't feel badly, everybody loves a fat man anyway." Read on:

There was a little horse named
Walter - aight,
How he loved his oats and he ate and ate—
The race day came: He was at the gate
And he huffed and puffed but came in late.

I have read this one 50 times. It comes from J. W., of the Hamilton Hotel staff. My head is so big now they're thinking of making it a WPA project. But:

With war overseas and strikes
here at home
And the papers all full of dire things to come,
It's our big relief that Haight is around
To brighten the morning while the coffee goes down.

This is a honey from P. F. H. Remember, Boss, they are all in good fun. Any reference to the truth in this verse is purely coincidental, but I don't have to tell you that:

When Haight met his namesake
at Bowie,
Here's what he said to his host,
There is one thing we have in common, Walt,
We both sleep best at the Post.

But A. J. H. catches the spirit of the thing in a few lines from out on Fuller Street. He incloses a road map marked for Bowie. He shows that his heart is not in the highlands. To wit:

Listen, my horsemen, and you shall hear
What Haight and Bennings both make clear;
A dime for the kiddies at Thirteenth and V
Is a mutuel pay-off on "Sweet Charity."

Well, Boss, tell them to keep on cutting me up. That's the name of the column . . . "Pieces of Haight."

Always your ace,

Arnold Heft, Former Central Pitcher, to Join Scranton Club

20-Year-Old Star Picked Up 20 Pounds During Year's Rest

ARNOLD HEFT

Arnold Heft, 211 Kennedy Street Northwest, former Central High School and D. C. sandlots pitching star, will leave this morning to drive to Bennettsville, S. C., for spring practice with Scranton, of the Eastern League—a Class A circuit.

The 20-year-old Heft, who rested last year to pick up needed weight, reported himself last night to be 20 pounds heavier than ever before and confident he'll make good. He is property of the Boston Red Sox, who see in him a fine major league prospect.

With Scranton, Heft will play under Nemo Liebold, former Washington outfielder who developed Woody Rich, Dicky Harris and other promising young pitchers for the Red Sox. Scranton won the Eastern League championship last season.

Heft began his professional baseball career in 1938 with Thomasville and had a trial with the Baltimore Orioles late the same year.

The following season he played with Portsmouth and Durham. The slender youngster (he then weighed only 148) was handicapped by lack of stamina and an adequate curve. So last year he resolved to overcome both obstacles and he believes he succeeded. Heft now weighs 165 stripped. He is 5-11.

Heft will be accompanied to Bennettsville by his wife, the former Sylvia Abramson.

ROUND ELEVEN—They both rushed out with straight lefts to the face. Joe connected with a left hook, but Abe poked three times with his jab to the nose. Abe threw a left to the body. Abe threw another hook to the body and Joe fired a right to the midsection. Louis hurt Simon with a hard left, but still Abe stuck his left in Joe's face time after time. Joe bounced left and right off Abe's ear. Abe shook with left and took a right to the head for his trouble. Joe threw left and right to the body. Joe hooked hard to Abe's ear and Simon held momentarily. Joe hooked a hard left to the head at the bell.

Louis' round.

ROUND TWELVE—Simon threw a right to the ear as Joe dug both hands into the body. Abe jabbed three times with his left to Joe's sore eye. Joe hooked a hard left to the head and Abe did the same. Joe caught Abe near the ropes and smashed him halfway to the floor, but Abe came right back to trade punches with Joe. Simon bounced a solid left off Joe's jaw. Abe whacked Joe with a short right to the jaw and then squared off in midring and traded blow for blow with Joe. Joe hammered two smashing rights off Abe's jaw and then followed with a third, but still Simon stood up under the punishment. Abe circled Joe, boxing nicely. They traded left hooks at the bell.

Louis' round.

ROUND THIRTEEN—Again Abe landed the first punch. A right hand to the chin floored Simon for a count of nine. Louis rushed in, throwing both hands, and Simon was hurt. Two right handers floored Simon near his corner for a nine count.

Again Joe rushed in and threw punches, landing at will. Abe was helpless and slammed blindly into the ropes. The referee stepped in and awarded Louis a technical knockout, ending at 1 minute and 30 seconds of the thirteenth round.

Louis Wins T. K. O. Over Abe Simon

corner again and Louis dropped him for another nine-count with an explosive left hook. When Abe rose this time, it was apparent that he was finished. He tried to protect himself as Joe drove him across the ring and back.

Referee Steps In

Three hooks crashed into his chin, and Abe turned away bewilderedly from the champion and started to stroll along the ropes to his corner on rubber legs. Then it was that the referee stepped in.

Simon's manager, little Jimmy Johnston, immediately raised a loud howl that Abe was still in such good condition that the referee should not have interfered. But eventually all agreed that the referee's action was sensible and justified. Despite his earlier excellent showing, Simon was beyond hope.

When the fight opened it seemed that it would be of short duration because Detroit's own dark dynamiter, Louis, floored Abe in the very first round for the count of one with a straight right to the jaw.

Simon, who outweighed the champion by 52½ pounds, rallied from his knockdown and hurt Joe with two hooks to the head as the round ended. Abe scaled 254½ pounds to Joe's 202.

Grin and Bear It — By Lichty

ADVERTISEMENT
Listen! with Glynn

You can be fairly assured that the British censors at Jamaica, B. W. I. are breathing sighs of relief today. And while, offhand, it doesn't sound nice to talk about a lady that way, it's because Irna Phillips is leaving there after a two-month vacation.

Now Irna Phillips is a very pleasant and otherwise admirable young woman—but she writes, and writes, and writes. She's the author of three daily dramatic serials which you hear over WJSV and the Columbia network, "Woman in White," "The Right to Happiness" and "The Road of Life."

And so daily while she's been at Jamaica those tens of thousands of words have been put into the mails and the censors have had to read every word. We hasten to add that they made not a single deletion, although Miss Phillips wonders what they thought about some of the mysterious-sounding stage directions she wrote into the scripts. A "voice montage" effect Miss Phillips uses sounds strangely like code. But, as we said, not a word suffered.

The censors weren't the only ones who bore the strain of Miss Phillip's prodigious efforts, however. Telephone operators had their share of it, too. Several times a week complicated three-way telephone hook-ups were established between Kingston and New York and Chicago, while Miss Phillips and casts and directors and producers had their story conferences.

To some this may not sound like a vacation, but Miss Phillips liked it.

Contract Bridge

An expert recently said that in order to become a top-notch player you should have, along with a great many other abilities, the instincts of a burglar.

Perhaps what our friend really means was that the winning player has no false pride about humbling his strategy to suit the enemy and the occasion. Consider the first question offered for your enjoyment today, which is taken from the files of Ely Culberson, who when he was actively competing in tournaments, was the wiliest of bidders.

1. The strategy suggested is not recommended for casual use, but it illustrates fine bidding for duplicate. In a match-point game, with North-South vulnerable, you are sitting East and hold these cards:

♡ 10 4
◇ 8 6 2
♣ J 10 8 5

The bidding has gone:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	5 ◇	?

What do you say now?

2. Sitting South, as declarer, you hold these cards:

♠ 10 6 4
♡ NORTH 3
◇ WEST EAST
♣ SOUTH A K 8 5 3

How do you play this combination so as to lose the least number of tricks?

Answer

1 Double. Partner's consistent passing and the opponents' strong bidding indicate a certain slam which South will surely bid at his next opportunity. If you double five diamonds, however, South, figuring you for a good defensive hand, is for more likely to redouble than to take out a doubled contract of five odd into a small slam in the same suit.

If North-South bid and make six diamonds they score 1,370 points If they make five diamonds, redoubled, with an over trick, they score 1,300 points. The net gain of your double, if South redoubles, is 70 points. If there is no redouble you gain 470 points.

2. Lead the ace. Then play low from your hand, if (a) East drops an honor, or (b) West drops the nine or an honor. If either of the opponents started with four cards in the suit: in (a) the ten will make a trick: in (b) a third-round finesse is taken through East.

Dr. Quintanilla Says America Is Unafraid

Dr. Don Luis Quintanilla, minister and counselor of the Mexican Embassy, drew applause from a distinguished audience honoring Vice President Wallace at the Cosmos Club last night, with a declaration that Pan Americanism is grounded in democracy and that unity in the Western Hemisphere rests upon the ability of democracy to produce economic justice.

The young diplomat, who is a doctor of philosophy from John Hopkins University, declared the root of the European crisis to be the failure of government to provide justice as well as liberty.

Emphasizing that his words must not be interpreted as committing his government "to anything," he stated:

"The European situation is a challenge to America, but I have no doubt of the outcome. America is too young to become cynical, and I know, Mr. Vice President, that America is too young to be afraid of anything."

These words brought a thunder of approval from the audience of scientists, educators, editors and Government officials. They closed Dr. Quintanilla's speech, which was interrupted several times by applause.

"The fate of Pan Americanism," he declared, "is the fate of democracy." Then he asked: "What do we mean by democracy?"

Two Kinds of Democracy

He said he had searched practically everything that has been written on the subject of democracy and had found no better definition than President Lincoln's famous line—"for the people, by the people and of the people."

But, he said, the definition is "much too broad." In reality, he declared, there are two democracies—political and economic democracy—and each of these is opposed to the other.

"Political democracy," he said, "is easy, because it provides personal privilege and requires nothing in return."

On the other hand, he pointed out, economic democracy requires sacrifices and is "the price of political democracy."

"We can't have freedom if we close our eyes to social justice," he said.

Dr. Quintanilla warned that "there is nothing that has happened in Europe that could not happen here." He said that "one of the most dangerous illusions in America is to think that we in America, as human beings, are different from Europe.

No Island of Angels

"It is too simple to think that in a sea of scoundrels and rascals, we in America are an island of angels. Europe did not reconcile the interests of the individual with the interests of the community. We in America must."

The problem in all the Americas, he said, is the same, but the problem of Latin America is more difficult than that in the United States. He stated that in some Latin-American countries 80 per cent of the population "lives under conditions that are not even human."

"Why should they care if democracy is in danger?" he asked, adding that "we must show them that democracy does not only give them three freedoms but three meals a day."

The real saboteurs of democracy, though they may not be aware of their role, are "the blindly selfish commercial groups which place property interest above national interest."

Referring apparently to controversies over foreign oil and land holdings in Mexico, he cited "obstacles" against his country as examples of "persons who weaken the foundations of democracy."

"You can at least refrain from interfering and thereby help us to solve our problems in our own way," he declared.

Dr. Quintanilla emphasized that he was not talking as a diplomat but, he said, "I have come to you to speak my heart out."

In establishing his thesis, Dr. Quintanilla rejected as grounds for Pan Americanism both geography and trade. He pointed out that the European nations are in the "same geographic boat." He observed that 11 of the Latin-American nations sell 50 per cent of their goods to Europe.

Wallace Speaks in Spanish

Huston Thompson, former Federal trade commissioner, the toastmaster, pointed out that the dinner, honoring Wallace who last year represented the United States at the inauguration of the Mexican President Manuel Avila Camacho, was one of a series planned for the club membership. He praised the Vice President as the third-generation representative of a famous family that "keeps going up the ladder."

Wallace made no speech, but in response to a request from Eugene Meyer, editor and publisher of The Washington Post, demonstrated his fluency in Spanish.

Robert Lincoln O'Brien, former chairman of the Tariff Commission, delivered a humorous address in which he observed that although he is now 76 years old he expects a family tendency toward longevity to enable him to outlive "all the Roosevelt Administrations." He predicted that Wallace would be the next President unless he should fall out with "the appointing power."

Nelson A. Rockefeller, coordinator of commercial and cultural relations between the American republics, sat at the head table, close to the Vice President. Others at the dinner included Louis Simon, supervising architect of the Treasury and club president, and Walter Dill Scott, former president of Northwestern University.

CAB Probes U. S. Giants To Air Line

A hearing by the Civil Aeronautics Board on the mail subsidies granted to Pan American Airways, Inc., continued in the Carlton Hotel yesterday, with Samuel E. Gates, the board's counsel, seeking to show that the big air line has been getting "excessive" Government grants for its subsidiary companies in Latin America.

Gates questioned John Woodbridge, comptroller for Pan American, on the practice of transferring planes from the parent company to the Latin American companies, and putting its own value on the planes instead of considering the market value.

The Civil Aeronautics Board began an investigation of Pan America's Latin-American service in August, 1939, seeking to determine whether the approximately $4,000,000 a year it was receiving from the Postoffice Department for carrying mail was equitable. The current hearing is based on that investigation.

In his opening remarks, Counsel Gates said he would show that rates of compensation now being received by Pan American for the services rendered "are excessive and are neither fair nor reasonable."

He said he would show that, whereas domestic carriers are paid approximately 20 cents per revenue mile for the transport of mail, Pan American has been paid six times as much, or almost $1.20 per revenue mile. He conceded that there were differences in costs as between the continental and international fields, but even so, he contended, it was difficult to understand the wide disparity in operating costs.

Backward Step In Television Is Reported

By James D. Secrest
Post Staff Writer

Members of the Federal Communications Commission were startled late yesterday to hear officials of the Radio Corporation of America testify that R. C. A.-N. B. C. is not as well prepared for commercial television now as it was a year ago.

Dr. C. B. Jolliffe, chief engineer of R. C. A., suggested that the FCC adopt television standards recommended by the National Television System Committee, a group representing the industry, but that it delay commercialization.

Chairman James L. Fly expressed astonishment at what he termed a change in attitude of R. C. A., but other members of the FCC interpreted Dr. Jolliffe's testimony as meaning that R. C. A. was not prepared to market television receivers as it was a year ago. At that time the FCC stepped in to rescind a previous order.

Plant Doing Defense Work

R. C. A. is no longer manufacturing or marketing television sets, Jolliffe said, and its Camden plant is engaged to a limited degree in defense work.

N. B. C. television transmissions have been reduced from 10 to 12 hours a week to 6 to 8 hours, he said.

Moreover, he testified, the industry does not know what effect the national defense program and priorities may have on the manufacture of visual broadcasting transmitters and receivers.

Chairman Fly questioned A. H. Morton, N. B. C. vice president in charge of television, as to why nine months have elapsed since N. B. C. was given a permit to erect a Washington television transmitter and nothing had been done.

Dismantling Tower

Morton said a tower had been obtained only recently and was being dismantled to bring to the National Capital.

Spokesmen for the Columbia Broadcasting System said the network was willing for the FCC to adopt standards and set a date for commercialization of television, but contended the industry would have to develop gradually and that the public should not be led to expect too much at the outset.

Other industry representatives urged the commission to permit television to go on a commercial basis at once, although the Allen B. DuMont Laboratories continued to insist that its more flexible standards are preferable to those recommended by the committee representing the majority of manufacturers.

Edward M. Martin, Washington attorney, representing the Farnsworth Television Corporation, told the commission that television should be of military value now and should aid in the economic rehabilitation of the country when peace comes.

The commission recessed the hearing until 10 o'clock Monday.

Suez Canal Shut, Says Rome Radio

New York, March 21 (AP).—The Rome radio broadcast today the report that a German aerial observer had found "about 600,000 tons of shipping immobilized in the Suez Canal between Port Said and Suez."

The Germans have claimed that Suez Canal traffic had been paralyzed by ships sunk in the channel.

FCC to Check Short-Wave Broadcasts for Subversion

"Listening posts," which will make recordings of all foreign short-wave broadcasts heard in this country, are being established by the Federal Communications Commission in cooperation with the Defense Communications Board, it was disclosed yesterday.

A 24-hour watch for subversive and other radio propaganda beamed from abroad is being set up at primary monitoring stations strategically located throughout the United States and its possessions.

A picked force of 350 technicians, translators, and clerks, propaganda analysts and other experts will work in eight-hour shifts to transcribe and analyze the broadcasts from overseas. Continuous listening is necessary because of time differences.

The listeners will pay particular attention to newscasts, speeches, announcements, playlets, and some musical programs in a search for propaganda intended for persons in this country or in neighboring countries.

After being recorded and translated, the broadcasts will be coordinated and studied in Washington. An FCC statement did not explain what disposition or use will be made of the material.

British Babies to Ride In Streamlined Buggies

London, March 21 (AP).—Britain's baby carriages will be streamlined and privately owned metal railings will be torn out in a plan to inject more iron into the veins of England's war industries.

The government will control the baby-buggy industry in order to produce more of these urgently needed vehicles which are now selling—when you can get them—at 30 per cent more than before the war. New designs will reduce by half the metal used in perambulators by building them lower, more rakish, with less undercarriage and smaller wheels.

Group to Protest Sale Of Drinks Near Camps

Protest against the sale of alcoholic beverages in the vicinity of military camps will be sounded at a citizens' mass meeting at 3 p. m. tomorrow at National City Christian Church, Thomas Circle, with Representative Joseph R. Bryson (Democrat), of South Carolina, and Representative U. S. Guyer (Republican), of Kansas, speaking.

Churches in Washington and vicinity will send representatives to the meeting which is under the auspices of the United Dry Forces of the District.

Dr. Raphael Miller, pastor of the National City Church, will give the invocation and Justin Lawrie will sing.

Keller's Use Of Old House Office Assailed

A "Turkish bath" and "a yacht on the Potomac" were sarcastically suggested on the floor of the House yesterday as suitable gifts for a former member who has been using space in the old House Office Building despite his defeat for reelection last November.

Butt of the gibes, former Representative Kent Keller (Democrat), of Illinois, told The Post that unless the House forbids him to do so, he will continue to use the office space which he had been loaned by Representative Sabath (Democrat), of Illinois.

But if the House objects, said Keller, "I will rent a private office and continue to serve my district from there."

The issue arose when Representative Knutson (Republican), of Minnesota, told the House that Keller was creating a "squatter problem" in the Office Building.

Declaring that he did not like to think of Keller as "a lonesome sentinel of the Republic," Knutson proposed that the House Appropriations Committee bring in "another deficiency bill to make his last years happy."

"Think how a cafeteria would contribute," said Knutson, "or a Turkish bath with a masseuse." Another member rose to suggest "a yacht on the Potomac." Keller's successor, Representative Bishop (Republican), was silent.

Representative Sabath then took the floor to say that he had told Keller to use the room, which has been assigned to Sabath's investigation of bondholders' protective committees. He pointed out that Keller's use of the room cost the Government "nothing."

The question is about to settle itself, however, because a representative of the House superintendent's staff said yesterday that the room in dispute, on the C Street side of the top floor of the Old Office Building, was one of a number that are being turned into suites, to be occupied by members of the House as their regular offices.

Noting that "a little plaster goes a long way," he observed that "nobody could work up there now."
